Ormond Beach

SEASONAL activities at Hotel Ormond, Ormond Beach, already are well under way, with the calendar for next month studded with interesting events and social activities as well as the arrival of scores of seasonal guests.

Slated for March 7 and 8 is the annual tournament of the Ormond Beach Golf Club to benefit the Red Cross. The tournament will be under the direction of Jimmy Thomson, golf professional. In the early part of February an Archery Contest will take place, and extremely popular with guests are beach parties on Ormond Beach as well as surf bathing.

The opening dinner of the Ormond Golf Club was given at the hotel, the first of six meetings to be held there during the season. Prof. Oakes Ames, botany professor emeritus at Harvard, is president of the organization. Junius M. Honor is secretary, and Charles Prettyman is treasurer. Fifty people attended the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stuart of Newark, New Jersey, observed their golden wedding anniversary at Hotel Ormond recently with a dinner party given in their honor by the hotel to celebrate the occasion.

The last few weeks have marked the arrival of many season guests at the hotel, also a large contingent who will remain here several weeks. Among season guests were Mr. P. S. Craig, New York, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Allen G. Jehle, Webster Groves, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. Lionel J. Nash, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Richards, Boston, Massachusetts.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Cleveland Heights, Ohio; Mrs. Paul P. Hunter, Roanoke, Va.; Mrs. Richard A. Springs, New York, N. Y.; Mr. Lester S. Kafer, New York City; Mrs. M. H. Cuff, Pittsburgh, Penn., and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Baton, also of Pittsburgh, Penn.

Among those arriving for sojourns of several weeks at Hotel Ormond were Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Scott, Ardmore, Penn.; Baroness M. Wodehouse-Fox, New York, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Williams, Saugatuck, Conn.

Also Mrs. A. M. Robison, Louisville, Ky; the Rev. Edward J. Walsh, New York City; Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCavran, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. Ferdinand Schurman, Scarsdale, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Zabel, Chicago, Ill., and Dr. John J. Keogh, Philadelphia, Penn.

"Wives of Overseas Officers," known as the W.O.O.S.'s, are giving a dinner tonight in the hotel. There will be over 50 members in attendance. The dining room has been tastefully decorated and the dinner promises to be one of the highlights of the season of the organization.

Horseback riding, always popular with members of the hotel and cottage colony sets, is more in vogue this season than ever owing to the gasoline shortage. Nearly every week there is a large horseback riding party which ends with an old-fashioned picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Edward Ross have arrived from Ardmore, Pennsylvania, for their annual sojourn at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Burr Chapman are recent arrivals from Memphis, Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Price of Ridgewood, New Jersey, have returned for another season at The Ormond Beach Hotel.

The Boca Raton Club

THE BOCA RATON CLUB, famed throughout the world for its beauty of architecture and tropical surroundings, opened its doors as an American plan hotel on January 15, after two years as a part of Army installations in that area. A return of many former members of the club indicates that its largest season is being enjoyed, first to arrive being Mr. Norman Armour, former Ambassador to Argentina and now having the same diplomatic capacity in Spain. Accompanied by Mrs. Armour, he spent a few weeks at the club prior to his departure for his new post. Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Porter of New York entertained at a dinner for the Armours last week.

Marcel Gotschi, well known in resort hotel circles, is the resident manager of the Boca Raton Club, and among innovations there is a daily tea dance at the Beach Club from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. Music for dancing is furnished by Nick D'Amico's orchestra and the affairs attract many parties of hotel residents and their guests.

Again in charge of all golf activities at the club is Tommy Armour, popular and nationally known golf professional, and Valerin Yavorsky will direct tennis play.

Commencing February 1, luncheons were served at the cabana colony on the ocean, and another popular spot is the colorful "19th hole" adjoining the Grill where semi-weekly game sessions are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Archer D. Friend, Beverly, Mass., arrived Tuesday at Boca Raton Club to spend the season. They have been winter visitors for many years and were expecting to be joined this week by Mrs. Friend's brother, Mr. R. A. Stranahan and Mrs. Stranahan, Ottawa Hills, Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. J. E. Barbour, Englewood, N. J., has joined her son, Robert E. Barbour, and Mrs. Barbour at the club, where she will remain for the season. The Barbours have been frequent visitors at Boca Raton in the past where Mr. Barbour is active in golfing circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harris, Rochester, N. Y., arrived at the club to pass a month. Their son is stationed at the Boca Raton Field.

Recent arrivals at the club include Mr. and Mrs. Philo R. King, St. Louis; Messrs. G. W. Murphy, John C. Newman and Grant Campbell, Montreal, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jennings, Bound Brook, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Foster, Jr., New York; Mr. and Mrs. George Lurcy, New York; Major and Mrs. Philip Bateson, Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. John Noble, New York.

Among other guests listed at the beautiful Boca Raton Club are Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius F. Kelley of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lawrence of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baia of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Henry Walter of New York, Dr. and Mrs. Anton Phillips of Larchmont, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shannon of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Chester N. Stevens of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ludwig of New Canaan, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl D. Kelly of Winnetka, Ill.; Mr. Donald J. Hardenbrook and Mr. Alexander Calder of New York, and Mr. Leo Mellin of Washington, D. C.

Also expected at the club were Mr. and Mrs. Bolton S. Armstrong of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Sharpless of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Vanderbilt of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Pew of Ardmore, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Toomy of New York, and Mr. Forrest W. Taylor of Worcester, Mass.

The Murals In The Palm Beach Post Office

EXPRESSING THE SERENE BEATY that is an integral part of southern Florida are the three murals which form the background for the walls of the spacious lobby of the Palm Beach Post Office. Although the visitor is immediately aware of the artistic quality of the workmanship displayed on the murals by Artist Charles Rosen, he is seldom cognizant of the interesting details and story behind the painting of the Seminole Indians in their own village environment.

Charles Rosen has succeeded in capturing the quiet simplicity of the native Indian in his own setting and his success is probably due to the time he spent living in one of the native Seminole villages while making his preliminary sketches for the murals.

His three scenes of the village portray the every-day life of the Seminole, and he particularly shows how their mode of living has not changed for more than a hundred years. This tribe is the only one left in Florida today, as they fled to the Everglades in preference to living on the Indian Territory, which the government had set aside for them. In 1835, the Seminoles, under their chief, Osceola, refused to cede lands in Florida and to move to the Indian Territory, and as a result the United States was forced to send troops against them. The war continued until 1842, when the Indians were finally and completely subdued. In 1843, about 4,000 were removed to form one of the Five Nations in the Indian Territory, but the ones who fled to the Everglades still maintain themselves, unconquered. The artist has brought out three ways that they maintain themselves, as in one of the small scenes, an Indian fisherman is painted as he prepares to get into his dugout, while in the other, two hunters are shown examining their catch of a wild turkey.

In the main setting of this mural, which deals chiefly with a typical native scene, Mr. Rosen has shown the colorful clothing and the unusual hair style of the Seminole women, and has also included the native hut, consisting of little more than a wooden platform with a thatched roof as the covering.

In his mural of the ocean, the artist either accidentally or with forethought has portrayed two of the reasons that have made Palm Beach the colorful spot it is today—namely, the wild, rugged beauty of the ocean itself, and the shore line with its wind-strewn vegetation, including palm trees which have withstood the ocean successfully for years. In contrast to this, in his other mural, is the cultivated beauty of the lake and shoreline, with its systematic plantings of the stately Royal Palm tree and the less hardy shrubs which are nonetheless beautiful.

In the painting of his murals, the artist has used oil on canvas, but he has done this so delicately and subtly that it suggests pastels. A light molding framing the pictures blends in with both the paintings and the light buff interior of the post office. He painted these murals for the post office through the section of Painting and Sculpture of the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department six years ago. The artist, who is a landscape painter of note, was born in Westmoreland County, Pa., on April 28, 1878, and studied art at the National Academy of Design and at the New York School of Art. He has won many honors for his paintings, including the first prize at the Columbus (Ohio) Art League in 1926.

DOES THAT 'DATE' YOUR WILL?

YOUR WILL becomes "dated" whenever it fails to express your current wishes—and does not include the most effective provisions for carrying them out. Only by frequently reviewing your Will can you be sure that it keeps abreast of changes in family circumstances and stands ready to meet the new problems affecting estate settlement. When you make a Will—or when you make changes in one already drawn—see your lawyer. If you suspect that your Will has become "dated," seek his advice before the New Year gets older.

In selecting the executor to settle your estate, we hope you will talk over its problems with us. Our constant experience with executorship and trusteeship details may be valuable to you now—and doubly valuable to your heirs and legatees in the future.

Cottage Colony

Society Life

IN THE PAST, the first days of February were usually called "midseason." Today, the season reaches a peak during this month, but its duration is longer—and so the social events continue to hold the spotlight well into late April with members of the Palm Beach cottage colony. Looming ahead are some outstanding musical events which will be preceded and followed by much entertaining. The concert by Helen Jepson, sponsored by the Society of the Four Arts, at the Everglades Club on the 28th, will attract Palm Beach society en masse. Now in the brief past is the gala Silver Anniversary dinner dance, held February 8 at the Everglades Club, which also brought forth hundreds of winter colonists to celebrate the occasion.

One of the interesting luncheon parties recently was that given by Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr. at "Casa del Pastor," to honor Gen. J. Ernest Smith, of Wilmington, Delaware, and The Breakers, who celebrated his 95th birthday. This luncheon is an annual affair and brings together octogenarian and nongenarian friends of the honored as well as the host. Mr. Shepard, Jr., who is now 88 years of age. Other guests present at the luncheon included Mr. and Mrs. Nathan D. Bill, Mrs. Annie Breniser, Messrs. Giraud Foster, William M. Wadsworth, Charles Sumner Woolworth, William McMaster Mills, William H. Donner, Henry J. Hinde, Edward R. Shearson, George Skinner, Edward D. Stair, Fred Ward.

Among recent arrivals for the season is Andrew Jergens, who is now in residence at "Villa Marandi, on Via Belaria. Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Vere-Smith are at their South Ocean Boulevard house for the season. Returning to their Jungle Road residence after a wedding trip to Havana, Cuba, were Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Bartlett, Jr.

Mr. F. Bartholomay Jelke arrived several days ago to spend the season with his father, Mr. Frazier Jelke, at their South Ocean Boulevard residence. Here for the winter is Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, of Washington, D. C., who has leased the Leis house on Pendleton Avenue. Now in residence at "Casa Bendita" are Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps, who arrived from their plantation near Tallahassee.

Among the interesting dinner parties given at resort villas was that of Dr. and Mrs. Leland Eggleston Cofer, at "Capriccio," to honor her cousin and houseguest, Countess Koutouzow Tolstoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald H. Dempsey were hosts to a number of friends recently at their El Bravo Way villa in observation of their 22nd wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick and their daughter, Miss Emily Davie, entertained at a dinner party at "Casa Alexando" recently. And the residence of Mrs. C. Henry Buhl on El Vedado was the setting for another dinner party at which several of her resort friends were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Alfred Smith were guests at "Wau-Ke-Sha" on Sea Breeze Avenue at an informal buffet supper to honor Mrs. Yvonne Appel. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hayward Durkee entertained at a tea at "Casa Maudena" to honor Mr. and Mrs. John McDevitt, of Providence, who are at The Breakers for the season.

Many members of the resort's Boston colony were guests at a recent luncheon at "Beretania" given by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Howes. Mrs. Claude K. Boettscher entertained several friends at a luncheon at "Southwood" several days ago and the Seaspray Avenue home of Mrs. Nathan D. Bill was the setting for a similar affair recently. who has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Leland Eggleston Cofer at "Copricio." Countess Tolstoy, a noted war worker and recipient of many decorations for her hospital work in France, is pictured in the uniform of the American Women's Hospital Reserve Corps. She has been active in organizing the Palm Beach chapter of the group.

Holmes was hostess at a luncheon at her home on South County Road to honor Mrs. Alexander Paul and Mrs. William McK. Barbour, of The Breakers. A luncheon and swimming party at their North Ocean Boulevard villa was given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn for many of their Palm Beach friends.

A dinner to honor Col. Carl Truesdell Jr., Col. Clarence West, of Washington, D. C., and Col. Cortland Johnson, commanding officer of Caribbean wing headquarters, was given by Major and Mrs. Theodore Hardeen Jr. at their residence on El Vedado Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster were hosts at a dinner party at "La Cabana" on South Ocean Boulevard, later attending the backgammon tournament at the Everglades Club. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Rufus W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G Kay, Mr and Mrs Alexander H Rutherford, Mr and Mrs. Clifford Vail Brokaw, and Mrs. James H. Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Donner entertained at a luncheon to honor Mrs. Mark W. Clark, wife of the famed Lieutenant General, who spoke here before the Palm Beach Round Table.

Mr. and Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau were hosts at a delightful "at home" at "Villa Today," Via Bellaria, honoring the members of the Board and Committee of St. Mary's Hospital, and the Active, Associate and Honorary Medical Staffs at that institution.

Numerous members of the resort social set dropped in during the afternoon, from four-thirty until six-thirty. Tea was served on the lovely terrace overlooking Lake Worth.

Among the members of the Board present were Mrs. R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont, Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien, Dr. and Mrs. Daniel McCarthy, Mrs. James H. Kennedy, Rev. Patrick D. O'Brien, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Mrs. Byron D. Miller, Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, Mrs. F. Worthington Hine, Princess Constance Pignatelli, Mrs. Rogers Denckla, Mrs. Eric Loder, Mrs. Donner Winsor, Mrs. Bertram Taylor, Mrs. Lorenzo Woodhouse, Mrs. Henry Ittleson, Mrs. Thomas O'Gorman, Mrs. Edward D. Stair, Mrs. William H. Donner, Mrs. Clegg Monroe, Mrs. Frank Speno, Jr., Miss Mae E. Andrews, Mrs. Daniel Downey, Mrs. Phillip C. Kauffmann, Mrs. William Haywood, and the Messrs. Joseph F. Gunster, J. Leo Gleason, W. Terry Gibson, Philamon Dickinson, Richard L. Ray, F. A. Daly and J. B. Sullivan.

Mrs. Worrall Clarke was hostess at tea recently at her home on Sea Breeze Avenue honoring her mother, Mrs. M. B. Worrall, of Washington, D. C., who is her houseguest. The guests included Mrs. Samuel A. Moody, Mrs. Rosa Lewis Williams, Mrs. James E. Douglas, Mrs. Charles Dregge, Mrs. C. H. Perkins, Mrs. John H. Tripp, Mrs. George A. Bates, Mrs. Maurice M. McGrath, Mrs. Clara Bates, Mrs. Henry Paulson, Miss Phyllis Paulson, Mrs. Merrit Paulson, Mrs. J. W. Farrar, Mrs. Frank Jones, Mrs. Edward C. Oelsner, Mrs. Clyde Pelton, Mrs. Eleanor P. Shaw, Mrs. Byron Simonson, Mrs. Erling Espedahl, Mrs. B. D. Cole, Mrs. Martha Latham and Mrs. Blanche Woodall.

Palm Beach Round Table Centre

Soldiers Round Table discusses Current Affairs at Bywater Lodge

OF WIDESPREAD INTEREST in the Palm Beaches is the announcement from the Palm Beach Round Table that a headquarters and center for service men and women will be opened at the former Embassy Club at the corner of South Lake Trail and Royal Palm Way on February 17, inaugurating a series of events planned especially for members of the armed forces.

The Embassy Club, which has been closed for 13 years, is owned by Col. Edward R. Bradley, noted sportsman and philanthropist, who has generously given the use of the Club to the Round Table to carry on their outstanding work of providing a place where service men and women may meet.

ENTRANCE TO THE NEW PALM BEACH ROUND TABLE CENTER
Showing the splendor of architectural ornament which enhances the huge doors of the Embassy Club.

The Club is said to have been built at a cost of approximately $200,000 and has long been a resort landmark for its traditional architecture and surrounding tropical beauty.

Features of the new center include a spacious patio with flowering vines, open to the warm rays of the Florida sunshine. There is an open portico with a platform for orchestras as well as places for such games as ping pong, darts, and backgammon. A large music room with a huge fireplace opens with broad glass doors into the patio—and there is a “browsing” room where service folks will find books, newspapers, magazines, and writing materials.

Marking the opening of the Palm Beach Round Table Center on February 17 will be a dance for soldiers and sailors stationed in nearby camps and bases. For the month of March three dances are scheduled, two for service men on March 3 and 17, and a Junior Assembly, March 31, when school and college students are in Palm Beach for spring holiday recesses.

Supplying music for these social functions will be orchestras from Boca Raton and Morrison Field and it is expected that the Boca Raton Glee Club, which entertained with a concert at Bywater Lodge last season, will present another such program at the new Center this year. Other musical programs planned include Sunday afternoon community singing, occasionally highlighted by solo renditions by talented soldier-artists. As in the past, Mrs. Pearl Adams will be in charge of these Sunday afternoon musical programs.

Another feature of special programs at the new Center will be the honor guest speakers from the Palm Beach Round Table. Several of the lecturers last season gave informal talks at Bywater Lodge, for 10 years a gathering place and headquarters for Round Table special events, and which has also served since war as a Round-Table-sponsored center for service men, now relinquishing its facilities to the more centralized and adaptable surroundings of the famous Embassy Club. Those who spoke before the Round Table last season and gave talks for service men at the Lodge included Major Seversky, Eric Johnson, Colonel Furlong and Colonel Kight. This season Ruth Draper, noted character actress, who presented a program of original sketches at the Everglades Club, also gave a performance at the Coast Guard Training Station for RAF boys stationed at Clewiston, as well as Spars and sailors. Mrs. Mark Clark, another Round Table speaker and wife of the famous Commanding General of the Fifth Army, addressed a large group at Morrison Field. With the Embassy Club as a new meeting-place for service men, future speakers will be able to talk of service men and women at the Center.

BROWSING ROOM

A luxurious lounge of the former Embassy Club, now to be used as a "browsing" room for service men and women.

The Palm Beach Round Table has long been an important part of the resort's cultural life, originating some years ago in 1932-33 when lectures were given at The Breakers and at Bywater Lodge, formerly the Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea, on North Lake Trail at Tangier Avenue. Later the group interest expanded and lectures were presented at the Palm Beach villas of many members. So many are now permanent members of the organization that the Everglades Club is now the place of each lecture.

Funds procured by the Round Table go to establish scholarships for outstanding college students of many countries to meet together and study problems of current world affairs, preparing themselves for effective work in the future. For 20 years the Students' International Union—as it was named—has created an Institute of World Affairs, making it possible for students to learn the attributes of cooperative study, work and recreation.

Until 1939, the outbreak of war, the meeting-place of the Institute of World Affairs was Geneva, Switzerland, where many visiting statesmen were present to inspire them with their leadership. For the past five years, Salisbury, Conn., has been the setting for the eight-week seminar for 35 students, carefully selected on the basis of scholarship and leadership, to meet and study at the Institute of World Affairs. Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden is president of the Institute and also president of the Palm Beach Round Table, and it is through her efforts and those of her late husband, Alexander M. Hadden, that students from all parts of the world are now able to share the round tables, under direction of Dr. J. Martin Klotsche, Sir Norman Angell and Dr. William Y. Elliott, Round Table speakers and leaders.

Officers of the Palm Beach Round Table are: Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, honorary president; Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, president; the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest and Madame Louis Jacques Balsan, honorary vice-presidents; Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell, Mrs. Charles S. Davis and Mrs. Parker W. Whittemore, vice-presidents; Mrs. Harold W. Sweatt, secretary, and Mr. John Shepard, Jr., treasurer.

Members of the special committee for the new center at the Embassy Club include: Mrs. Harold Fowler, Mrs. William H. Cluett, Mrs. George Elkins, Mrs. W. Longfellow Foulke chairman of committee on refreshments; Mrs. Benjamin Rogers, Mrs. Joseph W. Wear, Mrs. Alexander M.

Hadden, Mr. Arthur Bradley Campbell and Mr. Clyde Pelton.

Serving on the library committee are: Miss Phyllis Paulson, chairman; Miss Belle Gurnee, Mrs. Paul Healy, Mrs. Samuel Heilner, Miss Frances Howell and Miss Eleanor Poole.

Hostesses for this season include: Mrs. W. Longfellow Foulke, Mrs. Helen Cargill, Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, Mrs. Matthew T. Mellon, Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, Mrs. Francis L. V. Hoppin, Mrs. William McMaster Mills, Mrs. John Cary Spring, Mrs. Parker W. Whittemore, Mrs. Edgar Bryan, Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, Mrs. Theodore Griggs, Miss Carolyn Trippe, Mrs. John B. Townsend, Mrs. Edward H. Sibley, Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton, Miss Joanna Fortune and Miss Paula Uihlein.

Junior hostesses include Misses Margaret Bitting, Marilyn Prudden, Gloria Kaufmann, Joan Seaman, Diva Flanagan, Phyllis Paulson, Mrs. George Randall, Mrs. Comer Kimball, and members of the Palm Beach Junior College.

There are large numbers of service men in the Palm Beaches over the week-ends, hitchhiking from near-by camps or coming by train and bus. Though the number changes daily, there are about 8,000 men at Boca Raton, 2,700, including civilian personnel, at Morrison Field, and 28,000 in the Naval Training Station at Fort Pierce. Many of the naval cadets at Fort Pierce are recent graduates of high school, from 17 to 21 years of age. In addition, many RAF boys come each week from Clewiston and some from Fort Lauderdale and other camps.

The Breakers

PROVING EXCEEDINGLY POPULAR with guests of The Breakers and their friends in the resort colony are the Thursday evening programs in Cocoanut Grove featuring special entertainment. The first such night was inaugurated when Walter Miller and his orchestra presented a diverse program, also marking the debut at The Breakers of Anna Reichl, lyric soprano, who has been featured during the afternoon tea dances and evening affairs since that time.

Entertaining at the hotel continues to include numerous dinner parties, cocktail parties and teas in Cocoanut Grove, also luncheons in the lovely circular dining room overlooking the ocean.

One of the outstanding social events of the latter part of January was the birthday dinner of Gen. J. Ernest Smith, who observed the 95th anniversary of his natal day by entertaining a number of his long-time friends. His guests, seated at a floral bedecked table in red and white color motif, included. Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr. of Boston, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Ruby R. Vale of Milford, Del.; Mr. and Bode and Mr. George Skinner, Chicago; Mr. William M. Wadsworth of New York; Mrs. Bingham Plunkett, Greenwich, Conn.; Mr. Charles Sumner Woolworth of Scranton, Pa., and Mr. Henry Hinde, Toledo, Ohio.

Among the many luncheons given at The Breakers was that of Mrs. Clyde Pelton of Tangier Avenue to honor her sister, Mrs. G. G. Hoag, here from California. Other guests included Mrs. William A. Daly, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, Mrs. Ralph B. Rogers, Mrs. George A. Nicol, Mrs. Lester Corya, Mrs. James R. Sprinkle, Mrs. Earl Coots, Mrs. William Webster, Mrs. Nelson Davis, and Mrs. Margery Petro.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Henry Pelzer entertained at a dinner for their houseguests, Mrs. Albert V. Weber and Mrs. Andrew Steele.

Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton entertained at a luncheon at The Breakers recently for Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, Mrs. William Cummings Fisher, Mrs. Engelbert Neus, Mr. Julian Detmer, Mr. Frederick Small, and Mr. C. Percival Dietsch.

Arriving recently for the season were Mr. and Mrs. John E. Judson, of New York, for many years members of The Breakers winter colony.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Grant, who formerly were members of the resort cottage colony, have arrived at The Breakers for a visit of several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Grant have been spending the season at Delray Beach.

Joining the Bay State colony at the hotel were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graham, of Cambridge, Mass., accompanied by their daughter, Miss Virginia Graham.

Mrs. Clifford Lilley, of Saginaw, Mich., is here for her annual season sojourn. Also returning to The Breakers, where she has spent many seasons, was Mrs. Hugh J. Mc-Birney, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Selah B. Masten and their daughter, Mrs. Joseph Kirsch, of Pelham, N. Y., have arrived for an all-season visit at The Breakers. With them were Mr. and Mrs. George M. Pettee, of Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Arriving from Cincinnati, Ohio, was Mr. Robert S. Stewart. Also here for a visit of several weeks is Mrs. Fred Briggs Dalzell, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Falvey and Mrs. Thomas Murray arrived from Boston for their usual visit of several weeks at The Breakers. They have spent many winters here.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Von Elm, of New York, will spend several weeks here.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Hamel and family, of Haverhill, Mass., are here for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Denton, of New York, have arrived for their annual sojourn.

Miss Ruth Thompson Wallace, of Saratoga, was welcomed for her usual stay of several weeks and later expects to be joined by her uncle, Judge James Leary, also of Saratoga.

Mr. A. P. Giannini, of San Francisco, for many winters a member of the resort hotel colony, is at The Breakers for the season, as is Mr. John F. Tinsley, of Worcester, Mass., another longtime guest at the hotel.

Mrs. Harrington Mills was hostess at tea to Miss Inez Graham, Miss Evelyn Eckes, Mrs. Miriam Graham, Mrs. Donna Harter, Mrs. Robert H. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Cork, Mrs. Irene Corlett, Mr. William Shawcross and Mr. Fred Gaskins.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vose of the villa colony gave a tea in Cocanut Grove at which their guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Penn Breeding, Mrs. E. M. Shipley, Mr. and Mrs. William Knight Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Zeder and Mr. Hassard Short.

Resorters In The Armed Forces

YOUNG men and women of Palm Beach are, in this third year of war, scattered throughout the globe, serving this country as members of the armed forces. Many of the resort's international set also have members of their families serving with our Allies. Occasionally a familiar face reappears on the scene on leave from army or navy duties, welcomed back to the resort by his many friends.

A recent visitor here was Lt. Comdr. Arnold W. Chapin, USNR, who has been overseas since the fall of 1943. Son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin of the Everglades Club, Lieutenant Commander Chapin has spent many winters in the resort prior to war. He was officially commended by Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of the 12th Fleet, for his contribution during the invasion of France in his capacity as commander of many landing ships and craft of the 11th Amphibious Force. The commendation entitles Chapin to wear the commendation ribbon. Lieutenant Commander Chapin and his wife, the former Camelia Scott Donovan of Palm Beach, are in Washington, where he awaits reassignment.

Palm Beach Hotel

RUTH LANDI, the "personality plus" singer at the Palm Beach Hotel, is attracting many outside parties to the Jungle Club and West Patio where she is featured nightly during the cocktail hour and later in the evening. She is particularly apt in gay, intimate lyrics, ballads and current song hits done in her own inimitable style.

At the recent weekly gala dinner-dance in the main dining room the employees provided the entertainment, several of whom were formerly performers or studied for the stage.

Recent arrivals at the hotel include. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Burchett of Crestwood, N. Y., Lt. and Mrs. D. W. Clark of Washington, D. C., Lt. Agnes S. Mortimer of Tallahassee, Fla., who has joined Mrs. David McDonough; Mrs. E. R. Field and her daughter, Mrs. Ray Kingswood of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Judge James E. McDonald of New York City, Mrs. M. L. Holland of East Orange, N. J., who has joined Mrs. Mary Hanley; and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Daly of Gladstone, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. O'Brien of Medford, Mass., have arrived at the Palm Beach Hotel for their usual winter visit. Others there are. Philip Kelly of Burlington, Vt., Miss Verene Conklin of Leonia, N. J., Joseph Coleman of Philadelphia, Mrs. Ernest Gomory of Great Neck, L. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Costello of West Roxbury, Mass.

The President's Birthday Ball in the West Patio of the Palm Beach Hotel was a huge success with the atmosphere contributing much to the gaiety. Colored lights festooned the palms and lion's head fountains murmured on three sides. Pete Miller's orchestra played for dancing. The ever-charming Ruth Landi sang ballads and current hits with several request encores. Mrs. Ernest Gomory and Mrs. Violet Frank announced the total of the Infantile Paralysis Drive.

Recent arrivals include: Charles F. Tobin of Bar Harbor, Me., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCann of Brooklyn, and Monsignor G. W. Tierney of New York City.

In a recent party in the West Patio were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Reichelt, Miss Lea Garvin, Mrs. Violet Frank, Miss Dorothy Reese, and three British officers, Capt. H. G. Muggenridge of Washington, D. C., Capt. Kenneth P. Gray of New York City and Capt. C. E. Jones of Washington, D. C. They are passing a ten-day furlough at the Palm Beach Hotel.

Games conducted by Miss Lea Garvin, social director, is one of the attractions Wednesday evenings in the lounge at the Palm Beach Hotel. Thursday night is the weekly gala dinner-dance with entertainment from Miami. Ruth Landi, chanteuse, is featured at the cocktail hour and after dinner in the Jungle Club. Friday night is games night and a get-together dance with novelties and prize dances take place Saturday evenings in the west patio, weather permitting.

Recent arrivals at the Palm Beach Hotel include: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCann of Brooklyn, Mrs. J. L. Redmond of New Rochelle, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Burchett of Crestwood, N. Y., Mrs. E. R. Field and her daughter, Mrs. Ray Kingswood of Grosse Pointe, Mich., Mrs. Mary Janley of East Orange, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. John J. Daley of Gladstone, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Corrigan of Norberth, Pa., Miss Juliet Gregory of Forest Hills, L. I., the Rev. J. Hickey of Vineland, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. D. M. McCarroll of Cleveland, Ohio, James R. Murphy of New York City.

Whitehall

THE SPRING SEASON is at its zenith at beautiful Whitehall. Recent events have included celebrations in honor of Valentine's Day, Lincoln's Birthday, and a style show, presented by the Martha Shop.

Since the hotel opened, there has been no time for ennui, for the continuous program of entertainment provided for the guests have endowed the word vacation with a new and delightful meaning.

One of the entertainment features offered was a showing of the Clark Gable film, "Combat America." This was shown, following its premiere at the First National Bank, through the courtesy of the bank and the U. S. Treasury Department. Guests assembled in the beautiful Flagler library, where two showings were arranged so that everyone would have an opportunity to view this famous film, actors of which scored a distinct hit with Whitehall guests. These actors were not Hollywood stars—with the exception, of course, of Mr. Gable—but were members of the 31st Bomber Group of the AAF. Gable was assigned by Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold as producer of the film. Filmed in color, it took the spectators through from the early training days in Colorado, the first take-offs from the air base in England, and across the channel, to major targets in Germany, France, Holland and Belgium. way to the target, over the target and on the return trip.

Tea dansants in the Jardin Royal continue as "musts" on the Palm Beach social calendar. Recently those attending were electrified to see none other than Edward G. Robinson, the movie star among those who were dancing to the music of Sammy Eisen and his orchestra. At that very time his name was up in lights over the marquee of a local cinema palace. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson it was learned had come up from Miami with a party of friends and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sonnabend for cocktails and dinner. Mrs. Robinson, an author, is a most attractive woman with soft dark hair waved to her shoulders. As the evening was brisk, she wore a luscious looking mink coat. The "Little Caesar" of the movies looks just exactly like his pictures.

Another thrill enjoyed by Whitehall guests was the talk given by Gabriel Heatter, world-famous commentator, on "After Berlin, What?" This was an informal talk, but was packed full of trenchant truths.

Those who had their radios turned on early in the month and heard Milton Berle quip that if Gabriel Heatter was listening in, he wished he'd send his last name up there, had to smile. Because that very same night Florida was having some of its "unusual" weather. The Heatters are devotees of the Sun and Surf Club.

Myrus, the man with the X-ray eyes, is the current attraction at Whitehall; both amusing and amazing those who attend the tea dansants and the supper dancing. Myrus answers questions which have been written on a slip of paper, folded over, and signed with the writer's initials. Myrus has an excellent sense of humor, along with discernment.

Recent arrivals at Whitehall who will make lengthy stays include Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reade of New York, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. T. Strauss and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Block of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes of Jamaica, L. Seminole Indians In Florida

WHERE THE AFRIMOBILES now roam about Palm Beach, the Efas, Ursleys and Pennywas were chased by ancestors of Dr. Tommy, Momma Tommy, Tony Tommy, Jack Tommy, Big Jack Tommy, Big Ben Frank, Willie Jumper, Willie Willie, Ada Tiger, Little Cat and Tiger Jumper.

Before you suspect us of being hepcats and creating a language all our own, let us hasten to explain that efas, ursleys and pennywas are merely Seminole Indian names for dogs, cats and turkeys and that Dr. Tommy and Momma Tommy are the parents of a large Seminole Indian family.

Long before men's shirts began taking on all colors of the rainbow, Big Jack Tommy and other Seminole braves were wearing clothes which made the present garments seen in the windows along Worth Avenue pale by comparison.

Before Columbus discovered America, Palm Beach was the home of the Carib, a fierce six-foot Indian, who was just as mean and nasty a cutthroat as could be found anywhere. The fact that Caribs live in what is now Palm Beach was proven by Indian mounds which were uncovered on North Ocean Boulevard, just south of the Country Club.

Just what caused the Carib to leave Florida, is rather clouded in history books, some historian saying that the Spaniards chased them, while others declare they just naturally disappeared. However, the turn of the eighteenth century found Seminole Indians erecting their frond-thatched huts from the palmetto along what was later to become one of the world's most famous streets, Worth Avenue.

The original Seminole was a Creek, coming to northern Florida from the lower stretches of Georgia. In Florida after intermingling with other tribes, he became known as the Seminole or 'Wild People.'

Ponce de Leon's men must have given the Seminole a rather rough time of it, for the Spaniards changed them from a rather peaceful people to a war waging group.

Under the leadership of the great chief Osceola, they gave the Spaniards plenty of trouble, but when Osceola was finally captured and tossed into Fort Marion at St. Augustine, organized resistance to the Spanish was broken and the Seminoles began drifting southward.

Many poems have been written about the sad life of Chief Osceola, who made a desperate effort to escape from Fort Marion but who in trying to flee, fell 40 feet into a moat and smashed a foot.

Although the Seminoles have had such famous chiefs as Osceola, Tallahassee and Billy Bow Legs, they are not as most persons believe, governed by a chief in ordinary times.

Only in time of war, rather only during times when the Seminole is on the war path are they governed by a chief.

In ordinary times the various groups have a head man or leader. Their form of government is close to that of a democracy with the head man ruling over a senate of older men.

At present, there are three groups of Seminoles, one group the Cow Creeks can be found from Ft. Pierce down to Ft. Lauderdale and Ft. Drum. The Missoconkis and Choc Taws are located along the Tamiami Trail. The Cow Creeks are followers of one branch of sacred medicine while the Choc Taws and Missoconkis believe in another.

For many years the Seminoles neither cared nor desired any part of the white man's civilization, preferring to hunt and live in the virgin wilds of the Everglades.

Many Floridians are well versed in the ways of the Seminole but one Palm Beach resident, practically lived with them as a youngster and has their confidence as far as any white man has it.

Sixty years ago his father operated a general store at Ojus and the Seminoles traded at the store.

"At first, those Seminoles scared the daylights out of me," Mr. Wall laughingly declared while relating stories of his early memories of the Seminoles. "They'd walk into the store wearing weird looking hats and holding up alligator skins, wild turkeys, turtle eggs, rattlesnakes, skunks or whatever they had to trade.

"In my youthful eyes they were big wild, savage scary looking creatures. When I'd see one coming near the store, I'd hide under the counter, where they could not see me but I could see them. In those days, they could not speak English and all trading was done by signs and pointing."

Later Mr. Wall became friendly with them and often hunted and fished with them and slept in their villages. Today, if a Seminole from Ft. Lauderdale, Ft. Drum or Brighton comes to Palm Beach county, he and his friends seek the home of Mr. Wall, where they sleep upon his lawn or if the weather is inclement they sleep on the floor of the sleeping porch.

"While the Seminole holds to many of his ways," Mr. Wall stated, "he has come a long way, in the last 50 years. The Indian school at Brighton is filled with young Indians who learn quickly. Many of their fathers own cattle.

"Perhaps the biggest indication that the Indian is accepting the whiteman's civilization is the fact that many of them will now work for pay. Fifty years ago, an Indian would not for an instant, consider the idea of working. His squaw—as they do today—in most instances, did all the work while he hunted and fished deep in the virgin forests of the Everglades."

The big event in the lives of the Seminole is the yearly Corn Dance. This is held in the full moon in June. During this dance, the tribes get together and all trouble is ironed out.

"If a brave has done something which carries the death penalty," Mr. Wall said, "his case is discussed gravely and if he is found to be guilty he is put to death. None escape."

While the Caribs and other Indians bury their dead, the Strips of gaily-colored cloth sewn together in a horizontal pattern, form the clothes of these children of the Seminole tribe.

Seminole follow the strange custom of placing the deceased in a coffin, and then place it high in a tree.

Particular friends of Mr. Wall are members of the Tommy family, who belong to the Cow Creeks near Ft. Lauderdale.

"Tony Tommy was the head of that group and a particular friend of mine," Mr. Wall said. "When he died not long ago, he was succeeded by Big Ben Frank. Tony was a good leader, smart and level headed. The same can be said of Big Ben Frank."

Seminole are not inclined to carry on much of a conversation with the white man, especially the visitor from the north with the result that the visitor who attempts a conversation with a Seminole who may be selling trinkets has little success. This gives the visitor the impression that the Indian is stupid, but this is far from the truth.

In fact the Indian possesses much knowledge that the white man does not possess. He knows of an herb which is the equal or is superior to quinine, but he guards his secret well.

Mr. Wall had an idea that the government would welcome the substitute for quinine during the war but when he discussed it with his Indian friends they refused to talk.

Their manner of living in their villages is still primitive. They sleep on boards and cover themselves with a thin sheet, to ward off the chill of the night, which spreads over the Everglades. Few white men can erect a rain-proof shelter from the fronds of the palmetto, yet the Seminole's roof never leaks, no matter how violent the storm.

While government officials may believe that the Seminole is a fading race, Mr. Wall is of the opinion that since they are taking up the white man's civilization, they will survive for many years to come.

Though Seminole Indians live practically in the open with only palmetto thatched roofs over their heads, they are accepting the white man's civilization. Note the present day cooking utensils the squaws are using.

Pink has always been a romantic color and this charming evening gown designed by Mme. Juliette is fashioned of a luscious shade of deep, soft pink. Marquisette and lace are cleverly combined in the styling, which features a fitted bodice and billowing skirt. The tiny waistline illusion, so important in new Spring fashions, is accomplished here by the broad shoulder and full skirt treatment.

Resort Fashions

These two sunbathers know how to acquire a smart tropical suntan, without the sunburn. They are equipped with Rubinstein's "liquid sunshine" and sunburn oil. The former is a fragrant sun-protective—to get a smooth even tan; for those who don't care about oily concoctions.

White metallic faille, fashions this smart handbag, designed by Josef. A grand accessory for the bride—she could pin her flowers to the bag, for an informal wedding. The lovely diamond wedding ring of deep baguettes, is a perfect companion piece for the emerald-cut diamond engagement ring. Both are made of palladium.

—From Frank S. Hartley.

The fascinating new "winged victory" coiffure, by Elizabeth Arden. The swirls and ringlets cleverly contrived to resemble a crown of liberty—outlined in feather wings. Designed especially to accompany the exciting color harmony make-up by the same name. An ideal hair-do for Palm Beach gala nights!

SHADES OF GAY NINETIES! Hat pins are back with a vengeance and Van Cleef and Arpels have some that are equipped to serve as suit lapel pins too. The decorative tops of these gold accessories, in the shape of Venetian lamps, spheres, etc., are cleverly bejeweled, with diamonds, rubies, sapphires.

WILLOWS AND GOLD LACE! Merge for the decorative pattern of some lovely old Chinese Canton dinnerware. The beautiful blue of the willow pattern, contrasted with a gold lace border. From the varied and interesting collection of antiques at Plummer's.

SPRING FORECAST! The silk topcoat at Martha's, which may accompany daytime or evening clothes with equal fashion assurance. The heavy fabric is an effective "iridescent" checked pattern in black and bright blue. Styled after the lines of a naval officer's coat—big pockets and wide, detachable belt.

PICKLED! And carved, the smart looking wood wall scones at Worrell's—perfect for resort homes. Also, the bleached wood consoles (a pair of them), designed to flank fireplaces; smart for halls, foyers and the like. In the same category, the bleached and carved Chippendale-type mirrors.

FOR THE YOUNG FRY! Clever little sister and brother outfits, as styled by Shehadi; fashioned of washable cottons in delightful color schemes. Many of them hand-made and of imported materials. They cater to youngsters from infants to fourteen year olds.

FOOTPRINTS! Oversized footprints in blatant colors and hand-painted, are the decorative motif for a striking new beach scarf (which may also double for formal evening wear), designed by Clarepotter. Wide fringe borders finish the ends. Bonwit Teller has these.

WATERPROOF YOUR EYES! Helena Rubinstein's waterproof mascara is really tailor-made for sun and sea. When you use this unique eye make-up you can swim, bask in the sun, weep in the movies, or expose your eyes to any form of moisture without fear of losing glamour and poise.

PALE CHARTREUSE! This intoxicating color is much to the fore in the resort style picture. From the collection at Cunningham's—butcher linen tailored suit, styled with new high and scalloped neckline. For restaurant dining, a lace dress of the same shade, made with fitted bodice, full skirt and long sleeves. Posies at the low V-decolletage.

THE GLITTER OF SEQUINS! A striking flame red coat in the popular three-quarter length, with full tuxedo and cuffs of black sequins. To top afternoon or evening dresses. And—a black crepe short dinner dress with sequins as a dazzling trim for the bodice, short sleeves, belt and hemline. Mme. Mogabgab noted for dazzle and sparkle, has these smart items.

CROWN YOUR WRISTS! With platinum, studded with cabachon emeralds, baguette and round diamonds and rubies. These unusual bracelets are ultra-wide, in the shape of huge crowns and very, very chic. One for each arm—or just one! Noted at Trabert & Hoeffler-Mauboussin.

A BASKET OF CHOCOLATES! Sounds fabulous, but Rosemarie de Paris can fix it up for you. The baskets which may be used afterwards for sewing and such, are hand-made Mexican versions. May be filled with chocolates of various kinds, hard candies, mints, gems, bontons, marzipan, etc.

ORCHID PINK! Is the name for a luscious new color tone, as exploited by Mme. Juliette, in a good looking lame' evening gown. It features the popular draping in a novel version, dramatized with bustle-effect back and nude-effect midriff.

SHOPPING AND SIPPING! Finchley's has the novel distinction of making available to patrons a swank bar and cocktail lounge and two smart shops, under one roof. Here you can shop and sip, at the same time—or, shop and then relax amid colorful surroundings, plus a refreshing tall drink.

MATCH MATES! Many colonists like to ensemble slacks suits and frocks—same styling and materials for each. This novel idea may be carried out with the aid of the Margaret Newman shop, whose custom-made slacks have become a conversation piece here. The bare midriff is popular in this realm.

THREE SNOWFLAKES! To dramatize resort lapels or V-necklines. These are fashioned of gold and topped with spheres, which are studded with deep blue sapphires and diamonds. It is smart to wear a trio rather than just one. From Milton Fuller.

FROST! Is the name of one of the four finishes used for the Florida wood furniture. The others are driftwood, blonde and natural. The upholstering fabrics of sailcloth etc. are gay and colorful. The styling is modern. Florida Furniture Shop.

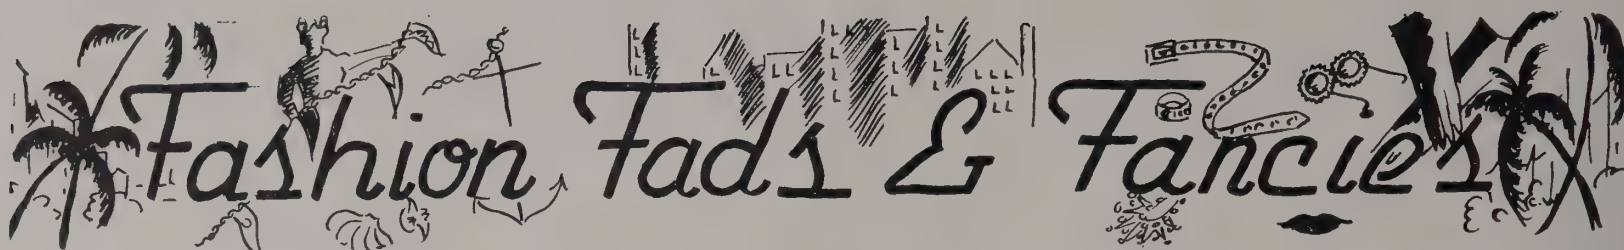

FRAME YOUR FACE! With an individualized coiffure. The Elizabeth Arden salon has a lot of new ideas on this subject. Designed in harmony with your features—and way of life.

TRI-COLOR! Merging of colors has always been typical of California and new ideas in sports clothes emanating from there feature three, four and more, gay colors effectively used for one frock. Such as the one-piece affair noted at the John W. Thomas shop, made of yellow, coral and aqua.

BUTTERFLIES ON YOUR EARS! These scintillating items from the Frank S. Hartley salon are made of diamonds mounted in platinum. You can add more glitter and dazzle by wearing a diamond necklace—marquise, baquette and round stones. A bowknot clip at one side; also of diamonds.

Wool gabardine is the medium for this chic dressmaker suit from the Martha shop. Note the clever ties at waistline, new high pockets and turned back cuffs. The color is May wine—a grand background tone for the colorful accessories of striped taffeta.

Fashion Fads & Fancies

WITH THE PALM BEACH social season in full swing, dazzling evening clothes and jewels are in the lime-light of fashion. Sleek and sophisticated versions, topped with luxurious furs—feminine and frilly interpretations made of laces and frothy materials.

The color chart this season includes all of the hues and tints of the rainbow, plus black and white. Combinations of color are also much in evidence—particularly startling color combinations, which spell chic.

"GOLF BALLS, REAL PRE-WAR golf balls . . . step up and purchase as many as you care to . . ."

It's too bad to wake a fellow out of a dream like that.

Members of the Palm Beach colony as well as all other golfers are finding "pre-war golf balls" just a memory. In order to play nowadays, one must either pay a premium or turn in an old ball before he can purchase a so-called retread. A retread is an old ball, recapped with a new cover . . . in other words, a rebuilt ball.

Professionals at the Palm Beach golf courses have been taking a chance on being called "wet blankets" so to speak by preaching a daily sermon—that there will be an ominous shortage of golf balls during the coming summer.

As a result of the sermons and warnings the golfers in the Palm Beach colony, where there has been much activity during early February, have been turning in old balls, every time they purchase a new one. Such action will of course help stave off the promised golf ball famine.

Though members of the Old Guard Society and golfers at the Everglades Club were extremely busy, the spotlight for early February was held by the ladies—God bless them—who staged their annual winter championship over the Palm Beach Golf Club course. The qualifying round was held on February 5 and attracted the largest field for many years.

The ladies, a great number of them came here from Miami where they competed in the Helen Lee Doherty competition. This tournament was filled with upsets, one of them being the defeat of Jane Crum Covington, of Orangeburg, South Carolina, who captured the title in the Palm Beach play in 1944.

Large galleries followed the players in the Palm Beach women's championship over the Palm Beach Golf Club course daily—galleries which were constantly "oohing and awwing" as the ladies split the middle of the fairways, with marvelous drives and dropped iron shots dead to the pin.

Surprising is a mild word for the game which women golfers play today. It was only a few years ago, figuratively speaking, that the ladies squealed with delight when they sliced one off the tee for thirty yards or conceded an eight-foot putt.

Today, they hit for 220, 230 and 240 off the tee and play iron shots like Leo Diegel did ten or fifteen years ago. As for conceding a putt, in tournament play today you'd have a better chance of getting a feminine star to part with her ration book.

While the women experts were playing over the Palm Beach Golf Club, members of the Everglades Club were staging many tournaments such as Tombstones and Kickers on Sundays and during the week.

At the same time Jack Ross, Everglades Club professional, announced that he had received a letter which stated that boys in service were badly in need of golf equipment. The letter came from a rest home operated by the Air Forces for combat crews for a seven-day rest. It stated in part:

"Five golf courses are near by and one is the club, at which the last Ryder Cup matches were played, so you know where I am. The boys are all eager to play, but there are only two sets of five clubs each and only two boys can play while the other 75 stand around hoping."

Although the popularity of golf cannot be hurt, professional Ross believes that the lack of youngsters now playing the game because of the war, will hurt in the future.

"Golf cannot be learned in a day," Ross declares. "If the war continues and the good players do not come back, it will take much time to develop new players and teachers."

Ross, a great player before the last war, believes that two or three years in service, especially active service, will cause the experts to lose their touch which few will ever regain.

"It's true that some of the boys will regain their old-time form to a certain extent, but the majority will find it difficult."

George Gordan, teaching professional at the Palm Beach Golf Club, agrees with Ross that the returning professionals and experts will find it difficult to regain their touch. Gordan has been teaching golf for many years.

"Golf is like playing a piano," Gordan says. "To be an expert, one must practice daily, week in and week out. When one stops playing and practicing, one's muscles stiffen and timing is lost."

Members at the Everglades Club have been urging the genial Jack Ross to stage his annual six-team play tournament earlier than usual this year.

The event is a riot of merriment and fun, since each contestant is allowed but one club. Captains are selected and they in turn choose five teammates. Members of the teams decide on the club each one will use, one player selecting a driver, another has his choice of a three or four wood, the third takes his or her choice of the two or three iron, the fourth takes a five iron, the fifth the nine iron and the sixth the putter. All play the same ball.

One of Maestro Ross's clever twists is that lots are drawn to determine which one will tee off on the first hole. The player with the putter often tees off. On the ninth tee, however, each player plays his own ball and the total is added to the team's score.

An exceptionally brilliant score was turned in at the Everglades Club during a Kickers tournament when Chris Dumphy, chairman of the golf and greens committee, negotiated the long course in 69 strokes, which is two under par.

Old Guards staged their second "Foursome" competition and keen play resulted. The Old Guards also entertained a team of eight golfers from Morrison Field and hard-fought matches resulted.

The Old Guards' Foursome play followed the annual Lake Worth tournament at the Palm Beach Golf Course. The classic was the 38th staged and was one of the most interesting from all angles.

For the first time in 38 years, the finals brought two out-of-town players together. Not only were they visitors, but they were from the same club, Spring Lake (N. J.) Country Club.

After thirty-seven holes of marvelous golf, J. Wolcott Brown emerged the victor one up over his clubmate, Bayard Beebe. Beebe was three up at the end of the morning round, but the afternoon round found Brown slowly gaining. The match was all even as they went to the thirty-sixth green. Here Wolcott had a marvelous chance to win, but missed a two-foot putt. However, a birdie four game him the honors when Beebe, after making a magnificent second shot over trees, flubbed a chip shot.

Florida golfers did not have much of a chance as Brown, who was in the lower bracket, and Beebe, in the top bracket, waded through all competition with ease.

Around the Palm Beach Country Club there have been rumors that Steve Ploudre and Walter Werk, two grand fellows and expert golf professionals, might meet Bob Hope and Bing Crosby in a war benefit exhibition, if it could be arranged.

The popular Ploudre denies knowing anything about such a match, but if it is staged, it would attract a gigantic gallery. Both Hope and Crosby are excellent golfers, shooting in the seventies. This is remarkable considering the fact that they are able to entertain the gallery and play at the same time.

WHILE GOLF AS USUAL has been holding the Palm Beach spotlight, tennis is not far behind, as every available court is filled during the daylight hours at the Everglades Club, the Bath and Tennis, and the Sun and Surf.

At the Everglades Club, Jim Kenney, tennis professional, has been having extremely large fields for his weekly Round Robins on Wednesday afternoons with the result that he has had to divide the field into two groups and send the winners in each group into a playoff.

Kenney has many excellent racquet wielders under his tutelage. Their game is extremely fast and aggressive, for Kenney believes that once a pupil has mastered the game to the best of his or her ability, an aggressive game should be played.

"As in all sports," Kenney declared, "the player who is aggressive and who takes the offensive is not only the most colorful, but also usually the winner. True, there are players who remain on the defensive and win, but the old saying holds good in tennis, war, or love, 'A good offense is the best defense.'"

While golf and tennis have been predominating in Palm Beach, swimming has been making a strenuous bid to hold the spotlight.

At the Seaspray, Scott Duns, former University of Southern California aquatic star and who toppled the 300 and 500-meter swim marks on the Coast in 1938 and 1940, has aroused much enthusiasm among those who find relaxation in the water.

In addition to teaching swimming in all its stages from the "first time in the water" to the advance stage of diving from a 75-foot tower, "Scotty," as he is popularly known, has twelve Seaspray youngsters who come to him for boxing instruction, since the aquatic star is also an excellent instructor in the manly art of self-defense.

At the start of the season the swimming coach had but five young swimmers under his tutelage, but this group has grown to forty. Many of them are already marvelous swimmers.

The pool at the Seaspray is ninety feet long and thirty-five feet wide. Scotty, who was born in Colombia, South America, and who has swum professionally with Buster Crabbe and other internationally known stars, believes that the local pool is the equal if not better than any pool the same size in the country.

The aquatic coach rates the Olympic at Los Angeles as one of the greatest tanks, especially for tower diving.

At The Breakers, Charles Norelius, another nationally known swimming coach and father of Martha Norelius, one time winner of the famous $25,000 Canadian marathon swim, has been busy with instructions, while at the Sun and Surf, where Pat Patina serves as swim coach, and at the Bath and Tennis, where Nathan Gardella has acted in the same capacity for years, there is much activity in the pools.

Instructor Gardella declared that there seems to be a desire on the part of the youngsters to learn the faster type of swim strokes. Gardella is an expert in all types of strokes, but one of his specialties is teaching the youngsters how to breathe correctly, especially while using the crawl strokes.

Early February found those yachtmen who had saved their gasoline tickets thankful that they did, for the waters of the Gulf Stream as they flowed north past The Breakers Hotel teemed with sailfish and marlin during the past two weeks.

Frank Turgeon, while fishing from his yacht, Irma, caught a blue marlin weighing 190 pounds. Many very large sailfish have been caught recently by Lou Parkinson, popular Palm Beach maestro and yachtsman who fishes for sailfish and never has to worry about gasoline rationing, for he has rigged his beautiful sailboat so that he can fish for sail with sail.

Sailfish have been so numerous, in fact, that the 10,000th sailfish certificate was issued recently for the Palm Beach waters.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Gunster, "El Cabana," boasts a tall octagonal tile roofed tower. Its double casements open to sea view and sunshine. The weather vane tells the exact direction of the wind. So do the palms in the patio below.

66 ABOVE ALL⁹⁹

IF, SOMEDAY WHILE CRUISING ALONG in the air just above tree tops, you keep your eyes focused about that high, dozens of architectural joys will reward you for your time . . . and gasoline, the TOWERS of Palm Beach, a rare delight!

Towers, in themselves are old enough to be important. In Palm Beach they are new enough to be unique.

Long, long before Palm Beach was sprouted, a tablet in 2700 B. C., recorded a tower on a stronghold. Its elevation provided a safe spot from which to hurl down arrows or stones upon an invading enemy.

The towers of Carcassonne, those of the Great Wall of China for defense, the Eiffel Tower (wireless station), the bells of the Campanile of Giotto's tower of Florence, the leaning tower of Pisa, the ancient clock tower of Montepulciano, Italy (with its life-sized figure to strike the hours on the roof bell) . . . each with its purpose of defending the inhabitants or urging them to use their time wisely!

Firearms and cannon abolished the defense use of towers but architects hung bells in them to summon the populace to church, children to school and citizens to their town meetings.

Many were used for lookout purposes, as the Widow's Walks on old mansions along our eastern coast. Sometimes they aided sun, moon, or star worshipers to be nearer the objects of their devotion. Even now in the Orient the Moslem from the tall, slender minaret, calls the followers of Allah to their knees.

Big Ben of London, bells in Bok tower and Florida's Jupiter Lighthouse proclaim from above the housetops, by sound and by light, that it is time for man to be joyous or cautious as the case may be.

Towers add height, dignity and grandeur to large buildings and mansions . . . they emphasize the importance of an entrance way, give balance or accent to broad, low buildings or bestow a spot of glamour to plain every day structures. To fortify body or spirit, the tower rises higher than the level of the domicile . . . it is the "above all," the most important dimension.

Palm Beach, product of the present century, with its Spanish trend of architecture, also perpetuates tower styles from many periods from Assyrian to American, without counting Irish round towers, firetowers, water towers, citadels, steeples and pagodas.

When Bethesda moved into the new church it did not destroy the old structure. This quaint building has been preserved in its lovely setting on North Lake Trail. The steep roof provides a suitable background for the colonaded portico which at one end becomes the broad octagonal, tower-like-porch in design. At the other end it adjoins the belfry tower which tapers independently from the ground base resembling the early Dutch Watermills that are found on Long Island. This structure really towers above the main edifice. Its octagonal walls, as well as the church, of weathered shingles with brown trim, forms a bit of antiquity in the midst of a mostly new town. The curving pyramidal roof suggests a Chinese pagoda flaring out from the upper slatted belfry.

The clock face, its hands and numerals, apparently independent of mechanism, placed high on the tower, perhaps is like the garden dial that "records only sunny hours" for this clock unshaded by trees faces the path of the sun.

Poinciana Chapel, the white clapboard church, nestles under the palms far back from County Road, all save the square flat roofed tower, is a symmetrical building centered by this prominence. The front entrance is gained at the top of the several steps. The decorative motif is accomplished by the white spindled balustrade which embroiders the front portico, its roof edge and the top of the tower. Approached from the front walk, the eye runs up the steps, over the portico to the top of the tower as naturally as the gray squirrel climbs the tree.

A right angled neighbor to St. Edwards, on Sunrise Avenue, is the Palm Beach Hotel, occupying most of the space between Sunrise and Park Avenues. Its buff four-story walls make a pleasing background for stately cocoanut palms. The canopied entrance on Sunrise almost in the center of the building, is accented by a pair of octagonal white round-top towers. These are open, to display the silvered bell that is suspended in each. The facade of limestone is decorated with bright colored tiles. White trim, red tiled roof, deep yellow awnings, wrought iron balconies, highlight the gay shops along the colonaded portion.

The about-a-dozen stories of famous Whitehall Hotel is a tower in itself compared with the original, lower building which is still as lovely as when it was the wonder mansion of Henry Morrison Flagler. The two buildings now form Whitehall. The twelfth story recessed from the other floors, provides a tower on top of this high building, its elegant pent house windows overlooking lovely Lake Worth.

The famous Biltmore Hotel, now the court of the Coast Guard Girls (Training Station for SPARS) is ruled on the inside by these efficient feminine Salts; on the outside, this handsome buff stucco hotel situated at the edge of Lake Worth is individualized by large towers near the ends of the building, that add balance and height to its twelve or so stories. These towers are square with arcaded triple windows on each side, each window possessing a balcony. The towers are finished by two-tiered tile roofs and open pointed cupolas. Three lower floors form a broad buttress effect that graduates the massiveness of the structure into the lines of the towers.

The mass of graceful cocoanut palms surrounding the huge building and its gardens serve to make a picture of rare tropical beauty and sturdy interesting architecture. If a visitor from Pittsburgh, Boston or New York grows too nostalgic for the sight of winter smoke pouring from a chimney, he should watch these towers. Sometimes one of them waves a huge black plume against the bright Florida sky. It is a strange sort of happening, but reminds the gazing one of how "unusual" it is to see smoke in Palm Beach.

The Breakers Hotel, built on the sea side of Palm Beach, has walls of rough buff stucco and travertine stone that complete themselves in two slender two-tiered tall towers of square lines. Urns adorn the lower tier at the corners, a flagstaff tops the low pyramidal roofs of the upper tier of each. Both sections have tall arched openings.

The huge nine-storied building is of Spanish architecture strongly flavored by Italian renaissance . . . in particular it was patterned from the Villa Medici in Rome.

The Breakers is the tallest landmark in contrast with its surroundings of broad golf links and residences. The eye in Palm Beach does not find an up and down skyline of rows of tall buildings and canyons but it does follow along in harmony of sea level and tree level. It is a long, tall look from the Florentine fountain at the majestic entrance way to the top of the twin towers, high against the vast blue sky.

On another corner of Sunrise Avenue and County Road the Sunrise Building faces exactly the corner but neither street. It presents a captivating view, especially to a traveler in the air who would at a glance, catch the charm of the several levels of roofs of this white stucco, red tiled structure. Over its main entrance the two-storied arch requires the height of the low tower to complete itself. Back of this the dome of pineapple-design bronze has acquired the green patina that adds another bit of color to this gay building and gay it is . . . royal blue awnings with a French color touch of purple bougainvillea about the blue and white spindled balustrade of the second floor terrace. This is the home of the Paramount Theatre and several fascinating shops. It is supposed to be a location for gaiety and it is every bit of that.

The beautifully situated building of the Davies Publishing Company, publishers of The Palm Beach Daily News and Palm Beach Life, divides its interest between County Road and Brazilian Avenue that meet at its front door. It is such a forthright well balanced building of Spanish trend, two towers, one at each end of the structure, give breadth and purpose, and the main tower over the entrance emphasizes the tall lines of the "come in" way and the arched balcony doors above it. The large, delightful editorial department and press rooms on the second floor and the shops and restaurant on the street floor have all the sun and air they care to enjoy.

The location of Palm Beach's Town Hall is nothing less than regal. There it stands in the center of the city and of County Road, where it can see and be seen by all. Even the streets accord it homage and flow to either side that Town Hall may enjoy the Fountain and a far view without interference.

It has all the dignity and grandeur that Spanish design stucco and tile can include and it is further adorned with two handsome towers that carry admiring eyes to about four stories in the air. One tower, square and flush with the building at the corner has triple colonaded arches with spindled balustrade to finish its flat roof. The other, also square, with one open arch on each side forms a pleasing contrast with its tall pyramidal curved roof. The larger lookout tower still performs that duty for it has on it a siren, a bell and an aerial ready to summon aid against any enemy.

At County Road and Worth Avenue, the V for V Canteen faces that corner with a tower above its welcoming door. It's like a smile added to a morning greeting . . . this over-the-door tower suggests a special graciousness.

The architect of the Everglades Club, the late Addison Mizner knew his Sir Christopher Wren lines and honored such by his plan for these several towers. The tall square one heightened by the well-placed chimney . . . the graduated tiered one and the dome all show the influence of the Wren as found on the Strand, London. Even the Golf House has the tower-touch with its heightened wall and small dome.

The Mizner square tower of Worth Avenue five or six stories above Via Mizner (that Spanish Way), houses a huge living-room-studio with many arched windows on each side. Just how it was possible to keep from gazing at lake, sky, sea and lovely estates visible from any of these windows, long enough to read a book or to make a drawing remains a sealed mystery.

"The Towers" (Atwater Kent) could just as well have been named The Castle, its massiveness, its towers with parapets and angle turrets, its staunch, very high walls all focus to one idea . . . the Castle of the Prince and Princess.

One of the charms of the Mrs. John F. Harris estate is the tallness achieved by its several stories and the high tower of about fifty-story height. White rough thick walls with parapets where the secure might peep far down at the enemy! Rather from a turret or from one of the many arched windows a view of the garden paths would be more in harmony with the charm of this lovely place on El Bravo Way.

One seems to have flown into the land of the Moors at "Celito Lindo," the estate of Mrs. James P. Donohue. The great allover-lace-motif wrought iron double doors center the handsome facade of multi-colored tiles. The pair of huge lanterns repeat the balance observed in the two low pyramidal trees beneath. The semi-cylindrical window of delicate iron lace, over the facade might easily be the observation point for determining whether one seeking entrance is lover, friend or foe. There is a tiled floor terrace on the second floor with parasols for shade and wicker lounge chairs for sun. A sun deck at third floor level where one can look eye to eye at Royal Palm fronds. Yet the top of the great square tower reaches farther toward the sky. Its five (in each side) screened arched windows may look far out to sea or straight out to your passing plane.

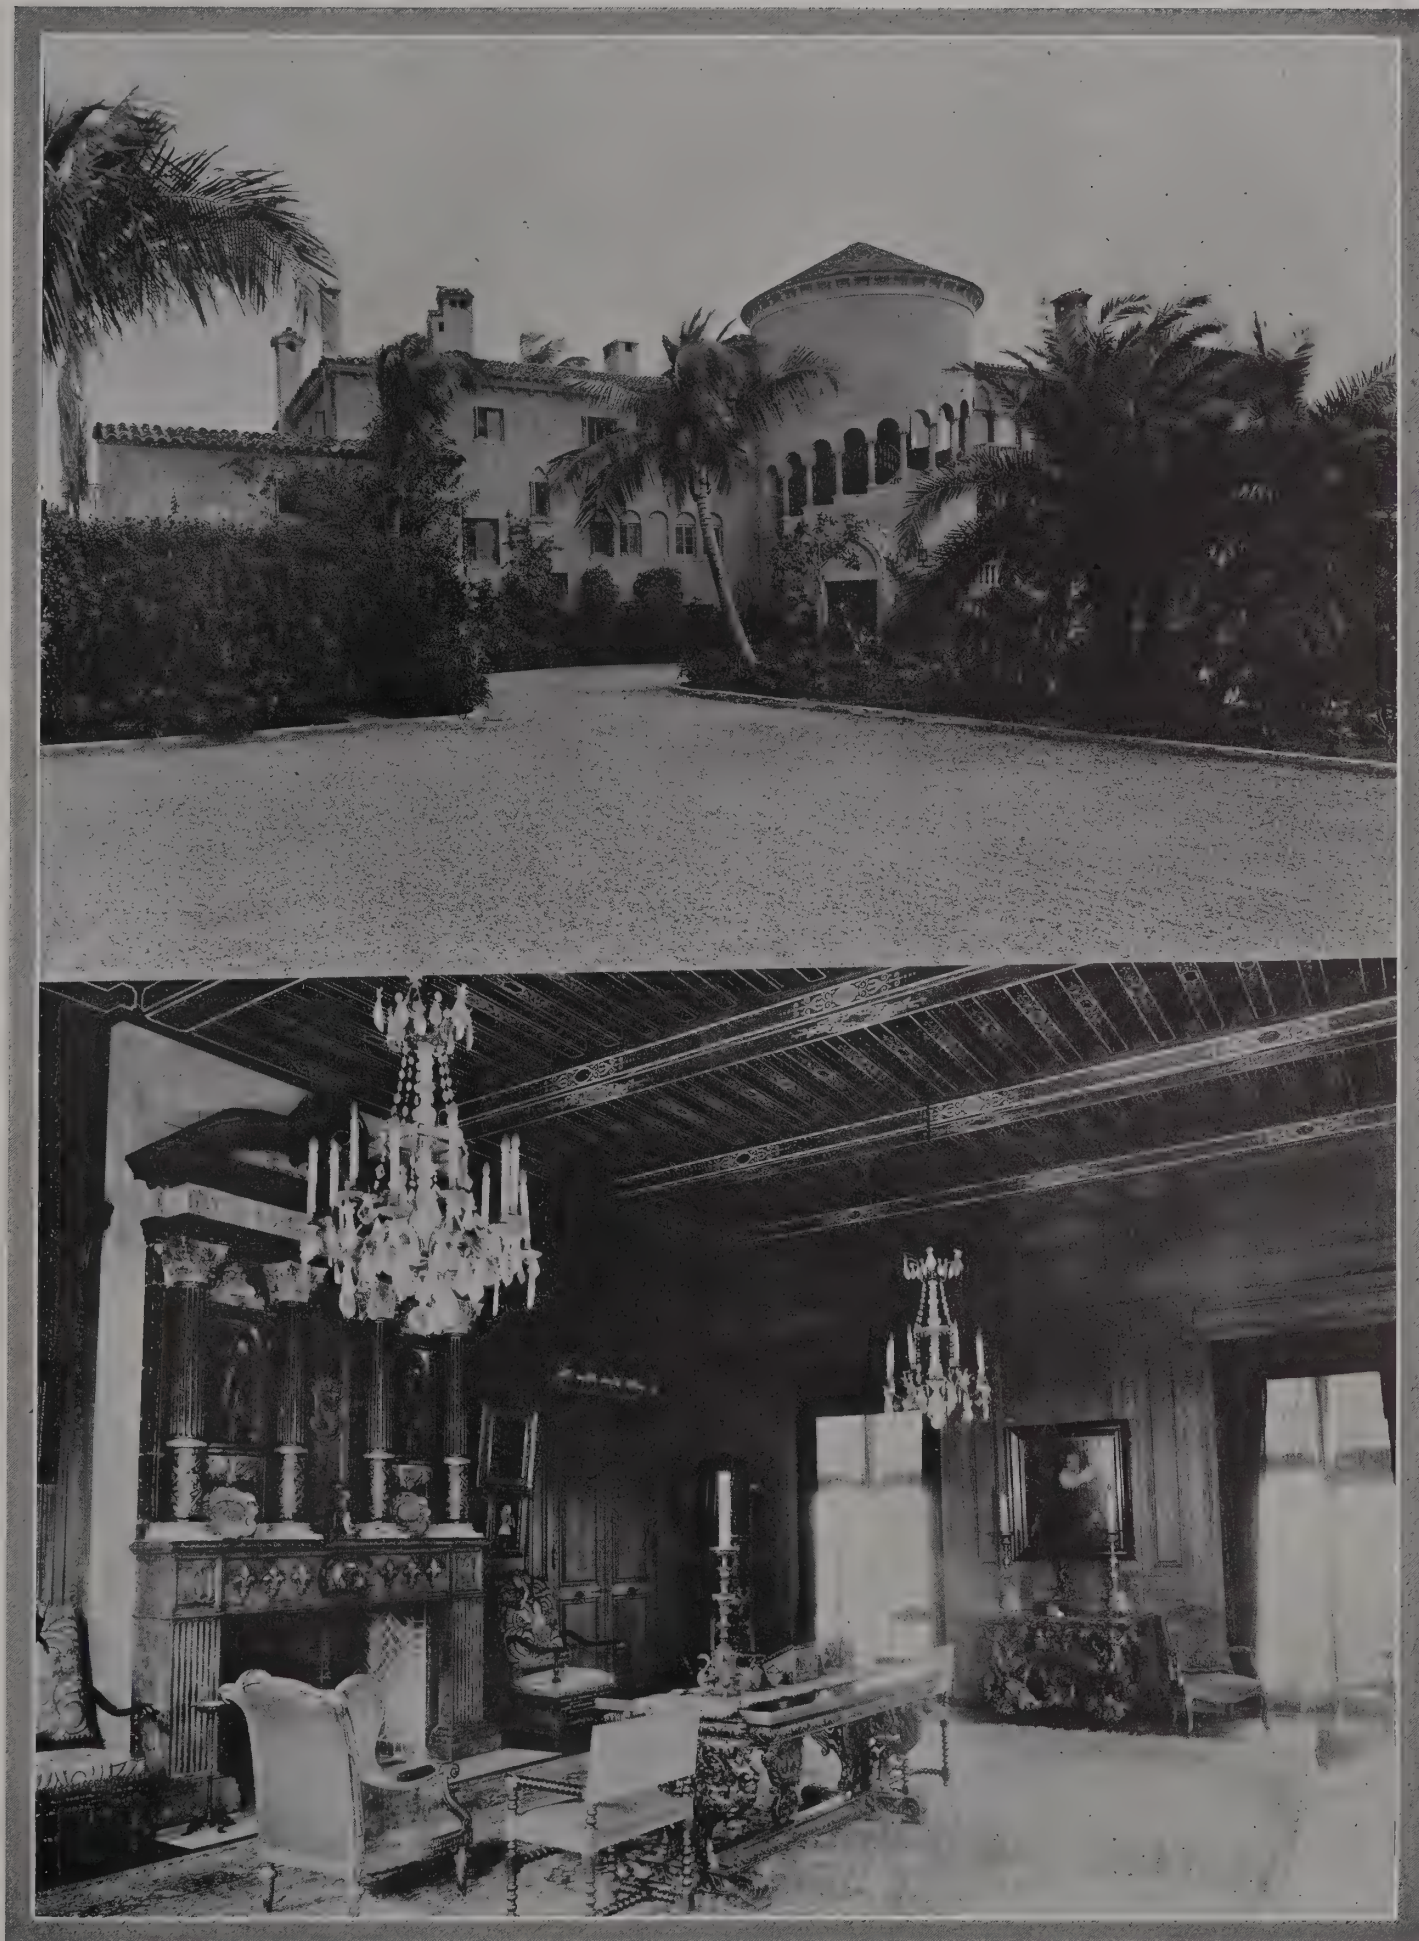

At Franklyn L. Hutton's "Hogareita" on Golf View Road, two walls high where they form their joining, become arches, to carry bells, quite like the mission churches of the west. Not a tower but a similar effect.

"El Cabana" (Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Gunster) boasts a tall octagonal tile roofed tower. Its double casements open to sea view and sunshine. The weather vane tells the exact direction of the wind. So do the palms in the patio below.

The third floor, very long cloister of the John S. Phipps estate, "Casa Bendita," possesses all the height and possibilities for far views that a tower usually gives yet the octagonal tower of smooth Keystone blocks surmounts even that. Its many arcaded windows command a wide view of the sea or land. Its ship weather vane may gather the breeze in its sails or in calmer moments look far down to the garden with its broad terrace and the double stairway leading to fountain and flowers.

The modern residence of Mrs. Frank Henderson, of dull smooth walls has five levels of roofs. Four towers are striking features of this home of modern design. A Norman tower seems to grow at the entrance. The second tower, square with low pointed top, blends into the main roof of the house. The third tower is a glassed half round porch, also a portion of the main dwelling and the fourth and dominant one has a huge window almost the length of this tallest portion of the house. The glass panes with mullions in two, four, eight proportions add height to the whole structure while being a focal point of interest in itself.

Palm Beach is full of high spots to entrance the interest. The Towers fulfill this claim whether seen from palm-lined avenues, the deck of a yacht or from the ships that sail as birds in the air.

The tall Norman tower of the George Rasmussen residence rises high above two stories. Its round smooth wall is broken by an ascending series of arcaded windows that reveal the winding stairway but afford it protection in rainy weather. The low pyramidal roof extends beyond the wall like the brim of a large, handsome hat.

Dear Dora:

One of the many things puzzling me down in your part of the world is where Mimi Baker Topping Alexander is living, now that she's sold her Island Road home. Or is she occupying the house until the new owner moves in?

Speaking of Margaret Emerson's photogenic daughter, it's amazing how quickly some girl always tries to capitalize on the Vanderbilt fame by having her engagement (supposed) to Margaret's son, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, announced after he's safely out of the country. They always count on Alfred's being too gallant to come out with a flat denial through the press.

Latest young woman to either take advantage of Alfred's absence and reticence or at least fail to contradict items that came out in the columns saying she was engaged to Lt. Vanderbilt, is Florence Pritchard, who works on one of the metropolitan papers. Florence is back from Reno after divorcing her husband. Alfred told me before he left for his new naval post in the Pacific that he had dated the young lady once or twice. Hardly enough to base an engagement on do you think?

Which is even more blatant than the much publicized case of K. T. Stevens, film and stage star, who provoked Alfred by having her Hollywood press agents issue engagement stories while he was away serving his country.

LIEUT. (JG) ALFRED GWYNNE VANDERBILT, now on active duty overseas.

The young actress with initials for a first name could at least say truthfully that young Vanderbilt was very fond of her. Although Alfred was so annoyed by the stories circulated during his absence about their supposed engagement that he by-passed K. T. completely when he arrived home on leave from the South Pacific.

Only after he had spent most of his leave in New York dating literally dozens of Gotham girls, did Alfred forgive his blond romance. On the way back to his new post, he stopped off in Chicago, where K. T. was playing in the "Voice of the Turtle" and had a happy reunion.

Proof that the beautiful Miss Stevens has learned her lesson about exploiting her romance with Alfred is found in the great silence now emanating from Hollywood's publicity mills about the couple, who parted very affectionately at Chicago's airport when the lieutenant took off for sea duty.

Do you remember that tall handsome polo player, Jerry McGehee, who used to beau the former Pamela Colgate around down in Palm Beach before the war? It looks like wedding bells for Jerry and the beautiful Helen M. Barker. They may even be married and honeymooning down your way at this writing. Helen, I know, dotes on Palm Beach and the place holds many happy memories for Jerry.

MRS. EDWARD H. ALEXANDER, who this season is residing at 115 South Ocean Boulevard.

It seems only yesterday that we used to trek down to the Gulf Stream Polo fields and watch Jerry, the colorful Laddy Sanford with his portable dressing table and faithful valet, Winston Guest, Raymond Firestone, Cecil Smith, Gerald Dempsey and other members of the club go through their polo paces.

Which calls to mind the sad death of Prince Serge Mdivani down at Phipps Field. Do you ever see his widow, the former Louise Van Alen, down in Palm Beach? I know that through the summer she seldom leaves her Newport home and has become a veritable recluse since the death of her dashing husband. No one ever seems to see her and her name hardly ever appears in any of the social gatherings up this way.

What do you think of the separation of popular Jack Warburton and his Vanderbilt wife, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt Smith Davis? It wouldn't surprise me if Counsie was either in Palm Beach or Reno by this time. They're such a nice couple, and everyone thought they were getting along so beautifully. Jack says he had felt sure this marriage would last. As you know, both of them had been married twice previously.

For some strange reason Counsie had her housekeeper tell all callers that she was out in San Francisco visiting her sister, Mrs. John P. Adams, the former Muriel Vanderbilt Church Phelps, while actually still living at their East 70th St. home. Jack, meanwhile, was checking in and out of various Gotham hotels trying to find a place to hang his lieutenant commander's cap.

The son of the late William J. Warburton and Mrs. Elisha Carson Pennal blames their marital muddle on war hysteria. It seems that when Jack returned from two and a half years navy duty, Counsie felt that they were strangers.

Another popular couple who have been living at separate addresses are Angus and Elise Mackintosh. Elise has been out in the country with the children, and her handsome husband is an executive with Young and Rubicam, stayed at a Gotham hotel. You may be seeing Elise around down there now with her children. There was talk of her joining her mother in Palm Beach.

I wonder if Mona Williams is planning a fashion show of any kind with Hugh Dillman this season. You knew, of course, about that magnificent "March of Dimes" style presental she headed for the infantile paralysis fund here in New York on Jan. 24th. I'll bet between the two of them they could really whip up something terrific for the Everglades Club.

No doubt Anne Hunter is lending her very decorative presence to the Palm Beach scene these days. She told me before she left for the South that her husband, who, I understand, has never been replaced at the Everglades Club since he entered the armed forces, wore a big handle-bar moustache for awhile over in France. Can you imagine the dapper Dan Hunter with a big sweeping moustache? I know the answer to that question and neither could Anne. So Danny shaved it off.

MRS. DANIEL DULANY HUNTER arrived last week from New York and is a guest at the Everglades Club.

Probably Anne will shoot me for telling you about this, but I think it was really amusing since it ties up with the current cigaret shortage. The titian haired wife of the Everglades Club's popular secretary threw her shoulder out of joint REACHING FOR A CIGARET before she entrained for your sun-caressed island. Her sister-in-law, Emma Hunter French, wife of society's Amos Tuck French, told me the story. Truth of the matter is the shoulder has been coming out at embarrassing moments for years, due to an old injury.

More amusing still was the accident that happened to Woolie Donahue's pal, Clemente Ballen. Clemente was hobbling around with a cane for several days after the freak incident, which found him being run over by his own car. Woolie says its the first time he ever heard of a man running over himself.

Clements leaped out of the car on a downgrade without taking time to put the emergency brake on. Of the collision Clemente says "When I turned and saw my own car chasing me it was too late to do anything but wish that I'd led a better life."

Rivaling Lt. Vanderbilt as a Romeo around town this winter has been the tall strapping Lt. W. (Bearcat) Bailey, who, you will remember, I'm sure, as Stella Davis' brother. Between keeping Stu and Stella Davis on the hop day and night during his leave from the Naval Air Forces, and squiring a different one of New York's beautiful girls every night, Cullen had a busy holiday from the fighting forces. He certainly earned it. You knew about his winning the Air Medal as a Martin Mariner pilot in the Pacific, didn't you?

One of the most embarrassing moments encountered in Manhattan in many a day developed the other day at Shirley Wolff's party for her daughter, Iris. I don't have to tell you that there's nothing of the friendly after-divorce relationship with Tokyo Powell Payne Hayes and her ex-husband, Freddy Blake Payne. The picturesque Tokyo and her former spouse dislike each other intensely and matrons in the know would never thing of inviting both to the same party.

Unfortunately Shirley either didn't know how they felt about each other or didn't think about it. You can take my word for it Dora, there was electricity in the air when Tokyo and Freddy met at her party. Tokyo was with some officer I didn't recognize and Freddy was with his new wife. Noticing the sudden hush in the conversation and sensing the chill, Shirley tactfully and promptly ushered the Paynes across the dining room and up to the drawing room on the second floor, before her party was ruined.

I dropped over to Washington the other day to see how our friend, Princess Alexander Hohenlohe-Ingelfingen and her beautiful new baby were getting along, and found the beautiful Peggy making plans that called for the little fellow, whom she and Alex have named Christian, taking up agriculture as his life work. Peggy and Alex have their heart set on living the sort of life he led in Poland before the war as a member of one of Poland's oldest land-owning families.

Well, I guess that's about all for now, except to mention the marriage of cute Patricia Burdine, whose father was the late Roddy Burdine, to a nice young man named John Hancock Notman, at New York's Little Church Around the Corner a short time ago.

As ever,

ELLEN.

Typically Parisian and conceded to be one of the smartest cocktail rendezvous in the resort, the fascinating lounge of Montmartre; done in exotic multi-color decor. The leather bar alternates chartreuse and fuschia. A continuous array of chartreuse and purple settees line the walls—bordered with dusty pink tables and chairs. Striped wall-paper picks up all of these color tones. The foyer leading from the cocktail lounge to the dinner and supper room, echoes the same clever decorative ideas. A mirrored wall adds sparkle and a feeling of spaciousness.

Smart Restaurants

MONTMARTRE

A BIT OF OLD PARIS in Palm Beach—that is the smart dinner and supper club Montmartre. The decorative theme, cuisine and entertainment are typically Parisian. The atmosphere is colorful, smart and intimate and there is always an air of gayety about the place. Famous for good food and rare old vintages, gourmets have acclaimed this smart spot in superlatives.

The musical background is furnished by “Les Troubadours,” whose listenable and danceable music has become a talking piece in the colony. Appearing nightly is Nikke Montan, versatile singer-accordionist, in a delightful program of American and continental numbers.

Noted among the hotel and cottage colony dining, dancing and cocktailing: Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dekker, Major and Mrs. E. L. Taylor of Washington, D. C., Hattie Carnegie and a group of friends, Mr. and Mrs. William Kind of Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Edward J Schellentrager, Mme. Constance Lejeune and several guests, Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Mr. Jose Dorelis, Mr. and Mrs. Kyril Vassilev.

Mr. Charles S. Woolworth was host at a large dinner party at Montmartre recently. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Havens were a twosome. Cpl. Dale Rewhart of Boca Raton was noted in a small dinner party. Mrs. J. Jay O'Brien was glimpsed in another party.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Duval were at a table for two. Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick were a twosome. Mr. Hugh Dillman dined with several friends. Mr. and Mrs. William Koehne were dinner hosts. As were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman.

After-theatre parties at the Montmartre are increasing in popularity. With numerous colonists dropping in for a “bit of beverage.” Late supper-dancing parties are also a favored method of entertainment, as the season advances; particularly with members of the younger set.

Attractive dinner and supper room of Montmartre—colorful decor and indirect lighting. The walls are done in a smart French flower pattern paper; mauve blossoms and bright green leaves on dark green ground. Surrounding the miniature dance floor are dusty pink tables and chairs, upholstered in navy blue sailcloth. The wall seating arrangement is chartreuse and purple. A fabulous setting for smart dinner and supper parties.

THE PATIO

NUMEROUS dinner parties are being arranged by Palm Beach hostesses for the "It's On The House" Night Fridays at the Patio. Dinner guests are eligible for souvenirs and gifts from the maestro, Val Ernie. Sally Gay, sophisticated singer of songs, was starred at the dinner-dance Saturday.

The fashion show by the Martha shop Wednesday evening brought out one of the largest crowds of the season. Mrs. Isaac P. Keeler had in her party Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Keller, Anthony Bittson, Judge James E. McDonald, Mrs. Pauline McKinney, Phillip Kelly and Mrs. Rosalie Schraubstader.

Mr. and Mrs. William Blood entertained for Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mrs. Borden Hunter, Jarrett Schmidt, James Carvel and Harvey Tunure. Mr. and Mrs. John Osterstock's guests were Mrs. Frederick Dalzell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pope. In another group were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold, Chris Connell, Joseph Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Snyder, Harry Kelton, Mrs. Edward R. Walsh, Miss Stephenie Marken, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Brien.

In another group were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman, John Hubbard and Miss Suzanne Buechele. With Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn were Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Russell Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Gray Foster and Mrs. Gerald H. Dempsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landsdell were with Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Barbour and John J. Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Litzberger entertained for Carlisle Blackwell, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goodman and Mrs. Edward Cummings.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ratty were with Edward Nesbitt and Mrs. Ernest Leaman.

In another party were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Housman, Mr. and Mrs. William Hernstadt and Mr. and Mrs. J. Kaufman. Among other diners and dancers were Mr. and Mrs. George Blyer, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Cooper, Mrs. G. E. Phillips, Mrs. C. Briganti, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly, Mrs. Kay Low, Mrs. Mary Stewart, Commander Jack Dempsey, Mrs. Florence Howell, Mr. and Mrs. James Clarke, Mrs. John Tobin, Kingsley Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding, 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. William Ladd, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Gonsic, Mrs. Morse McCall, and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Loeb with their son, Jacob Loeb, Fred Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. William Hernstadt and Mrs. Dean Libby.

A fashion showing of hats by Maretta Feeley of Worth Avenue took place Wednesday, February 7, at the Patio. Eric of Paris, who has been passing a winter holiday here, designed originals especially for the show.

Wandra Merrell, formerly of the Latin Quarter and Copacabana, is being featured nightly with Val Ernie and his suave rhythm boys.

Among the more frequent visitors at the Patio are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding, 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg, Mark Reddington and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Fennell; Judge and Mrs. Gordon Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schur, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Russell Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Jack McAuliffe, Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Hodge and their daughter, Mrs. Devereux Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman K. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Spencer August, Mr. and Mrs. Z. Giddings, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Raymond Bill and Edward Lyman Bill, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landsdell, Mrs. Ricard Hall, Capt. Alastair Mackintosh, Lt. Winston Guest, Miss Grace Amory, Mrs. Milton Chamwhose suave, scintillating melodies attract the colonists to the Patio nightly.

berlain Klugh, Jeremiah Maguire, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Worthington Hines and Kingsley Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Feltman had in their party Mr. and Mrs. John Osterstock and Mrs. Suzanne Buchele. Miss Grace Amory was with Lt. Winston Guest and Milton Holden. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Crane had as their guest, Mrs. William L. Bayer. Russell Kelly was with Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Webb. Mrs. Dean Libby dined with Mr. and Mrs. James Yates.

Others among the diners and dancers on that gay evening were Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes, Robert Campbell with J. E. Cahill, Mrs. William Miller with Count Castignola, Mr. and Mrs. William Blood, Kingsley Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina, Miss Norma Brady, Mrs. J. M. Goodwillie, Mrs. Archibald McNeil with Martin J. Desmoni, Mrs. Karl Dolge with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dean (Fanny Ward); Mr. and Mrs. James Carnahan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Warren, Mrs. Linda Hobart, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Quintana on their honeymoon; F. R. Nesbitt with J. E. Radder, Russell Heitman, Miss Elrita Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. Gray Foster with Mr. and Mrs. Varick Foster, Chase Ulman, John Culhane and Mrs. Violet Frank.

Among the winners at the recent "It's On The House" Night were Mrs. Herbert Wallace, Fred Gaskins, R. E. Stephens, George Fowler and Mrs. Harrington Mills.

THE ALIBI

DINING AND LUNCHING al fresco is one of the delightful experiences of a "June in February" vacation in Palm Beach. And one of the most charming spots for this purpose is the tropical patio of the Alibi—canopied by the sky and "landscaped" with orange trees, bougainvillea, palms and other tropical greenery.

Gourmets are exclaiming in superlatives over the wonderful French provincial cuisine served here—plus rare old wines, which round out a delectable continental menu. Each day there is a special plate de jour, as the focal point of interest and to add variety to an already alluring menu.

The cocktail intervals in the Good Neighbor lounge of the Alibi are always thronged with colonists, who drop in for a bit of refreshment after a round of golf or shopping jaunt on Worth Avenue. This is also a popular rendezvous for entertaining at cocktail parties.

Highlighting the cocktail and dinner intervals—the clever pianistics of Cliff Hall, who is the nearest thing to perpetual motion. He plays an almost continuous program of popular numbers, accompanying them with his own ideas in lyrics. It is all very informal and fun! Hall has delighted smart audiences in all of the key cities of the United States with his clever piano interpretations and sophisticated "musical chatter."

Among the numerous resorters glimpsed at the Alibi were: Mr. and Mrs. Jean Grelet, Mme. C. Lejeune and Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer, Mrs. Florence Heaton Manning with Mrs. John Edward Heaton, Mr. and Mrs. John Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Halloran, Mr. Val Ernie, Mr. A. L. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. H. Halpine Smith, Mr. Carlisle Blackwell of Hollywood, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Witman were a twosome. As were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schulke. Mrs. Walter Goodwillie was hostess to several friends. Others noted in the Good Neighbor lounge and tropical patio: Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Shepherd, Mr. Dwight Fiske, Mr. Edward Hill, Mrs. Henry K. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. J. Matthews of California. Mrs. John Ide was dinner hostess to six guests in celebration of her birthday.

Miss Fannie Ward and Mr. Jack Dean were a luncheon twosome. As were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding III. Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Duval had several dinner guests. As did Dr. Lloyd Hibberd. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Montague were at a table for two. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Merry of California, who are spending the season in Miami Beach, were hosts at a small dinner party.

Mrs. Theodore Frelinhuisen had a guest at her table. Dr. and Mrs. William Engel were dinner hosts, honoring Countess Koutouzow Tolstoy. Capt. Alastair Mackintosh dined with Major and Mrs. Barclay Warburton.

Mr. and Mrs. Waring Strebeigh had a small dinner party. Others noted: Mrs. Donner Winsor, Mr. J. J. Hubbard, Mr. Percy Mendelssohn.

Miss Carolyn Trippe entertained at tea for several guests, Mr. Edward Quinn, Mr. Julian Detmer, Mrs. Jerry

Smart simplicity is the keynote of the popular Good Neighbor cocktail lounge of the Alibi. A blue and white decor is dramatized by colorful murals depicting life in Old Brazil. Fishtail palms and other tropical greenery enhance the setting. Adjustable windows can transform the place into a veritable outdoor rendezvous in no time at all.

Sass, Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Taylor of Hobe Sound, Mr. and Mrs. Kyril Vasseliv, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rayner, Mr. Edward Eily, Capt. R. B. de Barros entertained at a small dinner party. Judge and Mrs. Gordon Lynn had several guests. Mrs. James Kennedy was hostess at a dinner party in the tropical gardens.

★ ★ ★ ★ DIXIE INN

AMID A SETTING typically Old English is the Dixie Inn, located on the Dixie Highway just north of West Palm Beach. It is here that the very best food can be found.

The large dining room, which is air conditioned, is presided over by Maitre d'Hotel Mario Sorre, who is well known in New York, having been associated with the 21 Club and the Rockefeller Club in New York City, and supervised by the genial Jimmy North.

The French cuisine is superb, with Chef John Adler right on the job to see that each dish that leaves the kitchen is just what the patron desires.

Dancing to the smooth tunes of Ray O'Hara and his Westchester Country Club orchestra ends a most pleasant evening.

MAISON LAFITTE

BOTH THE INSIDE DINING ROOM and terrace of Maison Lafitte have been thronged with colonists almost every day, many of whom have chosen this popular rendezvous as the setting for luncheon and dinner parties. Numerous cocktail parties precede dinner each evening—in the colorful marine lounge.

Adding to the enjoyment of the spirited concoctions and relaxing atmosphere here—the impromptu piano-accompaniment selections of Harry Brunet, talented musician. He builds his programs around the requests of patrons and finds that this season, the music of yesteryear is much more popular than present hit parade tunes.

Among those noted in Maison Lafitte: Prince and Princess Alexis Zaleski-Zalesky, Mr. and Mrs. Worthington Hine, Comdr. Pickering, Mr. Joe Bannon, Mr. A. Laughlin Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Callahan, Countess Irene Cittadini, Mme. C. Lejeune and several friends, Mr. John Gefaell.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Yates were a dinner twosome. As were Mr. and Mrs. John Peck. Mrs. J. Field Wardlaw had a small luncheon party. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chrysler were at a table for two. As were Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Murphy. Mrs. Woods Plankinton was noted in a dinner party. Rev. Fitzgerald was host to seven guests.

Mr. Jose Dorelis was glimpsed in a luncheon party. As were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dean. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyian had a small dinner party. Mr. and Mrs. B. Henry Pelzer were recent dinner hosts. Mrs. Belle Gurnee had several friends at her table. Miss Alice DeLamar and a friend lunched together. Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Taylor were at a table for two.

Miss Joan Dempsey was hostess to four guests at a dinner party. Mr. and Mrs. George Kent were a twosome. As were Mrs. Karl Dolge and a friend. Mr. and Mrs. Mario de Tuillo were hosts at a party for six. Mrs. Arthur Lipper also entertained six guests. Miss Mary Munn was noted in a dinner party. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Halloran were a twosome.

Major Frederic C. Collin was host at a dinner party. Others noted were: Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy and a party, Mr. Hassard Short, Mr. Tom Carnegie, Mr. L. Trevette Lockwood who entertained luncheon guests, Mrs. Edward H. Alexander and a friend, Mr. A. W. Grist, Mr. David Patterson.

Although new in the resort this season, Maison Lafitte has made an enviable reputation for the incomparable cuisine. The majority of dishes on the luncheon and dinner menu are French, with an interesting variety in the fare each day. Responsible for this phase of the popular restaurant, is Pierre Hannier, noted chef who was associated with Whitehall in Palm Beach for seven years. Before that Pierre was connected with the Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., Indian Yacht Club, Greenwich, Conn., as chef aboard several famous ocean liners, and with well-known hotels in Europe.

PENNSYLVANIA HOTEL

THE Pennsylvania Hotel has become one of the popular night spots of the Palm Beaches. Aside from the excellent cuisine, there are floor shows nightly and Karl Hoppe and his orchestra furnish lively music with your dining, wineing and dancing! The popular dancers, Andre and Delphine "poetry in motion" add to the enjoyment of an evening at this smart place. Genial Jimmy Thomas is the master of ceremonies, in the colorful Rainbow Room.

The cocktail lounge is also popular with resorters—both during the afternoon, early evening and late evening intervals. With many of the hotel guests entertaining friends in this hospitable manner.

On Monday, Tuesday and Friday over W. J. N. O., there is an orchestra broadcast from the Rainbow Room—interesting both to patrons present and those listening in at home.

The Palm Room of the Pennsylvania has been the setting for numerous luncheon and dinner parties this season. A delightful tropical atmosphere plus the best in good food and spirited beverages.

MAYERLING

THE AUTHENTIC CHARM of the continent pervades the atmosphere at Mayerling, the resort's sole Viennese restaurant, where cuisine prepared under Charles' skillful direction attracts connoisseurs each evening.

In one party recently enjoying dinner at Mayerling were Mrs. William Jarvis Dick, Mrs. David Woods, Mrs. Otto Harding, Mrs. Davis Biggs, all of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Thompson of St. Paul, Minn., were a twosome at dinner as were Lieut. Richard T. Willis, USNR, and Mrs. Willis of Mayport, Fla. Composing another dinner party were Dr. and Mrs. Ewald Hermann of Highland Park, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mesher of St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zorniger of Cincinnati.

Among the scores of others noted dining at Mayerling have been Count and Countess di Castagnola of Palm Beach; Julian F. Detmer of Palm Beach and Tarrytown, N. Y.; Mrs. James S. Thompson, Windsor; Mr. J. V. Honeycutt and Dorothy Honeycutt, Bethlehem, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Amaryk Aldo, Monroe, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Paoli, Stratford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. La Fountuni and Donald La Fountuni, Hackensack, N. J.; Mrs. L. L. Cohen, Palm Beach, with Mrs. Morry Spitz, Jr., of Chicago, and Mrs. A. Arthur Halle, Jr., Highland Park, Ill.

Also Mr. Stanley B. Mason of Manchester, Va.; Mrs. Lansdell K. Christie and Nancy A. Christie, Port Washington, N. Y.; Miss Cynthia Whitlock and her fiancé, Lieut. R. J. Bakewell, USNR; Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Shepherd, Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Theurer, Teneck, N. J., with Major and Mrs. Edgfred H. Williams of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobs of Cincinnati with Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Keefer of Cleveland; Miss Fanny Ward of Palm Beach and New York; Mrs. John E. Fowler, Washington and Palm Beach; Mrs. Bassett W. Mitchell, Palm Beach; Mrs. Aden A. English of Palm Beach and Puerto Rico; Mr. Sidney Cole and Mr. Artie Richman, New York City; Allen G. Idell and Marguerite C. Idell, Philadelphia; Eunice Mackenzie of Dothan, Ala., and I. T. Branson, New York City.

RAINBOW GARDENS INN

IT'S THE SMART THING to motor to the Rainbow Gardens Inn at Boynton Beach and dine amid the atmosphere of tropical flowers, plants and trees. This tropical garden is one of the show places in Southern Florida. Distinguished patrons from Palm Beach are to be seen nightly enjoying cocktails at the attractive bar and enjoying the choicest of steaks, chicken, frogs legs and pompano in the patio and dining room. A bit of tropical Florida greets the eye of the visitor. Plenty of parking space is provided in these picturesque grounds. The kitchen in this popular restaurant is one of the largest and finest in the South.

Put yourself in his shoes

Suppose there were no money to bring your child into the world? In a tearful, dejected letter, Pvt. R.'s wife told him she was going to have a baby. There wasn't enough money to pay for medical care and hospitalization. Helpless, Pvt. R. appealed to the Red Cross. In a few days he received word that they had assisted his wife in applying for emergency maternity and infant care.

Suppose you were wounded, disabled, jobless and discouraged? A Marine Private, he was wounded in the South Pacific and discharged for disability. He went home—jobless and afraid! Unable to take up his former trade, in desperation he appealed to the Red Cross. They put him in touch with the proper agency—he's doing swell, now.

Suppose your mother were ill and without funds? Seaman T. M. received word his mother was desperately ill and without money. He remembered advice he'd heard and went to his Red Cross Field Director who requested the boy's local chapter to arrange for care. They did. Now, anxiety lifted, Seaman T. M. is a better fighting man. Another example of your Red Cross in action.

Suppose your son were a prisoner? Imagine the anxiety of the parents of Pvt. E. D., who had had no word from him in months. The Red Cross sent a welfare inquiry. And then the International Red Cross reported that he was healthy and well, and was receiving American Red Cross packages regularly. Your money gets those packages to him.

Suppose you were dying for want of blood plasma? The shrapnel and fragments from a shell burst riddled Sgt. R. J. M.'s left arm. He was losing blood fast. A medical corpsman administered first aid and Red Cross blood plasma. Then they carried him to the field station and gave him 8 more pints of plasma. Without it, he would have died.

Suppose you'd lost your leg? And you couldn't bring yourself to tell your family? It happened to Sgt. J. T. and now his parents were coming to see him in the hospital. He appealed to a Red Cross worker to break the news. It was a tough job, but she did...and soon Mom was holding his hand while Dad was telling funny stories—and Sgt. J. T. was smiling happily.

The Red Cross can't do this work without your help!

The actual cases outlined above illustrate just a few of the thousands of ways in which the Red Cross helps our fighting men—at home and overseas. But without your help there would be no Red Cross to do this humanitarian work. For the Red Cross is wholly dependent on the money that you and other sympathetic Americans contribute. And after three years of war, the work of your Red Cross is greater than ever. Think of the suffering you can alleviate by your contribution—and give all you can!

Cyclax

OF LONDON

The Cyclax method for care of the skin includes, for a delightful powder base, Cyclax Milk of Roses. Being a water thin emollient lotion it will moisten parched skin but will not clog the pores, therefore, for a non sticky greaseless powder base use Cyclax Milk of Roses . . . For years this lotion has protected the complexions of British women in the tropics . . . let Cyclax help protect your skin from the drying effects of sun and salt water.

Look ahead to Health and Beauty

You can serve both by regular visits to the Elizabeth Arden Salon. Even though you are frightfully busy you must steal a few precious moments to relax. Untie those knots of nerves. Safeguard your loveliness. For you can do more if you feel and look your best.

FOR YOUR FACE . . . a Firmo-lift Treatment brings brightness to a skin dimmed by overstrain. It's wonderful to feel skilled fingers mold drooping contours firmly into place.

FOR YOUR HAIR . . . a series of Elizabeth Arden Scalp Treatments to polish every strand. Make limp, tired hair crisp to its very ends...more manageable. An Elizabeth Arden Coiffure is more casual, easier to arrange for these crowded days.

FOR YOUR FIGURE . . . a slenderizing body treatment, exercise or massage to give you a lithe, trim silhouette.

Casa Las-Olas

WITH AN UNSURPASSED panoramic-view of the Atlantic Ocean as one of its many attractions the beautiful Casa Las-Olas hotel at Delray Beach has within the short space of two years become the mecca of discriminating visitors.

Its spacious lounge with its charming gaily colored cushioned furniture and attractive decorations make it a delightful rendezvous for a restricted clientele. A different color scheme prevails in each room and the hotel in addition to being new, modern and steam-heated is fireproof.

Among the visitors at the Casa Las-Olas are leaders in the professional, the business and the social world.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Klett, of New York, arrived recently and plan a long stay. Mr. Klett an internationally known artist, drew the front cover for this week's issue of Collier's magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Sties, of Philadelphia, who have three sons in uniform plan a month's visit with their son, Lt. Carson A. Stiles, of the air corp.

Mr. W. S. Vanderbilt, of New York expects to enjoy several weeks of golf and fishing as do Mr. James Slattery and Mr. Leroy Hagan of the Slattery Construction Company of New York.

After two years in the Pacific area, Lt. E. W. Stetson, Jr., USN, j.g., and his brother, Charles P. Stetson of New York, arrived recently for a few weeks. They have been entertained by Captain Coleman, USMC. Many cocktail parties have been held already in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, Syracuse, N. Y., are here for a month's stay. Mr. Johnson is an officer of the Syracuse Trust Co. and both he and Mrs. Johnson can be seen on the beach daily.

Two prominent surgeons and their wives will spend the month of February recuperating after a trying year. They are Dr. and Mrs. Sommerwerck, a gynolocology specialist and Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Bains, surgeon-dentist with the army.

Ohio is represented by Mr. John H. Butcher, president of the Butcher & Hart Manufacturing Co. of Toledo, Judge and Mrs. Hugh Bennett, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. P. Y. Williams, of the Curtiss-Wright Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, and Mr. S. W. Graham of Cincinnati. Mrs. Susan Taft, cousin of Senator Robert Taft, also of Cincinnati, will arrive shortly for a stay of eight weeks.

Mr. Guy Bolte, publisher of This Week, of Greenwich, Conn., has returned to Casa Las-Olas for a month's stay and Mr. J. F. Owens, president of the company bearing his name at Syracuse, New York, also plans a month's stay here.

Other prominent eastern guests are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Drury, of Boston, Mass. Both are making their first trip to South Florida and expressed delight with the hotel, the Casino and the tennis courts. Mr. Drury is president of the State Street Investment Corporation.

Mr. John Fowler plans a two-weeks stay at Casa Las-Olas. He is with Swift & Co. of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanhope Weideman, of Lexington, Ky., are also guests of the hotel. Mr. Weideman is a tobacco grower, and distiller in Kentucky where he is widely known.

Mr. and Mrs. William Beaser, of Cleveland, Ohio, though they have visited Florida many times, have decided upon an eight-weeks' stay at Delray. Mr. Beaser is president of the Whitmore Manufacturing Company, which manufactures aeroplane equipment.

Boca Raton Club

ONE OF THE GALA social affairs at the famous Boca Raton Club was the Valentine Party held in the outdoor dining and dancing patio which attracted a large gathering. Red and white featured the decorative motif and each table was decorated with Valentine favors. Evelyn and Michele, Arthur Murray dancers delighted the guests with their interpretations of a waltz, samba, and rhumba, following which they presented a champagne dance, won by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Foster of New York.

Among those entertaining large groups at the Valentine party were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Toomey, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Atkins, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Bradley J. Hurd, Buffalo, N. Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio.

Very popular among guests at the Boca Raton Club is the cocktail hour held daily in the beautiful Cloister Patio overlooking Lake Boca Raton. Those recently entertaining parties preceding the dinner hour there include Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Campbell, who drove up from their home on the Hillsboro Mile, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Geier, Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Jennings, Bound Brook, N. J.; and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Barbour, Englewood, N. J.

Golfers of the Club are enthusiastic about the weekly putting tournament held each Sunday afternoon with a large gallery of guests and their friends in attendance. Mr. Leonard P. Sasso of Pittsburgh and Mr. Robert Shannon of New York were winners of last week's contest.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dooley and their daughter of St. Louis, Mo., arrived early last week to join Mrs. Dooley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howe at their home on the Boca Raton Club grounds.

Among season guests who have recently arrived at the Club are Mrs. Harry F. Von Gualu of New York, also Mr. and Mrs. Kent Cooper of New York.

Capt. and Mrs. Cornelius Combs, who were married recently at Vero Beach, have been spending their honeymoon at the Boca Raton Club. Capt. Combs is stationed at the Army Air Base, Vero Beach.

James Montgomery Flagg, noted illustrator and artist, arrived at the Club last week for a ten-day sojourn.

Joining the New England colony at the Club for a two-week visit was Mrs. M. A. Warren of Boston. Also enjoying sojourns of two weeks here are Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Bardes of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Major and Mrs. J. K. Shaw of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tulloch and son of Greenport, N. Y., will spend a month at the Boca Raton Club. Joining the Philadelphia colony for indefinite stays were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pope, also Mr. and Mrs. Harry Attig.

Other arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sennhauser of New York who will enjoy a month's visit at the Boca Raton Club. Here for two weeks is Mr. John G. Harlan of Washington, D. C., and Dr. and Mrs. George Fox of Meriden, Conn., have been at the Club for a week's stay.

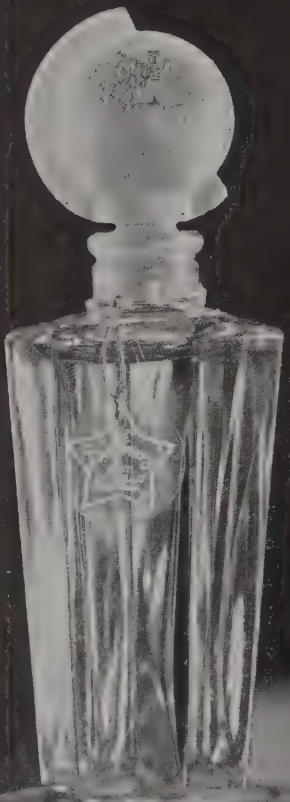

Mrs. J. A. Topham and Mrs. H. B. Hutchins of Southport, Conn., are at the Club for two-week visits.

From Detroit, Mich., are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson who will be at Boca Raton for an indefinite visit. Additional members of the New York colony who have arrived for stays of varied length are Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Clark of Rochester, also Mrs. Holland Duell of New York City.

WARWICK
One of England's Fortress-Mansions

During the past five years, the major portion of our production has been devoted unstintingly to the war effort.

Today, the end of the great conflict is in sight; and, with it, an end to world suffering and economic upheaval. With victory will come a restoration of the dignity of human relationships.

We look forward to the time when we will again be able to meet in full, the demands of a discriminating public. Meanwhile, modest selections of famous Kent Brushes will continue to be available . . . consistent, of course, with the limitations imposed by our own quality standards and our country's needs.

Cottage Colony

Society Life

THIS IS THE PEAK of the Palm Beach season, when time actually flies for resorters who find their calendars crowded with the many stellar events—from championship golf and tennis tournaments to cultural and social affairs around the clock. House guests come and go—and while enjoying the glories of the Florida sunshine are feted by Palm Beach hosts and hostesses at any number of gala cocktail, luncheon, and dinner parties. The vicissitudes of war-time travel have had little effect on Palm Beach this month as practically every nook and cranny in the resort is filled, which, in turn, means a much lengthier season for those who have left the snow-encompassed north to bask under the warm, tropical sun.

Among popular visitors this month are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Byron C. Foy of New York who have been guests of Major and Mrs. Eric Loder at "Louwana," Gurnee Munn's villa on North Ocean Boulevard which the Loders have taken for the season.

Mr. Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia, has been sojourning at the Everglades Club. His lovely wife did not accompany him on the short visit. Also paying a brief visit to Palm Beach was Mr. Van Campen Heilner, well known sportsman and writer, who stopped here to see his mother, Mrs. Samuel Heilner, at Sea Gull Cottage, Breakers Row. Mr. Heilner was en route to his residence at Bimini.

Arriving last week for an indefinite stay were Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas R. Dupont and their small daughter, Nicole, of Wilmington, Del., who are with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dupont on El Brillo Way. Capt. and Mrs. Francis Kellogg of New York have been enjoying a week's visit with her father, Gurnee Munn at "The Lodge."

Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, who recently sold her lovely modernistic villa, "Land's End" and in turn purchased the estate of the late Clinton S. Dow on Golf View Road, has taken up residence in her new house. With her is her mother, Mrs. Robert Jerome Faulkner. The villa is expected to be the setting for much entertaining as Mrs. Henderson is one of the most popular hostesses in the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Geffen of New Rochelle, N. Y., are the house guests of the Archibald McNeil's on Golf View Road. Mrs. Theodore D. Buhl of Grosse Pointe, Michigan, opened her house on Island Road on February 20. Her house guests are Mr. and Mrs. Emory Ford of Detroit. Lt. Commander Buhl is stationed in North Carolina at the naval air base, Elizabeth City.

Countess Elizabeth de Bruniere of New York, sister of Mrs. Russell Maguire, has been visiting Prince and Princess Alexis Zalstem-Zallessky at "Sandreef." Guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. Sheldon Tilney at their Pendleton Avenue residence have been their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. John Tilney USNR of San Antonio.

En route to their post in Costa Rica, U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Hallett Johnson stopped off in Palm Beach to visit Mr. and Mrs. R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont at "Kawita Cottage."

Expected last weekend to be the guest of Mr. Harvey

MRS. VINCENT BLOSS WARD

For many years a member of the Palm Beach winter colony, is spending the season at her residence on Brazilian Avenue.

S. Ladew at his Gulf Stream villa was Mr. Thomas Eastman of New York City.

Among the many teas, cocktail parties, luncheons and dinners given by Palm Beach winter colonists during the past two weeks was a tea to honor Lt. Col. John Bayne Maclean of Toronto given by Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury at "El Mirasol."

Lt. Col. James Wainwright Flanagan and his daughter, Miss Diva Flanagan entertained a large gathering of resorters at a cocktail party in the charming patio of "Divadale" prior to their departure on a few weeks' visit to New York and Canada.

Mrs. William R. Sweatt recently was hostess at a dinner party at "La Playera" to honor her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Sweatt of Minneapolis.

"La Casita," residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alfons B. Landa has been the setting for several interesting dinner parties recently.

Dunsmore of the Scots' Guards, who was celebrating his ninth birthday. Mrs. Dunsmore and her two children, James and Alistair, are spending the season with Mrs. Guest.

Commander and Mrs. Jack Rutherford were hosts recently aboard their yacht "Hyphen," to a number of their resort friends, at an all-day party. Luncheon was served on the yacht and guests enjoyed a sail to Hobe Sound. Guests on the party included Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyan, Mr. and Mrs. William Zelzer, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Black, Major and Mrs. John W. S. Foster, Major D'Arcy Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. LeBrau, Mr. and Mrs. Motley, Mrs. Herbert J. Adair, Mr. Edward Sheedy, Mr. Frazier Jelke, Mr. Batholomay Jelke, Mrs. Alexander Babcock, Mr. Larry Leary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Long entertained a number of friends at a dinner at "La Casentina" recently. "Junglewood," the Banyan Road residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Warrick, was the setting for a small dinner party last week.

Miss Grace Amory entertained last week in honor of her brother, Lt. Charles M. Amory, who is home on a short leave, in observance of his birthday. The dinner, which was attended by a number of his close friends, was given at their home on Wells Road.

Mrs. Donner Winsor entertained at a small dinner party in honor of Princess Alexis Obolensky, at her home on South Ocean Boulevard last week.

Mrs. Albert E. Worswick was hostess at her home on South Ocean Blvd., recently at a small luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cornelius Heather were hosts at a cocktail party at their home on Seabreeze Ave. The occasion was in celebration of their wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Heather's guests included Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Batcheller, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barnaba, Mr. Frank Carr, Mrs. Harry Childs, Mrs. Carleton Dodge, Mrs. William Cummings Fisher, Mr. Maurice Gulisian, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Horton, Mrs. John Hillborn, Mrs. Francis A. Hosack, Mr. and Mrs. C. Easman Jacobus, Col. Cortland Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheldon Johnson, Mrs. Stanley Keyes, Miss Eleanor Lowe, Mrs. William Martin, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Minner, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Newins, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reuter, Mrs. Alma Rowe, Mrs. Alfred A. Spadone, Mr. and Mrs. William Thrall, Mrs. Lowell Thomas, Miss Jean Wilson, Miss Audrew Wood, Mrs. Meredith Watson, Miss Winifred Witter and Mr. and Mrs. Hu Woodward.

Mr. Donald M. Nelson and his bride, the former Marguerite S. Colbourne, are now in Hobe Sound, staying at the Jupiter Island Club on their honeymoon. They were recently married in Washington, where he is the presidential adviser.

Mrs. Frankling Miller, of Chicago, who is spending the season with Mr. Miller at their home on Australian Avenue entertained at luncheon at The Villas last week. Hand-painted place cards were used which was the handiwork of her granddaughter, Cara Strong. The guests seated at one long table in the patio, included Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, Mrs. Frederick L. Durland, Mrs. John E. Fowler, Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton, Mrs. O. Nelson Tevander, Miss Ruby Edna Pierce, Mrs. Henry Kohl, Mrs. William L. Christenson, Mrs. John Hayward, Mrs. Sigurd Olsen, Mrs. James R. Branch, and Mrs. J. Russell Wyeth.

The Everglades Club

LONG TO BE REMEMBERED as the season's most auspicious occasion was the Silver Anniversary dinner-dance at the Everglades Club. No comparable event has recalled such nostalgic memories to hundreds of longtime Palm Beach winter colonists as the celebration of the Everglades Club's 25th birthday—and the capacity gathering of some 700 guests was a tribute to Hugh Dillman, president of the famous club since 1935, for his leadership and unfailing loyalty in making the Club an integral part of Palm Beach civic as well as social life.

Highlights of the evening, still under discussion by reminiscing members and guests . . . the gorgeous decorations throughout the Club, accented with silvered sprays, tinsel fabrics . . . the glitter of the bandshell with its tall silver columns . . . the music of a quarter-century ago brought again to the lovely Orange Gardens by Maynard Rutherford's Everglades Club orchestra . . . the fun of the dance contests and the songs of Ruth Landi.

The piece de resistance . . . the huge cake, a replica of the Everglades Club itself and the Golf Course, which was brought in lighted, while Hugh Dillman cut the first piece, each guest being served a portion . . . the silver souvenirs, fifty-cent pieces on cards bearing the words "Souvenir-25th Anniversary The Everglades Club, February 8, 1945.

Mr. and Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld were hosts for Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock Mr. and Mrs. William Greve,

Of Palm Beach and Long Island, N. Y., oldest living members of the Everglades Club, pose for the camera at the Silver Anniversary dinner dance.

Dancing in the Orange Gardens at the gala anniversary dinner dance were Miss Margaret Bitting of Brazilian Court, Palm Beach, and Watch Hill, Rhode Island, and Navy Lieut. James C. McCarthy of Palm Beach and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude K. Boettcher, Colonel and Mrs. Latham Reed, and Mr. Hassard Short.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard, Jr., entertained for Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Mr. and Mrs. John Senior, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Worswick, Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker, and Mr. Julian Detmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman had as their guests, Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Miss Grace Amory, Mrs. Frederick White, Mrs. D. Dulaney Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl, Lt. King, Lt. Charles Amory, Lt. Reginald Boardman, and Lt. Thomas Jenks.

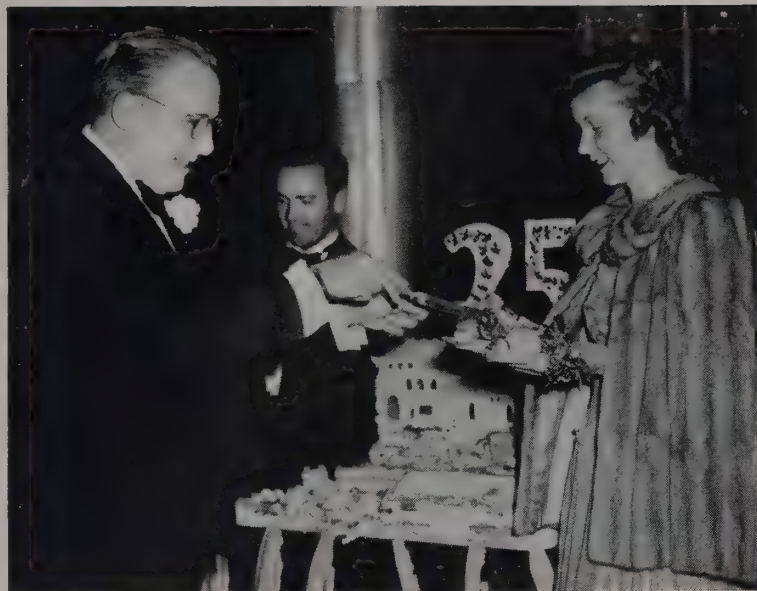

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Maguire were hosts for Mrs. Maguire's sister, Countess Elizabeth de Bruniere, the house guest of Prince and Princess Zalsstem-Zalesky, who were also present, Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, and Mr. John Jay Cisco.

Dr. Elwood E. Rice was host for Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mrs. Paul Healy, Mrs. Grace Miller, Mr. F. Ewing Glasgow, and Mr. C. Percival Dietsch.

Mr. Charles A. Munn entertained for his sister, Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury, and his daughter, Miss Mary Munn.

Mrs. S. Fahs Smith was hostess for Mrs. G. Horton Glover, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Waelder, and Mr. and Mrs. William Schultz.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mansfield entertained for Mrs. J.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gefaell were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. George Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Lumen O. Peck, Miss Janet Peck, Mrs. Sanders Maxwell, and Mrs. Orray E. Thurber.

Mrs. H. Borden Hunter's guests were Mrs. Robert Hasler, Mrs. Robert Schmid, Mrs. Woods Plankington, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stich, Mr. Harvey Tenure, Mr. James Carll, Miss Jane Thompson, Mr. O'Rourke, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheridan.

Mrs. George Marcus Kenyon entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacDonald, Mrs. James R. Branch and Mr. Willard Caler, of Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bateman had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Comer J. Kimball, and Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Penn.

Noted at one table were Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Candler, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Shaw, Mrs. Clifford Lilley, Mrs. Charles Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy.

Mrs. James H. Kennedy, who is one of the original members, entertained her niece, Mrs. John W. Crowley, who is her house guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hardeen, Jr., were hosts to Col. Karl Truesdell, Jr., and Mr. Edmund Gullien.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Howes Ellison's guests included Mr. and Mrs. James T. Roche, Mrs. Herbert Gale, Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff, Mrs. Blanche Clarke, Dr. Tage Teison, Mrs. William R. Sweatt, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weyenberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lovejoy Durland, Mrs. E. B. Ball and Mrs. Walter Crosley were noted at one table.

Other members who entertained included Mr. and Mrs. George Nicolai, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shearson, Miss Patricia Procter, Miss Fanny Ward, Mr. Frank B. Noyes, Mrs. Benjamin Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheridan, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pratt, Col. John T. Orb, Mr. W. L. Shepard, and Mr. C. E. Smith, Mr. George A. Dobyne, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. The west terrace of the Everglades Club, overlooking Lake Worth, was the attractive setting for the dinner which Countess Irene Cittadini gave in honor of the club's popular president, Mr. Hugh Dillman, last week.

The color scheme was blue and white with garden flowers arranged in a beautiful centerpiece, as well as in baskets around the terrace. Chinese lanterns strung across the small outdoor dance floor made an artistic setting for the dancing, to the strains of Maynard Rutherford's orchestra.

Countess Cittadini's guests who honored Mr. Dillman were Mrs. Eileen Allen, Mrs. Louis Beaumont, Miss Jane Thomas, Mrs. Alva B. See, Countess de Bruniere, Mrs. William Hayward, Mrs. Frederic Owsley, Mrs. Edward B. Wilbur, Mrs. R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont, Mrs. C. Edgerton Warburton, Mrs. D. Dulaney Hunter, Mrs. R. Fanny Ward, perennially young member of the resort colony, chats with Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, lovely Palm Beach and New York hostess at the Silver Anniversary gala.

The Society of The Four Arts

JUST AS THE AVIATOR KNOWS no boundary lines in the air, and just as the men of science and medicine have a common bond of seeking to improve and prolong human life no matter what the nationality or race, so sometimes does the brush of the artist prove a factor almost as strengthening as the printed and spoken word in promotion of understanding between peoples. Now on exhibition at the Society of the Four Arts is a group of canvases by Russian artists, assembled by LeRay Berdeau, chairman, from a number of museums and galleries.

The themes and vagaries of this art are not as commonly known to the American layman as, for instance, the work of the French and Italian schools. Thus the present show with its emotional use of color, its virility and strength is important not only because it is representative of the best works available in this country on Russian art, but also because it promotes a deeper understanding of our Ally and the Soviet people through the canvases on the walls of the gallery.

The Soviet artist is said to regard himself as the instrument of social evolution and progress. Acknowledging the importance of art the government and people themselves provide all the possible facilities for its development—and consciously the principles of socialist realism dominate the fine arts of the nation. All artists are now members of the Union of Soviet Artists which is divided into sections for painters, sculptors, monumental artists, graphic artists, and designers. They arrange conferences on art policies, debates, publish periodicals and books dealing with interests of their members as well as conduct exhibitions.

Outward evidences of the political and social changes in Russia since the revolution are few as far as the subject matter of the current show is concerned. But the inner strength of the artists conveys the indomitable spirit of the pioneer whether it be through the unbound color designs or the power of their draftsmanship.

Three artists seem outstanding in their portrayals of life in the Soviet, and their expressive depictions of its people. Sergei Sudeykin paints with a love of life and his canvases of village scenes are gay and emotional. "Puppet Show, Russian Fair," "Russian Carnival," and "Les Fiancées de Moscou" are among these. Then there is the expressive work of Grigoriev, an obvious student of human nature who paints with a great understanding of character. "White Nights, Petrograd," "Woman of the Fields" and "The End of Harvest" are representative of his graphic power of illustration. The third is David Burliuk, not as easily understood as his two compatriots and a venturer into the cubistic future at times. "Elias the Prophet in His Thunder Chariot," "Ikon After the Revolution" and "Dawn, Russia," are some of his canvases on exhibition revealing his progressive modernism.

Although there is little humor in the show as a whole, probably that mood is more or less akin to some of the gayety as expressed in color composition. "The Impromptu Visitor" by Bela Kadar depicting a cow chasing a startled female, is a form of humorous interlude, however.

Important to the Slavonic art is the influence of the Russian Ballet—or one could even state the reverse—that the Russian Ballet has had much effect on Slavonic art—and still be stating a truth. Larinov and Goncharova are the artists who have done much of the ballet work, and they are well represented in the Russian Exhibition at the Four Arts. From the distinctive brush of Larinov are such canvases as "Soliel de Nuit" and "The Peacock," marionette design. Curtain designs and costume designs by Natalia Goncharova reveal her progressive tendencies in line and hue. Remote and pastoral—more subdued than many of the canvases is Nicholas Roerich's "The Village of the Berendey" and another landscape, "Haunt Savoie" by Choultse, is probably the most conventional work in the entire exhibit, pictorially beautiful and yet very strong in color and outline.

Completely opposing the realistic quality of Choultse's work is the canvas "Troika" by Kandinsky, father of the non-objective school, depending on color composition to achieve his thought. A painting by Gorky is a display of the abstract and hangs in the same panel with the former canvas.

Tchelitchew's "Fallen Rider" is a brilliant work, executed with great feeling. In the spirit of the fantasy is the imaginative "Egyptian Nights," painted by Boris Anisfeld, and the canvas by Lado Gudiachvili depicting a street vendor is an example of the expressionist influence. Soutine's "Dead Fowl" is another indication of the intense useage of colors by the Slavonic school; Malevich represents the suprematist group in his canvas "Suprematist Composition"; and returning to the vigor and color of the Soviet are some of the works of Vasilyev—"Tea for Two," "Modern Ikon," and "Rest at Midday."

Other canvases of note in this important exhibition include: "Tiger" by Morris Hirschfeld; Deneyka's "Children"; "Maytime" and "Winter Carnival" by Bobritsky; Remisoff's "Stage Design, Bohm Ballett"; John Graham's "Abstrac-tion"; "Nude" by Gluckman; "Russian Legend" and "Russian Dancers" by Cickovsky; and several oriental studies by Yacovleff, "Lama of Tibet" being particularly outstanding.

In the upstairs gallery is a large collection of works of the graphic arts. Wood engravings, lithographs, and a number of interesting subjects of folk art as well as various illustrations and drawings for children's as well as adult's books. Artists represented in this collection include Chagall, Yudovin, Sterenberg, Kravchenko, Alexeyev, Bray, Ukhanov and Tyrsa.

Still further revelations of the spirit of the people are shown in the sculpture and wood carvings. Chana Orloff's "Bust of Rubin" and "Woman with Basket" are indicative of expert technique as is the work of Burliuk, Jr., especially his wood sculpture of a mother and daughter.

Ideally putting into words the value of such an exhibition at this time is the "Foreward" to the catalog written by the Hon. Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia. His foreward is as follows:

"In the altruistic outlook and pioneer characteristics of our impulses, we have much in common with Russia and its peoples.

"The vigor, power and natural realism of the Soviet artists, their imagination and interpretative qualities show us a Russia in transition and makes it imperative for us to grasp the inescapable realities and future connotations of the Russian situation in our tomorrow's world as the Soviet nation has come to stay and our future is inevitably affected by that fact.

"That a collection of Russian paintings of the scope and character of this exhibition could be assembled under our existing war-time conditions by Mr. Le-Ray Berdeau, chairman, reflects the enterprise and progressive character of The Society of The Four Arts, Palm Beach, Florida."

JOSEPH E. DAVIES.

Presiding at the tea table at the opening preview of the show were Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Charles S. Davis, Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Mrs. Alfred G. Kay, Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, Mrs. Matthew Mellon, Mrs. Byron D. Miller, Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, Princess Alexis Zalsstem-Zalessky, and Mrs. Benjamin Rogers. Mrs. LeRay Berdeau was in the receiving line with her husband, chairman of the show.

Ushers included the Misses Phyllis Paulson, Betty Lindop, Florence Lainhart, Peggy Jo Cockrell, and Doris Rich.

Museums which have loaned paintings to the Society of the Four Arts for the exhibition are: Art Institute of Chicago, Brooklyn Museum, Museum of Modern Art, Philadelphia Museum, and Whitney Museum. The Midtown Galleries and Paul Rosenberg also loaned canvases. Members of the Four Arts who loaned from their private collections are Mr. LeRay Berdeau, Mrs. John H. Gibbons, and Prince Alexis Zalsstem-Zalessky.

The exhibition will continue through March 12.

The research Ship Aquina, termed the Battleship of Science, which fights to break the Japanese drug blockade. It is 75 feet long and has a bow of 18 feet. Expeditions into the Florida Everglades and surrounding area are conducted regularly each week—where the “sailors of science” conduct vital research, seeking to find substitutes for imported drugs in natural plant form.

SMASHING THE JAP MONOPOLY

ONE OF THE GREATEST contributions to modern science is being carried on here in Palm Beach. The place is Bradley Hall, a Marine Biological Research Laboratory and the Floating Laboratory, R. S. (Research Ship) Aquina. These two units are engaged in vital research directly related to America's war effort and work co-operatively under the direction of scientist, Dr. George Sperti Sperti of the Institutum Divi Thomae (a network of U. S. research laboratories).

Dr. Sperti is well-known for his discovery of biodynes (a biological substance that controls human cell metabolism). He is also the father of ultraviolet selective irradiation, and holder of some fifty-nine basic patents. He is the scientist who developed the plan for the mobilization of America's scientists in an effort to create an organization to match the power of the huge German scientific machine.

A year prior to Pearl Harbor, Dr. Sperti and Monsignor Cletus A. Miller, Dean of the Institutum Divi Thomae, conducted an extensive survey to determine the part America's scientists were playing in relation to war effort. At the time of the entrance of the nation into World War II, only 25% of the nation's 200,000 scientists were engaged in research directly dealing with the war. Dr. Sperti formulated the “Sperti Plan” for mobilizing the scientists of the nation and this plan was accepted by the federal government and initiated O. P. R. D. (Office of Production, Research and Development). During its formative stage, Dr. Sperti became a principal consultant to the War Production Board. After the O. P. R. D. was established and in operation, Dr. Sperti returned to direct his own laboratories in an intensive program of war research to help bolster America's home front; to provide vital materials denied the nation by the war blockade.

The Japanese encirclement of the Pacific trade routes cut off the importation into the United States of vital medicinal substances such as quinine used in the treatment of malarial fever, and other plant drugs used in the treatment of tropical diseases. Realizing that the fighting power of our armies can be nullified by tropical diseases, for lack of effective drugs for treatment, Dr. Sperti aimed the Florida research in the direction of experimentation with natural plant drug substitutes for the imported varieties. “In fact, the laboratories at Palm Beach are the only scientific research units in America seeking to find substitutes for imported drugs in the natural plant form.”

Expeditions into the Florida Everglades and surrounding area are conducted regularly each week. Dr. Sperti and his colleagues, including plant physiologists, pharmacologists, acologists, botanists and doctors, comb the country collecting specimens, which are carted back to the laboratories at Bradley Hall, where primary extracts and subsequent concentrations of the plant substances are prepared. These plant drugs are hermitically sealed and shipped to other Institutum Divi Thomae affiliated laboratories in all parts of the United States, where testing is conducted on experimental animals and birds into which various tropical disease germs have been injected. Reports of results are carefully guarded under strict censorship at the affiliated laboratories. "It is publicly known, however, that several of the drugs have proven more effective in the treatment of certain tropical diseases than the drugs formerly imported."

IMPORTANCE OF AGAR

Japan secretly controlled 90 to 95 per cent of a substance used in the control of plagues and serious outbreaks of disease in army camps. Prior to World War II, the general public knew little of a strange substance called agar-agar or plain agar—vitally important to every hospital and biological laboratory in the world as a substrate for bacteriological media, that doctors may more accurately diagnose the disease with which they are confronted. Agar is an important part of the most accurate diagnostic system known to medical science. Without it medical practice would be slowed down to catastrophical proportions.

For example, agar is important for diagnosing scarlet fever, typhoid, gonorrhea, streptococcus infections and imperative in the creation of vaccines against bubonic plague, cholera, whooping cough, dysentery and for testing the purity of drinking water, milk, etc. So important is its use that the federal government brought a halt and froze its use in everything but hospital and bacteriological laboratories.

The Japanese held a rigid world-wide monopoly on agar and for centuries carefully guarded several secret phases of the process of manufacture. The result of this type of monopoly left all of the United Nations in a rather bad predicament when the present war broke out. England, with world scattered empire, could not obtain a sufficient amount for its requirements. China uses somewhere near 400,000 pounds a year, while Russia requires nearly a million pounds a year in its own territories.

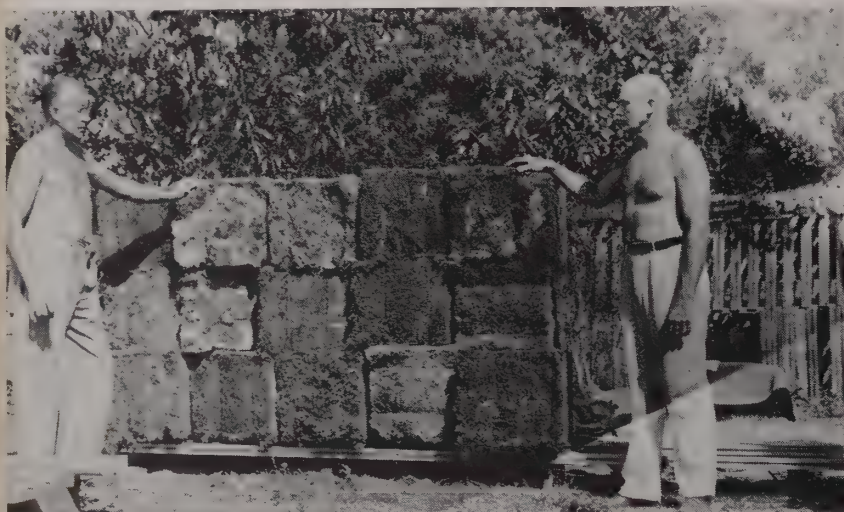

In shallow waters where the ocean floor is smooth, the scientists have developed a new type of scoop dredge which is operated from the aft of the ship to bring up specimens.

Complicated scientific machines are employed in experimenting with animals that have been injected with various tropical disease germs.

American manufacturers were faced with the problem that there are some 600,000 species of algae and only a minor percentage yield the jelly-like substance. Survey of coastal seaweed presented an almost insurmountable task to regular commercial companies. It required a very special type of personnel, organization and equipment, to do the job which lay in the field of research.

In September 1942, Dr. Sperti held a conference with some one hundred scientists whose work he directs, and outlined the "Jap Menace" to them. He assigned specific research to his plant physiologists, algologists, oceanographers, geobotanists, pharmacologists, biochemists and chemists. "Florida coastal waters were the scene of the trek of the scientists through the algal jungles—seeking the seaweed that yields the precious substance." During their early research expedition, the scientists learned intriguing terms descriptive in algology, such as the devil's apron, the sea pumpkin, the sea orange, sea lettuce, mermaid's fishline, etc. They learned, too, that sea algae are more readily studied in the living state under conditions of natural environment and almost immediately after the collection of a specimen is made.

FLOATING LABORATORY IS BORN

Working at considerable distance from the marine biological research laboratories at Palm Beach became impractical and Dr. Sperti ordered into service a floating laboratory, seventy-eight feet long with an eighteen-foot bow, completely outfitted with scientific research apparatus. This, the "Research Ship Aquina" majestically rides at anchor like a great white seagull at its home port, Brazilian Dock, Palm Beach. On its bow are the words "Institutum Divi Thomae" and a formidable sign halts one at the gangplank which reads "War Research—No Admittance." The R. S. Aquina is truly a "battleship of science," a floating laboratory ferreting out the precious secrets of Florida waters.

The main ship laboratory, where the "sailors of science" huddle about each new specimen brought aboard, is located on the aft of the ship. It is rigged with test tubes, flasks, caldrons, graduates, extractors, boilers, distillation apparatus, condensers, microscopes, refrigerating equipment and hundreds of chemicals and concentrates. The ship is literally a floating chemical plant capable of carrying on extensive marine chemical operations hundreds of miles from the American coast. In addition, the ship provides adequate sleeping quarters and dining room facilities. On the quarter deck is located a large chart room where detailed maps are catalogued showing every tiny inlet and section along the entire Florida coast as well as the inland waterways. Code marks are placed on the maps indicating the type of seaweed found growing in the various areas, whether the weed is transient, and the approximate tonnage of weed which may be expected to be harvested.

In certain spots deep-sea and shallow water diving is essential to carry on complete and extensive surveys and the unique thrills which the divers experience in picturesque aquatic scenery match those of the most ardent floriculturist. Diving in certain Florida waters is not without hair-raising thrills because frequently the divers encounter menaces of the sea such as the fierce barracuda, tiger of the sea, and no sensible diver attempts to challenge one. The best under-sea decorum in this instance, is to remain statuesquely still until the marauder swims away.

In unnavigable shallow waters, small powered boats are dropped from the mother ship and paradoxical as it may seem, the technicians rake the bottom of the ocean with hand rakes, much the same as one would do with tree leaves in the fall.

In a study of the algal forests of the sea, the weedmen have learned that it is an important primary food source for the great hordes of oceanic life made up of fish, sea snakes, turtles, jellyfish, mollusks, spiders, sponges, sharks, whales, porpoises, etc. And, in much the same way as grass is to our land animal.

Because of the importance of the Research Ship Aquina's mission to science and the United States public health, the Coastguard always gives the ship necessary clearance for cruising and in waters hundreds of miles beyond the range of its home port. The U. S. Coastguardsmen board the ship periodically to check its federal clearance papers.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR FLORIDA

The result of this extensive research project covering two or more years is—the Japanese menace to the United States public health has been annihilated and Dr. Sperti has given the state of Florida a new industry, actually set up and in full operation. In order to set up a new seaweed industry of any consequence in Florida, it is necessary to place a floating laboratory in service—without it, the work would be largely a hit and miss proposition. More than one hundred families of seaweed have been studied, examined, tested and classified. "Of this number, ten species yield agar and two produce a quality of agar far superior to any type yet used in general agar production."

Beds which are located in shallow water are harvested by negroes. The weed is gathered from the ocean floor and loaded into large flotillas, then towed to the weed docks. Here it is unloaded onto washeries, where it is freed from sea animals which live and feed on the weed. The wet, washed weed is then hauled to the drying fields for drying and bleaching, under the intense Florida sun. Negresses are employed to spread the weed over the fields of wire screen. In forty-eight hours the weed is dry and crisp and ready for boiling and steaming.

In the boiling process, the gelatinous matter in the weed is extracted leaving behind the fibrous plant structures. After filtering, the liquid containing the extracted agar is poured into trays and as the jelling action begins, the trays are placed in refrigerator tanks to be frozen. In subsequent thawing the water content melts and drains from the mass, leaving the agar as residue. This residue, after drying, is long porous translucent strips ready for shipment and use in the hospitals and bacteriological laboratories of the nation.

Here again, American mass production has entered the picture modernizing an ancient process and the Americans have stepped up the old laborious Japanese method. This formerly required some six months—the American process takes about four days. And, the American product is of much higher quality and purity than the Japanese.

Bradley Hall is the gracious gift to the Institutum Divi Thomae, of Col. Edward R. Bradley, whose winter residence is located in Palm Beach. It was originally the Oasis Club and then stood idle for about eight years—after which it was given by Bradley to the I. D. T. for scientific research purposes.

This is Gracilaria, one of the many specimens of seaweed gathered for experimental purposes by Institutum Divi Thomae scientists.

Hundreds of different types of seaweed have been collected, tested, analyzed and catalogued. Of this number ten species yield agar.

Seaweeds are washed and freed from animal life, then dried and bleached on screens, under the intense Florida sun.

The weeds are gathered from the ocean floor and then loaded into large flotillas, and towed to the weed docks.

The Breakers

THE MID-PEAK OF AN UNUSUALLY active season finds The Breakers, noted resort hotel, playing host to more than 500 guests, simultaneously a center of much entertaining at luncheons, cocktail parties, and dinners. Weekends are particularly gala at The Breakers with Cocoonut Grove filled to capacity during afternoon tea dances and scores of weekend visitors, especially among them being members of the armed forces from various nearby military and naval stations. Special entertainment programs on Thursday evenings prepared by Walter Miller's orchestra, and Dorothy Dailey and Gene Thompson, popular Arthur Murray dancers at the hotel, attract large gatherings to the terrace and are also occasions for many parties.

The cocktail hour brings more and more visitors to the Cocoonut Grove, where Miss Anna Reichl's singing still continues a magnet for music lovers.

Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Moloney, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Flavin, of St. Louis, Mo., are spending several weeks at The Breakers.

Mrs. W. C. Hardesty and Mrs. George E. Ward, of Forest Hills, L. I., are here for a sojourn, as are Mr. and Mrs. George B. Knowles, Jr., of South Dartmouth, Mass.

Mr. Howard R. Whitney of Worcester, Mass.; Mr. Neil Putnam, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Mr. E. T. Constien, of New York, who will remain through the season, were among recent arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Williams, of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fackler, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. Wilber Jones, of High Point, N. C., also were among recent arrivals.

Miss Lydia O'Leary, of New York, accompanied by her mother Mrs. Henry O'Leary have been passing a number of weeks at The Breakers. Miss O'Leary the inventor of "Covermark" which is now used by plastic surgeons as camouflage for face scars, is playing a prominent part for the wounded veterans with her discovery.

Arriving for short sojourns were Miss Margaret S. Baker, of Jacksonville; Mr. Virgil C. Moore, of Miami Beach; also Miss Emma S. Bourke, of E. Orange, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Richards, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Doyle, of Merion, Pa., joined the Quaker City group.

Arriving for the remainder of the season were Mrs. Denis F. O'Brien and Mrs. Rockwell Newman, of E. Orange, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Braham, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are accompanied by Mrs. Jules von Sternberg, and will remain until mid-March.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lloyd Wassell and Miss Patricia Wassell, of Westport, Conn., are enjoying a visit here.

Mr. Boyd G. Curts, vice-president of the New York Trust Co., New York, with Mrs. Curts, arrived for a fortnight's visit.

Returning for his usual visit was Mr. Edward F. Shay, of Fall River, Mass., accompanied by Mrs. Shay; also by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burke, of Fall River.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Appell arrived from New York. Also here from New York is Mr. J. Schuyler Casey, who will remain through early March.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Edgerton, of Forest Hills, L. I., and Mrs. Herbert Agar, of New York, are additional arrivals.

MISS DIANE DUBOIS

Who is spending the season at The Breakers with her mother, Mrs. Charles F. DuBois of Greenwich, Conn.

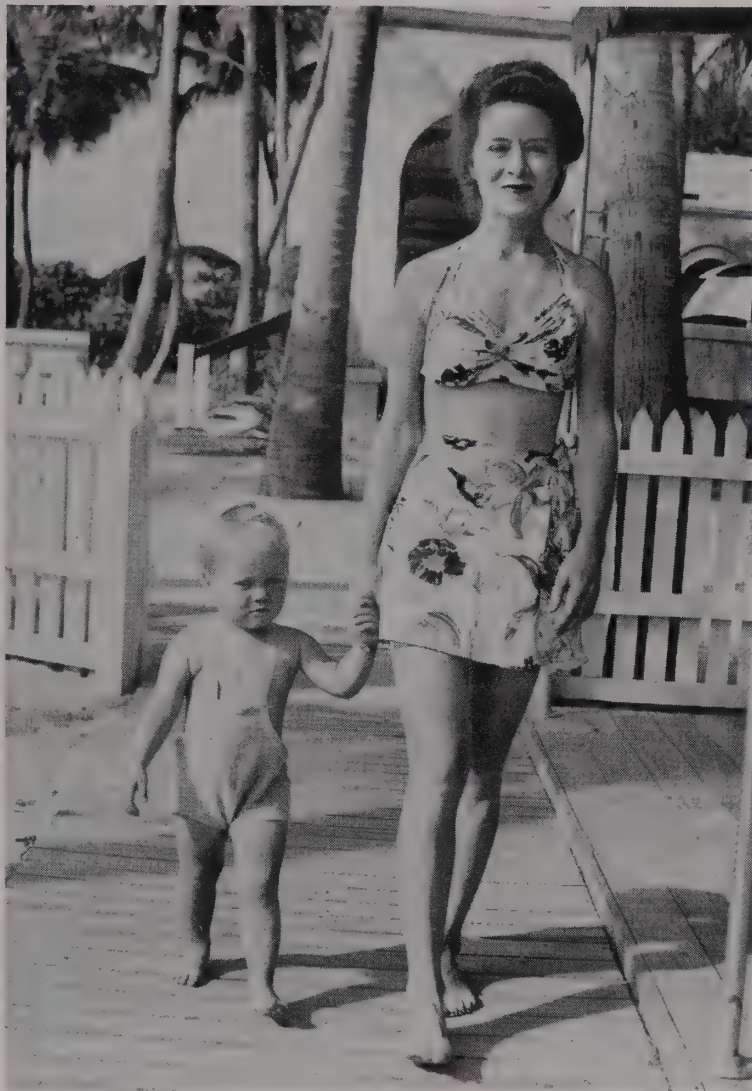

Games played in the Grand Loggia continue to add much to entertainment at The Breakers, where many small dinners precede the event. Mrs. Ledyard Cogswell was hostess one evening to Prince and Princess Cyril Toumansky, of New York; Mr. C. Percival Deitsch and Mr. A. John Bitson at cocktails and dinner. Mrs. Clifford D. Lilley entertained Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Candler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kennedy and Mrs. Charles Harold.

Mr. and Mrs. John N. McDevitt were hosts at tea there recently to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bamford, Mrs. E. J. Irwin, Mrs. Frederick Bodell, Mrs. Joseph Moran and Mr. Frank Belfort. Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery entertained a party.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall and Mrs. William H. Buckley of the cottage colony had guests at tea. Breakers guests having parties recently include Mrs. H. L. Barton, Mrs. Alexander M. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Carbon P. Dubbs, Mrs. William MacNeill, Charles Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Briggan, Mrs. George Frazer and Mrs. Herbert Winslow, Col. John Bayne Maclean who was joined by Harold Richardson, and Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Case.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Huber, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Norris, Mrs. J. J. Newman, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Niggeman, Mr. Charles Payne, Dr. and Mrs. Beaman Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dooley and Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bilder.

Mr. and Mrs. Zambry P. Giddens entertained a group of their resort friends at a dinner at The Breakers last week. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Burns, Mr. and Mrs. James McGaughey, Mr. and Mrs. Uihlein, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes, and Mrs. R. Frederick Bostelman.

Miss Ruth Thompson Wallace and Judge James Leary entertained at luncheon recently for Denis, Cardinal Dougherty, Monsignor Magee, Monsignor McHugh, the Rev. Fr. Burgio and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McShayne.

Mrs. Thayer Myers of Worcester, Mass., is here to remain until early March. Mrs. Eugene M. Pargny of Pittsburgh, Pa., has returned for her usual sojourn at The Breakers, as have Mrs. Charles J. Clark and Miss Catherine Clark of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Burbach of St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Keebler of Chicago are Midwestern arrivals.

Mrs. Donna Harter gave a cocktail party in the Coconut Grove in honor of Mrs. Alfred A. Spadone of Montclair, N. J., who is the guest of Mrs. William Cummings Fisher. Additional guests were Mrs. Fisher, Prince and Princess Irbain Kahn Kaplanoff, Sir William and Lady Garthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baehr, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Long, Mrs. William Beaumont, Mrs. William Barbour, Mrs. Myrtle Shepherd, Mrs. Alexander M. Paul, Mrs. Harington Mills, Mrs. H. S. Eddy, Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, Mrs. Robert J. Faulkner, Mr. Frederick Gaskins and Mr. G. W. Phillips.

On the evening of St. Valentine's Day the first card party of the season was arranged in the South Lounge by Mrs. Evangeline Hall, hostess, with sixteen tables in play. Those having high scores at each table included Judge Thomas J. Baldrige, Mrs. David H. Frazer, Mrs. Dean C. Osborne, Mrs. E. Rogers Underwood, Mrs. Ready, Mrs. Edmund B. Ball, Mrs. Robert H. Lansdell, Mrs. Lester Brooks, Mrs. Milton J. Cork, Mrs. Frank Buckley, Mrs. Selah B. Masten, Mr. Raymond G. Noble, and Mr. George H. Tippling.

Each of these received a prize and in honor of Valentine's Day, a special drawing was made, Mrs. Clifford A. Lilley being designated Queen of Hearts for 1945 and Mr. George M. Burbach, King of Hearts.

Mrs. Delbert S. Ford of Jackson, Michigan, has joined her mother, Mrs. David H. Fraser, for a sojourn at The Breakers.

Joining the New England colony at the hotel were Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hasbrook of Burlington, Vt. Here from Well-sley Hills, Mass., are Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Farlow.

Mr. George Gordon of the U. S. Department of State, Washington, is here with Mrs. Gordon for a sojourn at The Breakers.

From the New York area came Mrs. H. E. McInnes and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm D. McInnes, of Scarsdale; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rose, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Hunter, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. H. Landseidel, of Wilton, Conn., with Dr. and Mrs. Charles C. Murphy; Mr. G. S. Walden, of New York, with his mother, Mrs. Julia E. Carroll; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sayes, of Bronxville; Mr. Harry Horner, of Woodmere, L. I.

Capt. Franklin C. Salisbury arrived from Washington, D. C., and Lt. Col. T. E. O'Connell, from Denver, Colo.

Fishing for "Sail" Under Sail

Captain Lew Parkinson and his charming wife, Adele, prove that sailfish can be caught while fishing from a sailboat. When gasoline rationing began, Captain Parkinson decided to catch sailfish while under sail. Proof that he succeeded is shown above.

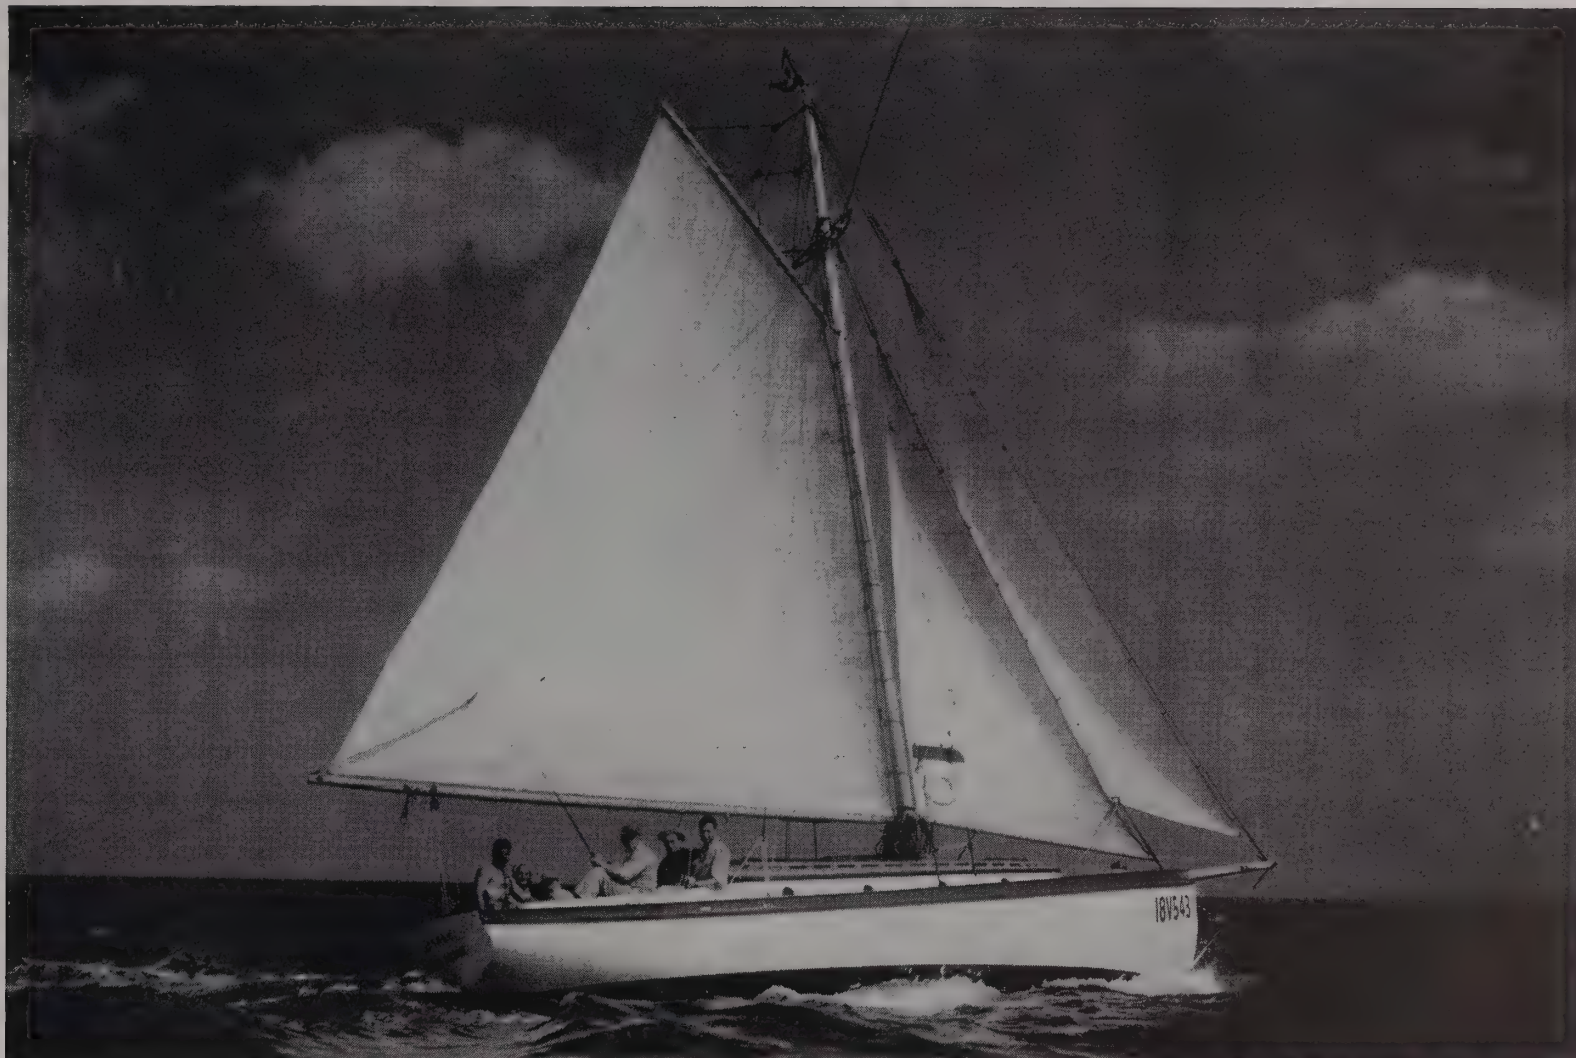

TIPPED WITH WHITE, like gremlins wearing paper hats, the dancing waves of the purlish Gulf Stream waters, sparkled and glistened in the warm afternoon sun, as the Fayaway, a 30-foot sailboat, knifed its way through the mysterious waters.

Captain Lew Parkinson was at the helm, his wife, Adele, acted at striker and fishing the outriggers were Colonel and Mrs. Parker Tenney. Col. Tenney, a member of the Explorers Club, has fished the waters of the globe in his 60-foot ketch the Centurian.

Before the foursome had left the Palm Beach dock, a wager of $500 had been made when because of gasoline rationing Captain Parkinson declared he could catch sailfish without gasoline. Companion yachtsmen disagreed.

In addition to being salt water sailors the Parkinsons are real weather prophets being able to forecast weather in an amazing manner.

With a balmy breeze blowing, there is nothing like a sail on the Atlantic for sheer pleasure and enjoyment. Above we see the Fayaway with jib, fore staysail and mainsail set knifing through the emerald waters. Captain Lew Parkinson is at the helm.

A red sunset usually means a fine day the next day, but a red sunrise means dusty water. Altocumulus clouds indicate a probable thunderstorm and as they grow into cumulus with thunder heads, the warning is confirmed. Soon cumulonimbus clouds will form and the storm will break.

His barometer, action of the birds, the moon, the air, the wind, the clouds, even smoke, tell Captain Parkinson, what sort of weather to expect.

"Sounds rather strange," says Mrs. Parkinson, who is also a weather prophet of no mean ability," but the air often tells of an oncoming storm. Should a stillness suddenly come over the water and the air seem like a vacuum—lash everything and prepare to reef down, or if a safe haven is near, dash for it. You'll be in for a line squall."

Small mullets or thin strips of larger mullets are used for sailfish. These are trolled from 25 to 35 yards and as the mullet skips through the water, the sailfish strikes it with his bill. If the mullet quits its forward motion and starts to sink, the sailfish believes he has killed it and rushes back intent upon swallowing it. If he does not believe it is dead, he will refuse to touch it.

In order to give the impression the mullet has been killed, the trolling line is attached with a clothes pin snap, which is attached to another line fastened to the outrigger. The trolling line snaps from the pin when the bait is struck and the slack in the line stops the forward motion of the mullet and allows it to sink.

On motor yachts, the outriggers usually stick straight in the air when not in use, but extend over the sides of the boat when trolling. For the Fayaway, Captain Parkinson devised a scheme, to extend his outriggers from the mast at the spreaders, high enough and far enough out, so that the line would not foul the main sail.

The Fayaway is a 30-foot auxiliary cutter, carrying 624 feet of sail. Though its cabin is spacious, its cockpit is unusually large, making it possible for four persons to fish comfortably. Two fish from either side of the helmsman and the wheel, while the two fishing the outriggers are seated comfortably with their backs against the bulkhead and their legs stretched along the cockpit cushions.

Mrs. Parkinson set out the lines at proper trolling distances, and when the Fayaway reached the edge of the stream she suddenly sighted one tailing south. Excitedly she called the attention to the fish as it lazily plunged and surged forward with a hobby horse motion, probably searching for the warmer waters of the Gulf Stream.

While the Fayaway was at a disadvantage in one way, not being allowed under the terms of the wager to use its auxiliary engine, to pick up speed, it actually had an advantage over a motor boat, since it made no noise as it glided through the water. Strange as it may seem the Fayaway can come quite close to a fish without scaring it.

The sailfish Mrs. Parkinson spotted was approximately two points off the starboard bow. Parkinson began changing his course and easing his sheets, so as to get baits across in front of the sailfish nose.

"Watch your rods, folks," warned Parkinson, and before he could finish what he started to say, a beautiful purplish brown, fan-like dorsal fin came up behind Mrs. Tenney's mullet.

With a terrific slash the sailfish hit the bait, knocked the line from the outrigger pin and a great battle began, a few seconds later. For a solid hour Mrs. Tenney battled the giant and then when she had him within 20 feet of the boat, the ominous dorsal fin of a shark split the water and before any one knew what had happened the hungry enemy of man and fish viciously slashed the sailfish in half.

The fight with the sailfish had carried the Fayaway into the stream and Mrs. Parkinson baited and set the lines and as she did, she glanced nervously at the sky and then at her husband.

The northeast breeze was veering into an easterly and stiffening. The cumulous clouds to the southeast were thickening and growing in size. A shadow like an ominous vaticination, passed over the boat as a cloud floated across the sun.

Owner of the 60-foot ketch Centurian tried their luck fishing from the Fayaway. Apparently they were very lucky.

The stiffening breeze began whipping the chop into a heavier sea and the bow of the Fayaway began rising and falling. An ordinary boat would have been pounding but the Fayaway was at home in the going.

"Not too dusty for you, is it?" Mrs. Parkinson called to Mrs. Tenney. "Do you think we should head for the inlet?"

"What!" exclaimed Mrs. Tenney as she and Colonel Tenney laughed uproariously. "Why we've been around the Horn in the Centurian. Landlubbers may like a calm sea, but we'll take dusty weather. Besides you would not want Lew to loose his wager, would you?"

With a terrific, unlooked for yank, which caused the line on Mrs. Tenney's outrigger to snap like a whip lash and then straighten as stiff as a wire, a monster of the deep suddenly took Mrs. Tenney's bait. Acting fast, Captain Parkinson held his helm with one hand then quickly grasped her rod and placed it in the holder while Mrs. Parkinson rapidly fastened the harness about her.

The big spool was turning at blinding speed and sang in a high whine as yard after yard disappeared into the water.

"Jumping elephants, honey, you've hooked into a white marlin," Colonel Parker yelled. "Look at him take those long greyhound leaps. Play him, play—eh what the devil . . .?"

As the Colonel spoke, the pin on his outrigger snapped. "Jumping Jupiter," he cried, something's hit my bait also." Ten seconds later, his line tightened, he pulled back on his rod, set the hook and a sensational battle ensued.

Excitement ran high.

But Captain Parkinson's brow was furrowed and his expression was grim. Here was a pretty kettle of fish.

It would take mighty fine helmsmanship to keep the lines from fouling and at the same time luff and go off into the wind enough to keep rudder way.

"Thank Goodness," thought Skipper Parkinson, "the Tenney's are not novice fishermen."

Simultaneously both fish broke water. About two points on the starboard quarter, Colonel Tenney had a monster sailfish on the end of his line.

Three points on the port quarter, Mrs. Tenney had a mighty marlin.

It was like watching a three-ring circus, trying to keep an eye on the antics of the two marine monarchs.

Three times the sailfish leaped as the marlin jumped like a greyhound, three times they circled, fortunately each time they circled, they circled away from each other. Then suddenly they both broke water and their migrations started them directly toward each other.

Captain Parkinson was almost afraid to look. Visions of fouled lines and loss of valuable tackle swam before his eyes.

In another instant the fish would collide, but before that instant came, Colonel Tenney with a herculean effort, drew back on his rod, causing the great sail who had leaped high in the air to sound in the direction of the boat.

So great was the battle staged by the fish and so intense were the occupants of the cockpit, that they failed to notice that rain was falling and that dark clouds were overhead.

It was two hours before the mighty sailfish on Colonel Tenney's line, was boated and lashed to the deck and it was half an hour later before Mrs. Tenney almost spent with exhaustion was able to boat her beautiful marlin.

A line was looped around his caudal fin and he was hauled on board, but not until Parkinson had hit him with a pacifier as he came over the side. The sailfish was 8 feet 11 inches long and the marlin, 9 feet long and weighed 220 pounds.

Wet and exhausted, but happy, the foursome suddenly discovered that it was raining and too late for oilskins.

"Why worry about oilskins now," Colonel Renney laughingly declared. "We'll be back in the inlet in half an hour and by the time we get there we won't even know whether or not it is raining, or care. We have our $500 sailfish and a marlin to boot, so why worry about a little rain."

Whitehall

En route to a swim at the Sun and Surf Club are (left to right), D. B. Heatter, Mrs. Maisla Evins, and daughter, Toni, Mrs. Gabriel Heatter and Gabriel Heatter, noted radio commentator, who are spending the season at Whitehall.

WITH EACH RECURRING month, Whitehall takes an added lease on resort life. Parties, famous personalities, and plenty of pep are in evidence, while cultural events, cock-tails and doging the candid camera man, add zest.

Utter relaxation in superb surroundings is found at Whitehall and at the Sun and Surf club; all this and the Palm Beach Country Club too, a golfer's earthy paradise.

Interest in Palm Beach is now centered on the mammoth benefit which the hotel is sponsoring on Sunday night, March 4. Proceeds will be devoted to the completion of the three therapeutic swimming pools at Halloran General Hospital, Staten Island. It is at Halloran that all wounded Americans are sent from the various war fronts, and these swimming pools are considered a large factor in the recovery of sick and wounded men.

Prominent resort shops have contributed perfectly gorgeous articles for this benefit, while other beautiful and hard-to-find gifts are being donated by many of Whitehall's generous guests. All these articles will be disposed of at a Tom-bola.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Son nabend are particularly happy to have a party in this great work. News of the benefit is also immensely gratifying to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Geist, who spent the early season at the Sun and Surf club. Mr. Geist is national chairman of the committee to raise funds to complete these pools. He has been highly commended by Brig. Gen. Ralph G. DeVoe, commanding general of Halloran. The project also has the blessing of President Roosevelt. After the war is over, and the government has no further need for the hospital, it is thought that Halloran, because of these pools, will become the Warm Springs of New York State.

In addition to the brilliant fashion show staged by the Martha shop, and which was attended by a more-than-capacity crowd, there was a beach wear style show at the Sun and Surf club which was exclusively for club members. Models at this show demonstrated what will be worn in the good old summer time. There were swim suits, shorts, slacks, spectator sports frocks, all with attractive accessories. The show was staged at the beautiful azure swimming pool, and music of the "a-pretty-girl-is-like-a-melody variety was provided by the smiling Sammy Eisen and his orchestra.

Whitehall guests might be pardoned for feeling a trifle smug at being the only ones in Palm Beach privileged to hear Gabriel Heatter, as the commentator's proposed talk at the Four Arts had to be cancelled. (Mr. H. said he might return later in the spring, but as this is written, it is uncertain). The talk at Whitehall was somewhat off the record, but he urged every American to support unconditional surrender, "regardless of what faction is in power in Berlin." Mr. Heatter was introduced by Mr. A. M. Son nabend who also acted as moderator during the open forum period which followed the talk.

Spending a short but delightful interval at Whitehall recently was Mrs. Camille Dreyfus. Mrs. Dreyfus is the Jean Tennyson whose exquisite voice is heard on the radio during the Celanese hour. Dr. Camille Dreyfus has returned to New York, but his brother, Mr. Emil Dreyfus is remaining at Whitehall.

Another arrival at Whitehall and the Sun and Surf Club is Mr. B. C. Forbes, the eminent publisher and authority on finance.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, of Washington, D. C., who spent last season at Whitehall, returned again this year.

Mrs. M. Lincoln Schuster, and her daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Levison, of New York, are also enjoying a Whitehall engagement. Mrs. Schuster's husband is one of the firm of Simon and Schuster publishers.

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Fox of New York, Whitehall guests, were joyously greeted by Madame Kurenko, Russian prima donna, not long ago at a dinner party during the famous singer's stay in Palm Beach.

Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, prominent member of the cottage colony, chose the Jardin Royal for the setting for a party which she gave for Miss Diva Flanagan.

OCTOPUS ON YOUR LAPEL! A startling bit of glitter, definitely in the "different" classification. This huge gold octopus clip-watch, studded with green sapphires; the tiny watch is in the center of the cephalopod. At Milton Fuller.

VENETIAN MOONLIGHT! Is the name that Mme. Juliette gives to a chic pale blue faille evening gown. The elongated torso bodice flaunts a deep yoke of black lace veiling nude-colored chiffon. Deviating from the usual bouffant skirt styling, this creation has bustle-effect treatment on the sides.

UNCLUTTERED COIFFURES! Are sponsored by Michel, director of the hair departments of the Helena Rubinstein salons. He advises his smart clientele to re-design their headlines to achieve the small, neat silhouette that is now the only elegance in coiffures. Fluffy curls, ringlets, puffs and other impediments are definitely not chic for 1945, says this authority.

OLD SPODE! Is the medium for a lovely dessert service. The green-bordered plates are embellished with white embroidered flowers, and a different bouquet of flowers in natural colors, for the center decoration of each. A charming bit of color and character for your resort entertaining, and available at Plummer's.

HARBINGER OF SPRING! The multi-flowered print frock in gay colors, fashioned with deep V neckline, bracelet sleeves and figure-flattering skirt. For further glamour, this is topped with a shocking pink wool jacket, lined with the frock print. From Mme. Mogabgab's new collection.

CHINESE-INFLUENCED FISH! These amazing pieces are made of gold and heavily studded with diamonds, accented with ruby eyes. As unusual in contour as they are in glitter and dazzle. Eye-arresting note for your neckline or lapel and designed by Frank S. Hartley.

DESIGNED BY ADRIAN! The sleek wool suit—slim black skirt topped with broad-shouldered jacket in red, white, black and grey stripes. Accompanying black felt postillion hat with cage veil! At Bonwit Teller.

DEEP RED LIZARD! Fashions the smart pouch handbag by Elizabeth Arden—cleverly fitted with matching comb, lipstick and compact. Black and white reptile in the same styling are also obtainable. Good companions for Spring tail-leurs.

DAZZLING BALLET! To enhance gala Palm Beach formal affairs—the gold minidair with chased background pattern for the dazzling ballet. The dancing figures ornamented with rose diamonds and faceted rubies and sapphires. Compartments for your cigarettes, powder and lipstick. From the salon of John Rubel.

NAPOLEONIC BATTLE SCENES! Are the theme of the vignettes which decorate a pair of lovely old porcelain lamps, noted at Worrell's. The lamps are pale green with decorations in multi-colors. Would add a note of distinction to your living room or library!

MIDRIFF PLAY SUITS! The styling inspired by the good looking slacks, for which Margaret Newman is noted. Your choice of several dramatic color combinations. Such as—grey printed with bouquets of yellow, white and purple flowers. Accompanying skirt in deep purple.

CHAMBRAY AND SEQUINS! Form a striking merger for the glorified shirtwaist dress at the J. J. Jonas shop. A black crepe skirt and pink chambray top, splashed with all-over design in black sequins. Ideal for cocktails or informal restaurant dining.

COFFRETT OF CHOCOLATES! This de luxe box of gold with separate trays for each variety of candy, would be an acceptable gift for any important occasion. Among the many kinds of chocolates from which to choose: rum-filled, coffee, filbert paste, brandied cherries, truffles, caramel cream, etc. Rosemarie de Paris Shop.

APRICOT BRANDY! The spirited color of a new wool gabardine suit, with military touches in the styling; dramatized with brown alligator belt and buttons. Grand for resort wear and later back North, come Spring. At the Martha Shop; from a chic collection of colorful suits!

VERSATILE AND GLISTENING! Is the exquisite cabochon emerald and baguette diamond necklace, at Trabert & Hoeffer-Mauboussin. It can be dissected to form a smaller necklace, three clips and a bracelet. A veritable wardrobe of jewels in one piece!

SHOPPING CAN BE FUN! When you shop (for either men's or women's apparel) and then without leaving the premises, relax in a smart cocktail bar and enjoy a refreshing tall drink. Such a place is Finchley's—noted for both clothes and cocktails!

OSTRICH BOA! Reminiscent of the gay nineties but very 1945—the uncurled ostrich stole in the subtle greige tone. Striking drama to point up your formal evening gown—of any color. At Razook's.

DRIFTWOOD! Is the fascinating finish for some smart modern furniture made right here in Florida by Albert Tatoul and sold in Palm Beach at the Florida Furniture shop. The sailcloth upholstery in bright colors is highlighted with interesting tropical motifs.

CACTUS AND DESERT FLOWERS! Are the unusually smart decorative medium for some new California play suits of jersey at the John W. Thomas shop. The background is white with "sun kissed" designs in brilliant color tones. Shorts and shirt with wrap-around skirt and tunic coat. Fashion-right for numerous occasions!

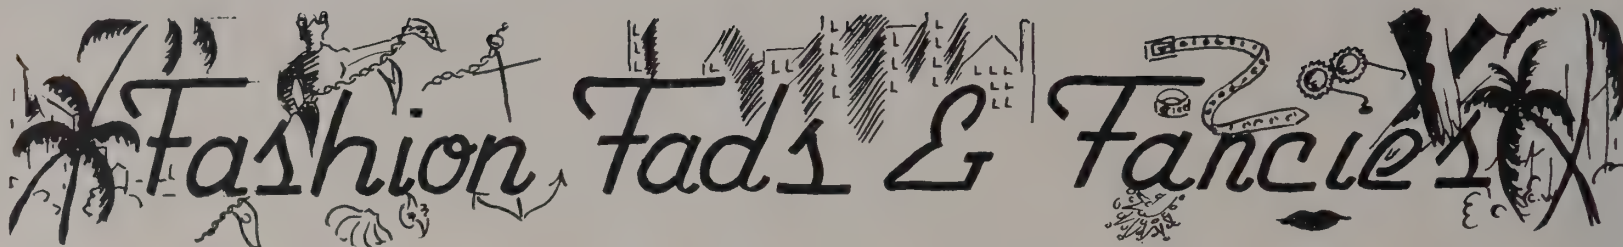

Accent on aquamarines! The striking ensemble of jewels from the salon of Frank S. Hartley which dramatizes this tailleur, cleverly combines aquamarines and diamonds in unique designing. The clip has a picture frame border of diamonds pointing up the aquamarine of impressive proportions. Ear clips are in the shape of flower petals.

A smart new idea in slacks suits as designed by Margaret Newman. The trousers and back of shirt are citron yellow sandswiff, with weskit front of homespun in gay plaid pattern. Other fabric combinations and color themes are available.

Smart and youthful and definitely different—an off-the-shoulder dancing gown of heavy black taffeta. Outlining the low decolletage and rippling peplum, is a striking trim of stiffened dusty pink lace. Shown by Mme. Najla Mogabgab in a Tombola-luncheon fashion presental, at the Everglades Club.

Fashion Fads & Fancies

AS THE SEASON ADVANCES, the resort style scene becomes more interesting, with gay color mergers the focal point of interest. This is true, whether it happens to be a casual costume or a glittering evening ensemble.

Many of the new fashion trends which have been exploited as precursors of Spring, are also beginning to appear in the style picture here. And, suits have taken on a new interest as a resort outfit—accessorized with bright hues and tints.

HERE AND THERE IN THE PALM BEACH FASHION PICTURE

The Silver Anniversary dinner-dance at the Everglades Club, brought out a lot of dazzling costumes. Noted in the beautiful Orange Gardens—Mrs. George Vanderbilt, in a square decollete gown of black taffeta; Mrs. Edward H. Alexander wearing a pastel print, outlined with brilliants; Mrs. Charles Wrightsman's flame red chiffon gown accented with a flowing scarf; Mrs. Frank C. Henderson's white sequined-gown topped with a long white ermine coat and tiara of rhinestones; Mrs. Edward F. Kay wearing a smart silver grey gown; Miss Rosemary Warburton in a smart black creation with illusion yoke; Countess Irene Cittadini in a sleek black gown.

Mrs. Lincoln Ellsworth dining with her husband at Maison Lafitte, in a striking costume; black dirndl skirt trimmed with colorful braid, topped with white drawstring blouse.

Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler at a recent luncheon party, wearing a poudre blue spectator sports dress and white straw sailor.

Mrs. Montagne La Montague shopping on North County Road in an all-white outfit—her chic chapeau styled along Chinese coolie lines.

Commdr. Jack Dempsey and his two daughters, Barbara and Joan, strolling on Worth Avenue—the two cute youngsters in identical pinafores of flower-printed cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gunster dining in a South Ocean Boulevard restaurant—she in a multi-colored print and beige coat and he wearing beige slacks and brown checked leisure coat.

Mrs. Hugh Kirkland shopping on Worth Avenue one sunny morning in a chic white crepe spectator sports frock accessorized with the same color.

Mr. (Secretary of the Navy) and Mrs. James Forrestal dining at the Alibi. She very smart in an unusual black and white ensemble—white frock with black and white spectator pumps, handbag and hat.

Mrs. McMaster Mills at a luncheon party, wearing a striking poudre blue frock and flowered turban in the same becoming shade.

Mrs. Edward H. Alexander on Worth Avenue in white slacks and midriff top of Roman striped cotton. A white over-the-shoulder bag and white wedgies.

Mrs. Flagler Matthews at a tea party in her own home, on Clarendon Avenue—her vari-colored print frock accented with striking jewelry.

Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau entertaining at a cocktail party in "Villa Today"—her poudre blue frock topped with a companion jacket of blue, white and beige stripes; sapphire and gold massive jewelry.

John Mason Brown, autographing copies of his new book, "Many A Watchful Night," at Doubleday, Doran. His trim deep blue business suit highlighted with a blue striped tie, dotted with red.

Mrs. Tailer Carpenter lunching at the Everglades Club . . . her lavender frock accessorized with deep purple hat and handbag.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nelson of Washington, D. C., strolling on Worth Avenue . . . he in a pale grey business suit and she, wearing a black crepe skirt topped with wide striped satin blouse in black and poudre blue.

Mrs. Francis J. O'Hara, noted at the Everglades Club Tombola; her fuchsia frock accented with dusty pink accessories and a blue fox stole.

Mrs. James W. Carnahan, at the same place, wearing a striking green and gold paisley print frock; the pattern outlined in glittering sequins. Topping this a coat of old gold wool.

Diamond jewelry, designed by Van Cleef and Arpels—the luxurious glitter which dramatizes this smart chartreuse and black dinner gown. The double clip is fashioned of diamonds set in platinum, in a smart shield effect. Matching earrings are smaller shields. The gold evening bag, "minaudiere," is studded with diamonds, pointing up the gold flowers.

The Golfer's Dream

FOR THE PAST FORTNIGHT, the shades of Ted Ray, Harry Varden, John Ball, Jim Braid, John Patterson, Walter J. Travers and many other golfing greats have been disturbing the dreams of your reporter, menacing him with their putters and angrily shouting, "There is the dub, who dared play on the Seminole Golf Club course."

Of course, the 'shades' are absolutely right, for it is almost a sacrilege to dig a divot out of the beautiful fairways—fairways which are smoother than greens on many courses.

If the fairways are remarkable the greens are astounding for no motion picture queen ever had her face or hands more carefully tended than the greens at Seminole. In fact every blade of the velvety grass and this is a real tribute to the greens keeper, President Colonel Latham Ralston Reed and members of the greens committee—every blade of grass looks as though it received personal attention.

Golfers throughout the nation and even in Scotland where they think St. Andrews No. 1 is the world's best, are as jealous of their golf courses as a mother is with her children, but the writer feels that even a Scotsman will agree when he terms the Seminole Club the finest golf club in the world.

Picture if you can, a magnificent clubhouse of graceful Spanish architecture, overlooking a broad expanse of the Atlantic ocean. The view as you look down upon the white-capped combers crashing upon the sands of the beach is so inspiring, it fills you with awe.

At one side of the beautiful clubhouse, one finds unsurpassed tennis courts and nearby a picturesque swimming pool amid a bower of feathery palms. From a landscaped tea garden and patio it is but a few steps into the beautiful lounge or dining room where engraved upon the walls is the story of Ponce de Leon.

In the lounge, you'll learn that Colonel Reed is president and a very popular and active president indeed. You'll learn that other officers are Howell van Gerbig who is a vice-president as is Bertrand L. Taylor and that Bert Winters is secretary and treasurer.

The Board of Governors consists of Valentine C. Bartlett, Malcolm G. Chace, Jr., Charles Francis Coe, John J. Daly, J. Gordon Douglas, Armory L. Haskell, Milton W. Holden, Edward F. Hutton, Frederick Johnson, Oscar W. Johnson, Sherburne Prescott, T. Dennie Boardman, Col. Latham R. Reed, Wiley R. Reynolds, Elmer Rich, Bertrand L. Taylor, Howell van Gerbig and Marion Sims Wyeth. Robt. R. Young, George A. Nicols, Jr., Gerald B. Lambert, Eric Loder and Christopher Dunphy were recently elected to the board.

Elmer Rich is chairman of the Greens committee. The House committee consists of Robert D. Huntington, chairman, Valentine C. Bartlett, Marion Sims Wyeth.

Colonel Reed is such a grand person and so enthusiastic about the Seminole Golf Club that he makes one feel that he is akin to a multi-millionaire president of a very exclusive club in the North. Now it is not claimed that Colonel Reed would do the same thing, but being such an ardent golfer, it is believed that he would understand the feelings of the Northern Country Club president.

This executive was so much in love with his club and the game of golf that he almost put himself in the hospital.

Following a meeting with his greens committee, it was decided to dig a trap on a certain hole. Orders were given for the trap, but the orders were not followed out quickly enough to satisfy the enthusiastic president, who early one morning, was found digging in the trap. As a result of the strenuous labor, he was almost confined to his bed.

You'll also learn in the lounge that the greatest golfers in the world since the Seminole Club has been in existence have played over the course and they all agree with the writer that there is no course, to equal it anywhere.

Of course for the duration, major tournaments and play such as the famous amateur and professional sweepstakes are out at the Seminole, but when peace reigns again, these nationally known competitions will be resumed.

The war has cut deeply into the Seminole Club and 48 of its members have served or are now serving in the armed forces.

Twenty-six other members have 32 sons in active service. One has been killed and another is a war prisoner in Germany.

Six of the members are Colonels or Lieutenant Colonels. They are Col. Edgar W. Garbisch, Col. Malcolm G. Chace, Jr., Col. John H. Whitney, Col. Lucius P. Ordway, Lt. Col. Earl E. T. Smith and Lt. Col. Byron C. Foy.

The Seminole members are divided as to choice of the various branches of service. Twelve are in the Air Corps while nine are in the Army.

Nineteen are in the Navy. Since many of the Seminole members are yachtsmen as well as golfers, it is only natural that they would seek service in the Navy where their nautical experience would be extremely valuable.

Winston Guest is the only member listed with the Marines. Last reports showed him to be a First Lieutenant.

The complete list follows: Lt. Comdr. Frederick Alger, Jr., USN; 1st Lt. Charles Amory, Jr., USAAF; 2nd Lt. Harry H. Bassett, USAAF; Lt. (j.g.) T. Dennie Boardman, USN; 1st Lt. Reginald Boardman, USAAF; Lt. Comdr. James C. Brady, USN; Capt. James A. Burden, Jr., USA; Lt. J. Frederic Byers, Jr., USN; Col. Malcolm G. Chace, Jr., USA; Lt. (j.g.) Jack F. Chrysler, USN; Chief Boatswain's Mate Guernsey Curran, Jr., USCG; Aviation Cadet James A. dePeyster, USAAF; Maj. Hunt T. Dickinson, USAAF; Lt. Comdr. Thorne Donnelly, USN; Lt. Comdr. Barclay K. Douglas, USN; Lt. J. Gordon Douglas, Jr., USN; Lt. Comdr. John R. Fell, Jr., USN; Lt. Col. Byron C. Foy, USA; Col. Edgar W. Garbisch, USA; Lt. Raymond Guest, USN; 1st Lt. Winston Guest, USMC.

The Golfers Dream—the ingeniously designed golf course of the Seminole Golf Club with its picturesque club house shown near the white line of the breakers from the Atlantic.

Col. Lucius P. Ordway, USAAF; Maj. Michael G. Phipps, USAAF; Flight Lt. Herbert Pulitzer, RAF; Maj. Joseph V. Reed, USA; Lt. Ernest H. Rice, USN; Capt. Stephen Sanford, USA; 1st Lt. Herbert Scheftel, USAAF; Lt. Thomas Shevlin, USCG; Lt. Col. Earl E. T. Smith, USAAF; Flying Officer Robert J. Sweeney, Jr., RAF; Maj. T. Suffern Tailer, USA; Lt. Henry J. Topping, USN; Squadron Ldr. Edward N. Townsend, Jr., RCAF; Lt. Comdr. Gene Tunney, USN; Lt. Shaw Walker, USN; Col. John H. Whitney, USAAF; Capt. R. Amcotts Wilson, RN.

Once you leave the locker room and start for the first tee, you realize fully that you are about to play upon a championship course. However before you leave the locker room, glance about you, and the names which you read on the lockers will amaze you. On that locker over there you'll read the name of Charles Francis (Socker) Coe, next to him is Gene Tunney. As you wander around the room you'll see Winston Guest, Christopher Dunphy, George A. Nicols, Jr., Eric Loder, Robert R. Young, Gerald B. Lambert, Edward W. Garbisch and many other equally famous named.

Out upon the first tee and stretching northwest, you'll find 384 yards of velvety carpet in front of you, before you'll reach the first flag.

The total yardage for the eighteen holes is 6,873 yards which if you play good golf will be good to you, but if you have to struggle for your pars, they will laugh at you.

The first nine holes measure 3,469 yards, while the second is 3,404 yards. Par on the first nine is 36 and if you cannot hit well from the tee or crack out 225-yard second shots, you'll find yourself notching sixes instead of pars.

The second, third and fourth holes are all well over 400 yards long. The second is 415, the third, 456 and the fourth 446. Just to make things very interesting the second hole is a water hole and it is a beauty. You really have to be on your game to get your par four on the first and second, a par five on the third, a par four on the fourth and par three on the 195-yard fifth hole. These are all beautiful golf holes, real tests for the golfers, but they are merely appetizers for what is to come. The sixth is a 388-yarder and a par four while the seventh and eighth are both water holes and what water holes!

The seventh is a par four being 433 yards long while the eighth is a par three, all carry for 233 yards over water.

If you carry the water and get your three, don't start patting yourself on the back for when you stand up on the next tee, the ninth, you'll have to hit for 519 yards before you can get your par five.

Better stop in the club house for a bit of refreshment before you start your second nine because the first two holes you'll face are water holes. The first is 384 yards and the second 422 yards.

Morrie Welsh, club professional, insists that they are not difficult holes. Welsh should however know what he is talking about since he has been in the business for many years having been with the Cascade Country Club at Grand Rapids, Mich., for 24 summers.

The twelfth and thirteenth holes are beauties. The twelfth is a par four while the thirteenth is a 142-yard par three hole. Better get out our one and two woods for the next two holes for the fourteenth is 510 yards long and the fifteenth is a 528-yard hole, which calls for a tee shot over water. Both holes of course are par fives.

The sixteenth is a par four being 430 yards long while the seventeenth is a par three. The eighteenth is a par four which calls for two mighty wood shots, since the hole is 450 yards long.

Boy, page Bryon Nelson and Sam Sneed.

Dear Dora:

I promised I'd tell you the inside story of how that weeping waif from the west, whom we both know so well, captured the catch of the year, a handsome, rich and socially prominent member of one of society's "Big Five" families. However, since you have the darndest habit of mislaying my missives and having them turn up in the strangest places, I'll substitute nuances for names in this saga of a sob-sister who got her man.

Of course the marriage itself isn't news any more. Most of their friends found out the other day that our handsome friend married the girl secretly several months ago. What very few know though is how the little girl managed the marriage. You know, of course, that he's still madly in love with his first wife, who has since married again. Naturally he was just ripe for the first clever girl who reached out to scoop him on the second bounce.

The waif happened to meet him at one of those amusing parties our pal, the interior decorator, tosses in her penthouse apartment from time to time. She knew about the torch he was carrying for his ex-wife and she slipped him treatment number one, the beautiful old standby, the sympathy saga. It worked enough so that he dated her a couple of times and when the first treatment wore off, she reversed her field and aroused HIS sympathy by pulling a fake suicide attempt with a lethal combustible (gas to you.)

She managed to have the room reeking with gas fumes, the windows tight down, door stuffed with papers and all of the usual suicide routine, including her own fair form lying sprawled out on the kitchen floor partially overcome, just as (surprise-surprise) our hero came in to keep his date with our heroine.

Following the usual call to the emergency squads, etc., the poor fellow rallied around her East Side apartment for four days A. W. O. L. from his military assignment, fearful she'd complete the job. He finally agreed to save her from a fate that's as final as taxes by marrying her, but asked her to keep the marriage a secret, since his very socially prominent relatives would frown on a merger with a mid-west stranger.

The sub-rosa marriage went along for several months with the bride wondering just how she could best tip off the world she was married to a member of society's "Big Five" families. She finally decided that treatment number two was good for a return trip. So-o-o-o-o when hubby returned one day from a hard day at the military job, he found her fair form sprawled on the kitchen floor partially overcome by gas, the windows down, etc., etc., ad nauseum. When the police story of the incident appeared in the paper, naturally it mentioned Mr. and Mrs. Socially Prominent. The story was out and now the girl has sold her gas stove and put in an electric burner and everybody's happy including the bothered bridegroom, who can report for duty in the morning without worrying about his wistful little waif from the west.

Typical of the times I think is the case of beautiful and blond Pat Potter (not the highly publicized one, who is supposed to be engaged to Henry Luce, 3rd, but that attractive daughter of Mrs. James J. McArdle and Dr. Leroy A. Potter, who had all of those officers at Morrison Field jumping through hoops last year.)

Pat told me the other day that she has broken her engagement to Flight Lieutenant Howard Lawrence, but is still wearing his ring, despite being tentatively engaged to Capt. Edwin S. Friendly.

"You see," explained Pat, I can't send Howard's ring

One of the charming portraits of children in the current exhibition by Zoe Shippen at the Worth Avenue Gallery, is this pastel study of Lulu Vanderbilt, small daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt of Palm Beach.

back to him, since he's overseas, and I'd have to pay 100% duty on it. So I'm simply forced to keep it until he returns. Naturally," she added with an impish grin, "it would be silly to leave such a beautiful diamond ring at home, so I wear it."

Of course you haven't forgotten my telling you all about Pierce Butler and those tempting offers the movie moguls made when he was discharged from the Army. Well,

Pierce's aristocratic mother, Mrs. Albert Hunt Marekwald, and his fiancée, Ann Gaughan, changed his mind for him. There's to be no grease paint and glamour gals in his life after all. The young heir to Butler race track traditions and the Butler chain-store millions, went into a huddle with his mother and fiancée the other day and came up with a June wedding date and without a movie contract.

If you're wondering why Rosemary Warburton and Joan Leidy Paine aren't circulating much down in Palm Beach these days you'll be interested to know the real reason. The two promised Mrs. Robert Strawbridge, Jr., faithfully when they left here bound for a Florida vacation, that they would carry on their letter writing for the Salvation Army drive down there.

Both Joan and Rosie are wrapped up in the campaign. The beautiful daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt called me before she left for Palm Beach and asked me to pitch in and do what I could for the drive during her absence, and the slim and soignée Joan put off her trip back to join her little daughter at the home of her mother and step-father, the Aksel C. P. Wichfelds, until the last moment so that she could do her share here. I must say I can't visualize a lovelier spot to sit and write letters than Fifi and Aksel's Ocean front home. Incidentally how is Thrift, Inc., getting along? They tell me Aksel has practically stripped every old house in Palm Beach to get "loot" for his pet charities.

Socket Coe said that you were having a marvelous season down there when I ran into him and his talented daughter at the Stork Club the other night. I asked him how Hugh Dillman was getting along and was delighted to hear that Palm Beach's key figure is looking and feeling better than he has in years. I hope Hugh's friends have persuaded him to take it a little easier this year. He's been working himself to death for practically every civic venture down there ever since he was elected president of the Everglades Club.

After giving reporters the run-around for several seasons down at the home of her mother, Mrs. Frederick Winthrop Neilson, in Boca Raton, I hear that Emily Alsop Jordan, who recently divorced John Frederic Jordan of the loud pre-war plaid sports coats, decided to walk up the aisle with Capt. Douglas Moody of the air transport. I notice that her ex-husband beat her to the punch the other day by getting married out at Wright Field, in Dayton, Ohio, to a girl whose name I can never remember. Whenever I think of the Alsops and Neilsons it brings to mind that weird mother-daughter hand-me-down marital muddle that revolved around Romeo Gasparini.

Those cigarette ads have nothing on Mrs. Charles Porter Stevenson for nonchalance. Cute Cissie Lord Stevenson, whose mother you will of course remember as Mrs. Lewis S. Lord Morris, arrived via automobile in Washington with her Naval husband and found the house they had leased for a year would not be vacated for several days. Cissie didn't even bother to try getting in at the over-crowded hotels and apartment houses, she just picked up a telephone at a nearby drug store, put in a call to the White House and airily asked for Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"Listen Eleanor dear" said Cissie, just as though she had known the first lady all her life, "Charlie and I are stranded here in Washington. How about putting us up for a few days."

I know you're way ahead of me Dora but it didn't pan out the way you think. Eleanor didn't report Cissie to the psychopathic department. She trilled "Oh how delightful! That gives me a chance to repay your dear mother's hospitality. Do come over with your husband and be my guests by all means." You see they are old pals from way back when Franklin didn't have a White House to his name.

I wish you could have Marie Coudet Brenning Sands tell you this story personally. I think it's a scream. You know that her husband Lt. William R. Sands is overseas of course. The other day a very official voice spoke to Marie over the phone saying that she should stand by near her telephone that afternoon at 4 o'clock to expect a call from her husband. The voice put her through the third degree, asking her if she was anything more than a house-wife, etc., etc.

That afternoon another stern voice came over the wire warning her that she should refrain from mentioning the weather, asking of her husband's whereabouts or where he had just come from, etc.

Finally her husband's voice came over the wire. Here's the conversation that took place.

Marie—"Darling you sound as though you had a cold."

Bill—"Yes, it's the change from a warm to cold climate that did it."

The telephone—"Click!"

"After that there was silence," wailed Marie. "Imagine rehearsing a thousand things I wanted to say to Bill all day long and then picking out the very subject that would cause the censor to cut us off."

As ever,

ELLEN.

PALM BEACH HOTEL

AN ENTERTAINING EVENING recently at the Palm Beach Hotel was the Guest Star Night when the program was put on by Miss Lea Garvin, social director, starring talent among the guests of the hotel. Dr. Howard Murray, from Washington, D. C., was master-of-ceremonies and may have missed his calling, adding pep and verve to the show by weaving the acts into a complete unit.

The highlight of the show was his singing of Frank Sinatra's theme song to Frankie's mother who was a guest at a ring-side table with a group from Hoboken, N. J. The girls in the audience obligingly sighed and swooned.

Miss Florence Fox, who sang "Stormy Weather," in her unusual blues style, was encored repeatedly and was unable to continue because she hadn't rehearsed any more numbers.

Making an attractive contrast, Miss Grace Taggart sang several semi-classical selections in her sweet, clear soprano.

The riotous chorus was dressed in red ruffled rayon midriff costumes designed for the act by Miss Rosary D'Amato, and trained in their clever routines by Ruth Lane. They were the Misses Arlene Berkenfield, Rose Bozman, Madeline Lerner and Mrs. Shirley Weiner. The men they chose from the audience for partners were Nathaniel Reese, A. H. Sherwin, James Herold and Sid Rome. Mr. Herold also sang a couple of popular numbers in his own inimitable manner.

During the show, Dr. Murray introduced Mrs. C. Markham Langham, a former hotel guest, who recently won the award as "the best-dressed woman in Palm Beach."

A really impressive feature of the program was the piano solos by Mrs. William H. Miller, blonde and glamorous, who has been blind for a year and a half. With a warm personality that has made friends for her throughout the hotel, Mrs. Miller made a gay little talk and played several numbers, including "Lovenest on a Hilltop" for which she wrote the music and the lyrics.

Nino De Pena, executed the tango with Mrs. Ernest Gomory, whose grace and rhythm on the dance floor attracts comment nightly. The finale was the appearance of the entire cast to the music of Pete Miller's fine aggregation who played a fox-trot composed by Mrs. A. M. Vineberg, a season guest at the hotel. Miss Garvin is now rehearsing a cast for the next guest performance which will be a Gay Nineties Night.

An annual event which annually draws a crowd to the lounge took place Sunday evening, Feb. 18—Hi Rubin's Original Nickelodeon, featuring old-time movies and community singing to colored sides used in the days before the silent movies. On the program were shots from Harold Lloyd in "Safety First," "Stars of Yesterday," "The Great Train Robbery," one of the first movies with a sustained plot; and two reels of "Events of Fifty Years Ago."

Mrs. James McCarren and daughter, Miss Alice McCarren, of New York, who have been coming to the Palm Beach Hotel for a number of years, recently arrived for the season. Other recent arrivals are: Mrs. A. E. Kremp of the Forest Hills Club, Long Island, the Rev. T. J. Herron of Bloomfield, N. J., Dr. Joseph J. Eller, William Farrell of Toronto, Mass., Mrs. M. E. Hastings and daughter of Philadelphia, Dr. Jacques Malinise of New York City.

Mrs. Job Taylor of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., who is at the Palm Beach Hotel for the season, entertained recently at a dinner party. Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frances O'Hara, Cyrus Ingle, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Whitehall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fanning entertained at a farewell party for Miss Helene Damon of New York City. Their other guests were Miss Alice Barry, the Rev. John Tiernan and Miss Agnes Cahill.

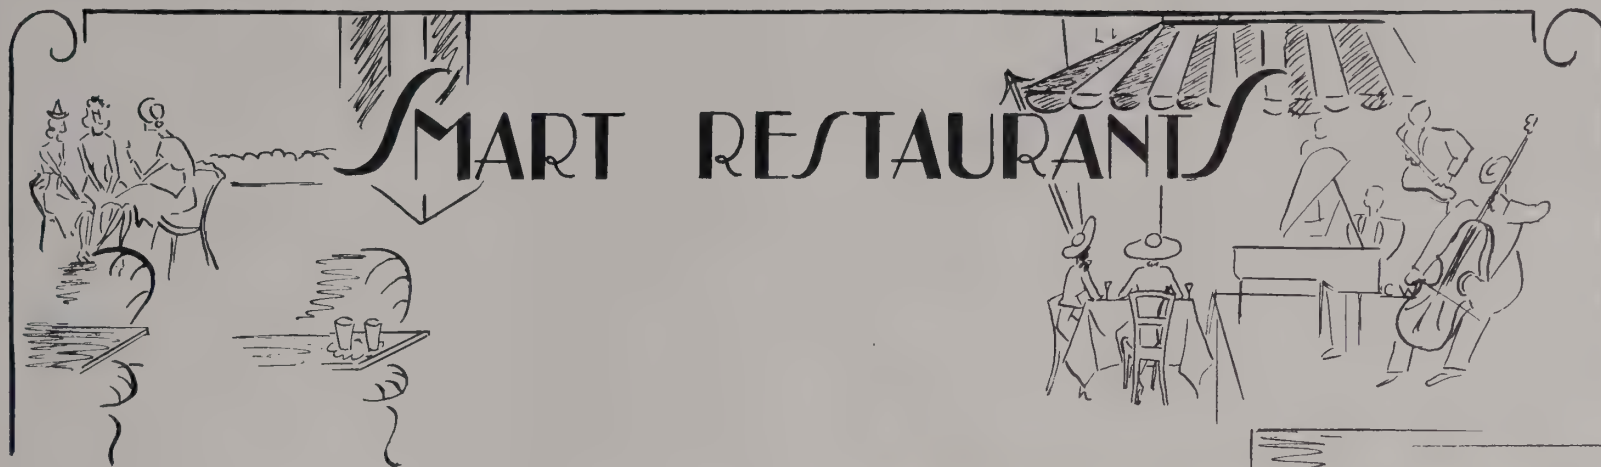

Mr. and Mrs. Page Golsan of New York City are passing their honeymoon at the Palm Beach Hotel. Mrs. Golsan is the former Miss Helen Paynter. They became acquainted at the Monmouth, Spring Lake, N. J., last summer.

Miss M. Irene Fay of Boston, dean of the Fay School, is passing two weeks at the Palm Beach Hotel. Ninety per cent of her students are college graduates preparing for a business career. Most of them take the Civil Service examinations because if they pass at 90 per cent or over, they are eligible for a secretarial position immediately instead of clerk or typist.

After a ten-day leave, Commander Jack Dempsey left recently for New York to receive his orders for a new assignment from the Coast Guard. He will go to the South Pacific area and thence to India and China "flying the hump." His daughters, Joan and Barbara, who were with him, have returned to New York to continue their studies at St. Lawrence Academy.

Visitors at the Palm Beach Hotel enjoyed talking with Commander Dempsey and getting his autograph while he posed with his children for the photographer. Lt. Com. Howard R. Pickering from the Spars headquarters, welcomed him to Palm Beach in behalf of the Coast Guard.

MAISON LAFITTE

ON GOOD TERMS with good living—the smart Maison Lafitte restaurant, in the Via Parigia! Noted for fine food and excellent service, gourmets have acclaimed this popular eating spot in superlatives—many of them making it a daily habit to lunch or dine here.

The cuisine is French and the delectable dishes which have become a talking piece in the resort are concocted under the supervision of chef Pierre Hannier, formerly associated with Whitehall in Palm Beach for seven years. And before that, with the Indian Yacht Club, Greenwich, Conn., Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., with several famous hotels in Europe and chef aboard a number of ocean liners.

Responsible for the excellent service at Maison Lafitte, is the genial maitre d'hotel Charles Brusa, who is well-known for his association with the Roney Plaza in Miami Beach for twelve years.

Vying with the incomparable food is the charming atmosphere—a colorful decor of seagreen and coral, highlighted with exotic undersea murals. There is both an inside and terrace dining room, so the place is ably equipped to take care of patrons comfortably, in any kind of weather.

Glimpsed lunching and dining here recently: Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Ellsworth of Hobe Sound, Mr. A. P. Giannini of California, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Halloran, Mrs. Robert M. Guggenheim who was hostess at a small dinner party, Mr. and Mrs. William Cluett, Mr. and Mrs. Philomen Dickinson, Mrs. Belle Gurnee who entertained friends.

Prince and Princess Alexis Zalstem-Zalessky were a dinner twosome. As were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina. Mr. and Mrs. Worthington Hine entertained at a large dinner party. Mr. Joe Bannon was dinner host at a party for eleven guests. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McK. Royal were among the twosomes. Mrs. David Gerli had a small dinner party. As did Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Duval. Mme. Constance Le Jeune had several friends at her table.

Mr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran, Jr., entertained dinner guests. Mr. and Mrs. George Kent were noted at a table for two. Mrs. C. Henry Buhl was dinner hostess at a small party. Mr. Van Lear Black had a table for six. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes were a twosome. Commdr. Jack Dempsey and his daughters, Joan and Barbara lunched together.

Others noted: Commdr. Pickering, Mr. William A. Shawcross, Mrs. Walter Goodwillie, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Shepherd, Capt. Alastair Mackintosh, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harding, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Nations, Dr. and Mrs. Rodney Jones McKenzie.

for Gloria Kirby, Phyllis Leidy, Patricia Procter, Natalie Scott, and Mary Louise Bennett. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rayner were hosts at a dinner party, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Auguste were a dinner twosome. As were Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyan. And, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson.

The colorful marine lounge of Maison Lafitte is also a favored rendezvous of colonists, many of whom entertain at cocktail parties here preceding dinner. With the return of warm weather, the southern mint juleps with ice crystals (a specialty of the house), are a popular beverage. Adding to the enjoyment—the impromptu programs by Harry Brunet, talented musician who alternates with popular tunes, on the piano and accordion. Building his programs around request numbers.

MONTMARTRE

A SMART MERGING OF THE OLD and the new, best describes Montmartre, one of the most popular dinner, supper and cocktail rendezvous in Palm Beach. The new is featured in the very smart settings which flaunt a multi-colored decor and the old, in the incomparable French cuisine, rare vintages and continental atmosphere, which bring back nostalgic memories of old Paris.

For those who enjoy a bit of entertainment with their dining, there is Nikke Montan, charming singer-accordionist, whose seemingly unlimited repertoire includes popular American and continental songs. Miss Montan was formerly associated with several smart night spots in Hollywood, California.

The late supper hour is increasing in popularity at Montmartre, with numerous members of the hotel and cottage colony entertaining guests in this manner. The colorful Parisian lounge is also a favored rendezvous with colonists, many of whom drop in for a "bit of beverage" after the theatre. According to Francis who dispenses the delectable concoctions at the bar, the most popular cocktails this season are daquiris, Manhattans and martinis. Francis is well-known for his twelve years association with The Breakers Hotel, Palm Beach.

lounge here recently were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Candler, who entertained friends at dinner; Dr. and Mrs. William Engel; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Havens; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Valier and their son, Lt. Edward L. Valier, USNR, who is spending a short leave in the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stockton Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Callahan, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Snider, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schur, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Glasgow, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Mario de Tuillio, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Lt. Comdr. Comstock and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Witman, Mr. Jose' Dorelis, Mr. A. Gasper, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding III, Mrs. N. B. Spingold who was hostess at a small dinner party.

Also: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lanfranchi, Baron Pantz, Mrs. Louis Beaumont and a party of friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. West, Mr. and Mrs. Claude D. Smith, Mrs. C. Henry Buhl, Countess Irene Cittadini and guests, Dr. and Mrs. W. Van Ambrose McGee of Richmond, Va., Capt. Neil E. Milane of Littleton, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. William Mahoney of Hamden, Conn.

Others noted at Montmartre: Lt. Commdr. and Mrs. J. E. Traquair, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kind of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Edmund Davies who was host at a small dinner party, Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky, Mme. C. Lejeune and a party, Mr. and Mrs. Kyril Vassiley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Schellentrager.

MAYERLING

TYPIFYING THE ENCHANTMENT of old world charm is the Mayerling Restaurant known to the resort gourmet for its delectable cuisine which features specialties of continental origin, especially those rare Viennese dishes so popular in the days of Old Vienna.

Scores of interesting dinners have been given by winter visitors at Mayerling during the last two weeks. In one party recently were Mrs. Robert G. Briggs, Mrs. Frank Dickson Davies, Miss Doris Rich, Miss Kay Lyon, Miss Harriet Owens and Miss Phyllis Paulson, all of Palm Beach, and Miss Marianna Paulson of Stuart.

Mrs. Tailer Carpenter of the Everglades Club was a recent hostess at The Mayerling. In a group from New England were Mrs. William J. Keerle, Jr., and Miss Eileen O'Connell of Newton, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wells of Southbridge, Mass.

A group of RAF fliers from Clewiston who dined at Mayerling included Cadet H. K. Carter, Manchester, England; Cadet G. P. Challis, Plymouth, England; F. Elliott Craghead, South Durham, England; I. H. Barnett, Streattham, London; L. A. Hicks, Sunbury, Middlesex; A. A. Gaine, Nottingham, and A. L. Miller, also Nottingham, England.

Mrs. W. Jurgens, Mrs. J. A. Biastre and Mrs. J. Sullivan, all of Newport, Rhode Island, with Mrs. A. Devereaux of New York dined together. In another party were Xenis Craig, Oyster Bay, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Sanborn and Geraldine Sanborn, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Mr. and Mrs. George Tassel, Montclair, New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. Belford Shoumate, Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Leeds, New York; and Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Weitz, New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Reinhardt and Mrs. W. F. Reinhardt, Jr., were a threesome at dinner at Mayerling one evening. Also noted were Kay Pantas, Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Margaret Weiland, Boca Raton; Mr. and Mrs. John Janus, Jr., Chicago; Joseph J. Orr, Miami; Cecile Brooks, and Pat Weiland, West Palm Beach; Fred E. Zurwell, Miami Beach, and William A. Heovn, North Miami.

Composing a party were Private Herbert B. Glover, Jr., and Mrs. Herbert Glover, Garden City, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gibson, Forest Hills, L. I., and Mrs. S. L. Heidorf, Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Best, Spuytin Duyvil, New York; Mr. H. G. Schleiter, Palm Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cole, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winston, New York City; Mrs. John S. Edghill, Wellesley Hills, Mass.; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Cohn, York, Pa., were among the many others dining at Mayerling recently.

THE ALIBI

WHETHER IT IS THE BEGINNING of a gala evening, or the end of a perfect day, The Alibi with its varied facilities and entertainment is the smart answer. Noted for superb cuisine (French Provincial), the luncheon and dinner intervals are always thronged with enthusiastic gourmets. Entertaining in the tropical patio, which is one of the few places in the resort with a natural native setting—bougainvillea, orange trees bearing fruit, palms, etc.

The Good Neighbor cocktail lounge, which is also one of the show places of Palm Beach, is equally popular with members of the hotel and cottage colony. You don't need an alibi to drop in here, as you are always sure of meeting some of your friends. The smart and unusual decor is poudre blue and white, highlighted with wall murals depicting life in early Brazil.

To add to the enjoyment of a tall drink and relaxing atmosphere, there is a continuous program of incidental music, from the cocktail hour on. Alternating at the piano are Cliff Hall, society entertainer who has delighted audiences all over the United States, and Ralph Strain who plays modern tunes with an interesting interpretation. Hall accompanies his piano numbers with original and sophisticated lyrics—very informal and amusing!

Among colonists noted at the Alibi recently: Mr. and Mrs. James Forrestal of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spalding III, Mr. Alfred Busiel, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn, Mr. Percy Mendelssohn, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Gonsic, Mr. and Mrs. I. Sheldon Tilney and their house guest Mrs. Harper Sibley.

Also: Mr. and Mrs. Bertram L. Taylor, Jr., of Hobe Sound, Dr. and Mrs. William Engel, Mr. and Mrs. John Peck, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schurr, Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Duval, Mme. Constance LeJeune, Mr. and Mrs. John Osterstock, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina, Mrs. Fred Carr, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Mr. Bert Delaphante of Beverly Hills, Calif., Capt. Alastair Mackintosh.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Obolensky and his mother, Princess Alexis Obolensky of New York City, were a dinner threesome. Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg were hosts at a small dinner party. As were Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes. Mr. and Mrs. George McClellan and daughter dined together. Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Shepherd and daughter, Miss Joy Shepherd, had a table for three. Mr. and Mrs. George Yetter were dinner hosts. As were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ludlow Kramer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Nations were among the twosomes. Others noted were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Candler who entertained at a small dinner party. Mr. and Mrs. H. Halpine Smith and daughter, Joanne, were a luncheon trio. As were Mr. and Mrs. Jarrold R. West and a guest.

PENNSYLVANIA HOTEL

LIKE AN ARTIST proudly shows you his latest canvas, so maitre d' hotel Leslie Drennan, loves to show and talk about his Rainbow Room and also his Palm Room at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

The genial Drennan has every right to be proud of both rooms, which have attained undreamed of popularity.

Much of this popularity is of course due to maitre Drennan, a fact which you immediately sense upon entering either room and upon meeting him. He has the uncanny knack of making a guest feel "at home" and that the evening will not be a success unless the guest enjoys himself to the utmost.

The Rainbow Room is actually three rooms in one though the atmosphere is such that one feels as though he is a part of the activity throughout the entire room. It contains two cocktail bars, one at the south end and one at the west side of the room, a cocktail lounge at the north end and a large elevated dance floor in the center. Illumination for the dance floor comes from lights beneath the floor. A blue valance with silver stars, sets off the room in marvelous fashion.

There is "never a dull moment" in the Rainbow Room, which while gay and active is never boisterous. With Jimmy Thomas as singer and master of ceremonies, games are played in addition to dancing which keeps the guests highly amused and entertained.

The Palm Room is far superior to the usual dining rooms found in many hotels for here again one finds the artistic hand of maitre d'hotel. As its name suggests Palms are used in a most attractive manner and in such a way as to make the room either large or small according to the occasion. For large weddings, dinner parties or gatherings it can be so arranged to handle the most elaborate affairs, while for ordinary occasions, or for those who care for nooks or seclusion, the setting can be changed easily.

A feature at the Pennsylvania this season is the patio and the solarium or starlight roof, where during inclement weather one can enjoy the marvelous view of the ocean and at the same time sip cocktails. Sunshiny afternoons, or typical Palm Beach afternoons the patio is the ideal location for those who like to lazily indulge in cooling refreshments while lolling beneath the large striped umbrellas or stretch in reclining chairs.

No season in the history of the Pennsylvania Hotel has been as enjoyable and successful as the present one. Not only has the hotel been taxed to capacity but the atmosphere has been one of extreme friendliness. Every guest has enjoyed him or herself to such an extent that they have all avowed to return next year.

No glimpse into the Rainbow Room at the Pennsylvania would be complete without mention of the "hired" acts which are being provided. Andre and Delphine, popular dancers met with instant popularity during their stay in the room as have many other internationally known acts.

On Monday, Tuesday and Friday over WJNO Radio Station there is an orchestra broadcast from the Rainbow Room, which is very popular.

The kitchen for both the Palm Room and the Rainbow Room is one of the largest in the South and the food which comes from it is not only the finest possible to obtain but also prepared in such a fashion as to please and satisfy any gourmet.

DIXIE INN

THE HEIGHT OF THE SEASON finds the Dixie Inn a magnet for resorters and Palm Beach winter visitors. Famed for its expert cuisine and attractive appointments the Inn, decorated after the manner of the Old English, has been a setting for scores of cocktail and dinner parties given by members of the resort colony.

Another feature of the Dixie Inn is the outstanding music by Ray O'Hara's orchestra. Their sweet and smooth rhythms are an invitation to the dance—and their interpretations have made the maestro one of the favorites in Southern Florida.

The delectable menus of Chef John Adler are added inducements to the food connoisseurs of which there are many in Palm Beach. Exotic dishes served mid an atmosphere of old world charm have been talked about in superlatives by the hosts and hostesses who entertain at the Dixie Inn at dinner and the very popular late supper hours. Mario Sorre, attentive maitre d'hotel is always on hand to attend to the impeccable service at the Dixie Inn, and the most recent innovation at this popular rendezvous is a modern air conditioning plant, installed by Manager Jimmy North for the added comfort of the patrons.

THE PATIO

A CRASH HIT in the entertainment world is the "On the House Nights" at the Patio when Val Ernie presents gifts to dinner guests on Friday evenings.

With the sliding glass roof open to the tropical starlit night and the spotlight trained on the most beautifully-gowned women, the scene is enchanting. Many dinner parties are given by Palm Beach hostesses.

FOUR VIEWS OF THE WORLD FAMOUS PATIO

The top is the view of the canopied entrance. Immediately below is a view of the patio, with its sliding glass roof. The third is the orchestra shell from which Val Ernie and his orchestra, Palm Beach's favorite, play each evening. The bottom scene is of the spacious blue and white lounge and the popular cocktail bar.

Mr. and Mrs. William Blood had in their party Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Giffens. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cluett entertained Edwin Sheedy and Russell Heitman. Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes were with Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fabyan and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Foster were in a large party. Lt. Charles Amory accompanied Miss Grace Amory and Mrs. Richard Hall. Mrs. Wanda Keeler had in her party Captain Martin J. Gillan, U. S. N., from Norfolk, Va., and Lt. Com. Walter Laidlaw Chesman, U. S. N., from Fort Pierce.

Mrs. Betty Kremp, owner of the Forest Hills Club, Long Island, was accompanied by Edward Brannick, business manager of the New York Giants Baseball Club. Mrs. G. Howard Hodge and Mrs. Maurice McGrath were accompanied by Jeremiah Maguire.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman K. Ellis entertained for their daughter, Mrs. John Fenno. Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wagstaff had a large dinner party.

Others among the dancers and diners for the Gala Night were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Denton, Miss Louise Fietner, Kingsley Murphy, Miss Margaret Bitting, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weigel, Mr. and Mrs. John J. O'Brien, Mme. LeJeune, John Hubbard escorting Suzanne Buechelle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landsdell, Mr. and Mrs. H. Spencer Auguste, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Renard with Miss Virginia Porter, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Bladwin, Capt. Thomas Jenks, Lt. Walter Suggs, Jay Culhane, Chris Connell, Mrs. Jesse Spalding, 3rd, Dick Wheelwright, Anthony Bittson and Mrs. George Vanderbilt.

The early Sunday Evening Dinners with Chef Robert Fantin's "specialties de cuisine" on the menu are proving a popular innovation with much entertaining by point-weary hostesses.

Robert Brooks entertained at a dinner party recently in celebration of Mrs. Brooks' birthday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Kimmelman and Miss Eloise Brooks. At a nearby table were Mrs. D. Dulaney Hunter, Mrs. Woods Plankinton, J. E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl. Lt. Reginald Boardman escorted Miss Grace Amory. Lt. Charles Amory was with Mrs. Richard Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman had in their party after the Silver Anniversary celebration at the Everglades, Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic P. White. Dining together were Mr. and Mrs. John Osterstock, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bayer and Mr. and Mrs. George Buesch.

William Shawcross had in his party, Mrs. Van Lear Black, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paul, Mr. and Mrs. George Meehan and William Jay Harrington. Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn's guests were Percy Mendelsohn, Mrs. Leon Samuels, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Raddy and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson. In another group were Mr. and Mrs. William Blood, Harvey Turnure and Miss Virginia Porter.

With the sliding glass roof open to a star-spangled sky every evening, many members of the Palm Beach cottage colony entertains at dinner frequently. In one recent group were Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder, Chris Dumphy, Major Ruthertford, Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Byron C. Foy and Mrs. D. Dulaney Hunter. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hallaran had in their party Edwin Sheedy, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Geddes and Mrs. Stuyvesant Pierrepont, Jr.

Others among the diners and dancers under a tropical sky were Mrs. George Vanderbilt escorted by Lt. Charles Amory, Miss Lydia O'Leary escorted by James Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Quinn with Mrs. Jesse Spalding, 3rd.

Smart
Smoking!

These handsome accessories make smoking more than a casual gesture - - they double your pleasure and add charm to any room. There's a fetching twinkle in the eye of the little terrier, exquisitely painted on lovely lustrous leather. And every piece is made with unusually fine workmanship.

THE BOX, 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 3 $\frac{3}{4}$ ", has two compartments, for regular or king-size cigarettes . . . \$17.50

THE ASH-TRAY, glass in leather, is 4 $\frac{1}{4}$ " in diameter. The match case is made for regular box-matches. The cigarette-server is 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ " x 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ " oval . . . \$11.95

The box may be purchased alone; the other three items are sold as a set. They all come in deep, rich shades of green or brown. Also waste-basket to match, brown only, (not shown) . . . $17.50

Cyclax

OF LONDON

The Cyclax method for care of the skin includes, for a delightful powder base, Cyclax Milk of Roses. Being a water thin emollient lotion it will moisten parched skin but will not clog the pores, therefore, for a non sticky greaseless powder base use Cyclax Milk of Roses . . . For years this lotion has protected the complexions of British women in the tropics . . . let Cyclax help protect your skin from the drying effects of sun and salt water.

Tick-Tock...Tick-Tock...FOR LONG AND QUIET YEARS!

It's a high tribute to Old Charter that so many people put it on their preferred list. They'd rather wait for the best—when their favorite bar or package store is temporarily out of Old Charter. If you've ever enjoyed the smooth mellow goodness of Old Charter, you'll agree it's well worth waiting for.

Connoisseurs of quality call Old Charter a noble whiskey. They know the part the years have played in ripening it, mellowing it, making even more distinguished this Kentucky straight whiskey born in the great Kentucky tradition. Time and an envied birthright unite to give Old Charter the silky smoothness and richness of flavor that you want . . . and remember.

THIS WHISKEY IS 6 YEARS OLD • 90° PROOF • BERNHEIM DISTILLING COMPANY, INC., LOUISVILLE, KY.
